ANTONIN NOVOTNY
. . . on the skids?

PRAGUE (CP) — The Czechoslovak Communist party approaches the final stages of preparations for its 12th congress in December against a background of growing economic problems.

The magnitude of these—the planners call them disproportions—was emphasized in late August when the government announced in effect it would scrap the current five-year plan not due to end until 1965.

The decision could have repercussions that ultimately will be felt far beyond the economic front. There is even speculation it may result in further changes in the top echelon of present party leadership.

TARGET FAILURE

Abandonment results from failure to hit the plan's target in metallurgy, heavy engineering, capital construction and agriculture.

"Despite clear directives from the party and the government, shortcomings are not being removed with sufficient determination," said deputy Frantisek Kejda in the report of the planning and budget committee.

STEEL OUTPUT FALLS

"This unfavorable development at the beginning of 1962 is causing considerable difficulties in the second half of the year and is worsening the basis for the plan for 1963."

Part of the trouble is in heavy industry. Deficiencies of 1.8 per cent in steel production and 2.5 per cent in rolled stock have had a chain reaction effect on other sectors. The engineering industry, one of the world's most advanced, was strapped consequently by a lack of materials.

LOVE SAUERKRAUT

Agricultural production was roughly seven per cent below the planned level. This had an immediate impact on the hard-working Czechoslovaks who love their Pilsener beer, meat, noodles and sauerkraut.

They spend hours in lineups at stores selling meat, butter, eggs and other commodities. Often it's not the quality or the quantity they were after.

To End Congestion

Divert Trucks Onto Cook Says Edgelow

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow yesterday pledged his support for a new truck route around the congested downtown area following complaints from Government Street merchants.

He would like to see trucks diverted to Cook Street.

After an on-the-spot assessment of the situation, the city public works chairman said he favored banning of heavily-laden trucks from the main downtown arteries.

"When these trucks start up with their heavy loads the noise is so great that the merchants can't even talk to their customers," Ald. Edgelow said.

FUMES NUISANCE

Exhaust fumes add to the nuisance and the slow-moving trucks aggravate congestion already existing on the narrow street.

"I saw as many as five big trucks in the space of two blocks yesterday afternoon," Ald. Edgelow said.

NEW TRUCK ROUTE

"We've got to do something at once to create a new truck route. I will suggest to city council that we make the route by way of Bay Street to Cook, allowing trucks heading for Ogden Point and Outer Wharf to go any way they wish after they're past the downtown section."

CONGESTION HAZARD

Ald. Edgelow said that as chairman of public works he is opposed to creation of a truck route using Store, Johnson and Wharf Streets. This would only add to congestion at the ferry terminal where Mv. Coho docks and on the Causeway.

He said Government Street merchants also requested regulations covering deliveries to stores in the area before 9 a.m. each day to eliminate a major cause of traffic holdups.

NO LANE SERVICE

Many stores in the area are not served by a lane at the rear where normal daytime deliveries can be made, so that trucks must stop on Government to unload goods.

Ald. Edgelow said he didn't favor Quadra as a truck route, but Vancouver Street may serve almost as well as Cook Street.

The list of projects submitted by the city engineers' department for inclusion in the forthcoming winter works program included seeing money to be spent on a truck route following Store, Johnson and Wharf.

Submarine Purchase Shelved

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's proposed submarine deal with Britain has been shelved, defence officials said Thursday.

No hope of reviving the scheme is foreseen during the government's austerity program.

Defence Minister Harkness announced April 11 that three submarines would be purchased from Britain.

Mac on Market:

U.K. Must Join Or Become Weak Nation

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan told the nation last night Britain must join the Common Market or become a weak nation "in a world of giants."

He appeared on a nation-wide radio and television broadcast to give his views on Britain's proposed entry into the market and the just-ended Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

TRUE STRENGTH

"We shan't find the true strength that we have and ought to have," he declared. "We shan't be able to exercise it in a world of giants."

Commenting on the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, which ended Wednesday, Macmillan said:

EXPRESSED FEARS

"Some of the prime ministers expressed their fears and anxieties at our conference very frankly.

"Politically there was the fear that somehow or other if Britain were to join Europe the Commonwealth would never be quite the same thing again."

ALWAYS CHANGING

But the Commonwealth has never been the same—"it's always been changing, and it's still changing," he said.

Macmillan said he and his British colleagues "reject altogether the view that Britain is faced with the choice between the Commonwealth and Europe.

SIMPLE REASON

"That is not so—and for a very simple reason—the Commonwealth and European Common Market are quite different kinds of organizations.

"Both are developing in a very dramatic way, but both are quite different and the membership of one can help and not hinder the membership of the other."

John D Home, Silent

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker refused comment on his arrival here from the London conference yesterday. But he said a press conference would be held today. He arrived on the same plane with Pakistan's President Ayub Khan, here for a state visit.

Before leaving London, Mr. Diefenbaker termed the Commonwealth debate an "interim conference," and said negotiations have not been completed.

'Victory For Mac'

PARIS (UPI) — The closing communique of the Commonwealth conference appeared to mark a decisive success for Prime Minister Macmillan, French political sources said yesterday.

But they predicted serious difficulties when the Common Market negotiations will resume in October.

Student Blocked

'Nigger, Nigger, Nigger!'

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — James Meredith tried to enroll in the University of Mississippi Thursday but was turned away by Gov. Ross Barnett and left the campus with the students' chant of "Nigger, Nigger, Nigger" ringing in his ears.

Barnett, who only hours before had flown to the campus to take personal charge of the situation, was there to deal with the 29-year-old air force veteran after federal officers escorted him past the thousands of jeering students.

The governor's refusal to admit Meredith was in direct defiance of three federal court orders—including one from the U.S. Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. justice department announced last night three University of Mississippi officials had been ordered to show cause why they should not be cited for civil contempt for refusing to admit a Negro to the university.

U.S. House Votes to Chop Aid to Cuba's Traders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, in a surprise move, voted last night to cut off U.S. foreign aid to any country that trades with Cuba.

The amendment, by Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., was included as a specific provision in President Kennedy's foreign aid bill.

It was approved by voice vote despite warnings from a number of lawmakers that such a move could seriously endanger American relations with the NATO alliance and other countries.

The amendment was even opposed by Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., who is the chief congressional critic of the foreign aid program.

Passman, chairman of the house foreign aid appropriations subcommittee which recommended a $1,100,000,000 cut in the administration's aid bill warned the house that such amendments, without proper committee study and consideration, could do "great damage to the program."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia's military buildup in Cuba was reported continuing at a fast pace yesterday as the Senate voted its support of any action President Kennedy may rule necessary to meet the Communist threat.

City's Last Fan Was on the Job

JOE E. BROWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Comedian Joe E. Brown says Victoria was a "Monkey Tonk" town in 1906 when he played a long-forgotten night club.

"I was doing an acrobatic act there in the spring of 1906—I was just a boy—and we had half a house for our first performance."

The act came on for its second showing of the night and found only eight persons left in the audience.

"We did our first trick and seven more left," said Brown. "One man was sitting there."

Brown's fellow actor announced one trick was going to be cut from the act.

"Then," said Brown, "The man stood up and said: 'Fine, but hurry it up will you—I'm the janitor.'"

UN Plane Crashes 10 Swedes Aboard

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—An unarmed United Nations plane on reconnaissance with 10 Swedish military men aboard crashed Thursday near a Congo-Katanga combat area, UN headquarters was told. A field report from the Congo said there was suspicion that the plane was shot down, but it gave no immediate details.

In Stockholm, a Swedish army staff spokesman said in a statement that there was good hope of finding survivors. He did not say on what the hope was based.

The Stockholm statement said 10 Swedes formed a reconnaissance unit led by Capt. Jan Toll. The spokesman declined to speculate on who might have shot the plane down.

The crash was described as just behind the lines of advanced troops of the central Congolese army in secessionist Katanga province.

Cabinet Quits In Argentina

BULLETIN

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—President Jose Guido said early today the military crisis which erupted into battle yesterday has been settled with the resignation of his entire cabinet.

Loyal military leaders opposed by the army rebels had resigned or returned into retirement, making the settlement appear as a rebel victory.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Government artillery battled a rebel tank column 50 miles from Buenos Aires in the first fighting of Argentina's newest crisis. The rebels then agreed late Thursday night to a temporary truce and negotiations.

President Jose Maria Guido planned an early morning cabinet meeting and the rebel leader, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, was expected to attend.

Guido ordered the truce effective until 1:15 a.m., and the rebel radio told its soldiers to suspend action. The rebel communique said that if its troops got no new orders by the deadline they were to "continue previously planned movements." The deadline passed without immediate word of renewed fighting.

Trekkers Stay At Camp

PRINCETON (CP) — Freedomite Doukhobors threw out advice of their lawyer Thursday and decided to stay encamped here rather than continue a march to the West. (See Page 9)

"We are not going to march into police clubs," said Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, spokesman for the 1,200 Freedomites. "We will stay."

The Freedomites were told Wednesday night by Vancouver lawyer George Herbrik he felt they were within their rights to continue a trek from the Kootenays to the West.

Houses Shaken

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (UPI) —Officials last night were investigating an "explosion or earth tremor" that shook houses in a 20-mile radius. Damage was described as "very slight." No injuries were reported.

Last to Vote First to Topple Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The crucial decision of voting precedence in the new Parliament has been tossed to the incoming Commons Speaker, reliable informants said Thursday.

The matter is vital to the Social Credit and New Democratic parties in determining their position on votes of no confidence.

A solid alignment of the 100 Liberals, 30 Social Credit MPs and 18 New Democrats against the 116 Progressive Conservatives would defeat the government on a no-confidence motion and bring about a new election.

The Liberals, because they are the official opposition, will vote first on no-confidence motions.

The two smaller opposition groups have been jockeying for weeks for the right to vote immediately after the Liberals.

* * *

The party voting second could cast its votes in favor of a no-confidence motion, leaving the third opposition group with the difficult choice of toppling the government with its votes or voting with the Conservatives and keeping the government in office.

* * *

The Liberals have been pressing for a vote of no confidence but Social Credit and New Democrats have given indications they are not anxious for another election this year.

But neither of the smaller opposition groups particularly wants to be placed in the position of voting to keep the Conservatives in office and thus giving political opponents ammunition to use against them.

All three opposition groups severely criticized the Conservatives during the June 18 election campaign that returned a minority Conservative government.

* * *

The question of voting precedence came to a head when Commons officers drew up a tentative seating plan for the Commons chamber.

New Democrats raised a protest on the basis that this indicated that when the voting roll was called the Liberals would vote first, Social Credit second and New Democrats in the unpopular third spot.

New Democrats argued that in two previous Parliaments where there were three opposition parties the party leader with seniority of service in the House voted second even though his group was outnumbered by the third opposition group.

On the basis of these precedents, H. W. Herridge, House leader of the NDP and an MP since 1945, would vote before Social Credit leader Robert Thompson, who was first elected last June.

Surplus Sound Sought

Ears Aimed Under Arctic

By DON GAIN

A sneak attack by enemy submarines, which might glide close to the Canadian coast beneath the Arctic ice, may be a matter of life and death in the event of war.

The detection of these submarines by acoustic methods is the subject of studies going on at Pacific Naval Laboratory, HMC Dockyard.

A. R. Milne, head of Arctic studies group at PNL, and his assistant, J. R. Brown, have just returned from a week's planning at Isaachsen, North West Territory, for a deep winter scientific and oceanographic survey.

The survey will take place between Feb. 5 and March 5, 1963.

Purpose of the expedition is to measure background noises and the cataloguing of their characteristics.

Most of the noises are made by the snap, crackle and pop of the ice when the temperature changes.

Now it is necessary to find out what background noises exist during the winter of total darkness and no solar heat.

Leader of the survey will be physicist Milne, 537 Prince Robert Lane. His team will consist of physicist Brown, 3730 Casey Drive; electrical engineer John Ganton, 1209 Rockcrest; technical officer Thomas Hughes, 1177 Lyall, and driver-mechanic Yvon Perron, Ottawa, Ont.

All but Mr. Perron are employed by PNL.

Travel by Tractor

The group will be flown to Isaachsen by RCAF Hercules C-130 and will set off from there for their base on Prince Gustaf Adolph Sea, near Ellef Ringes Island. Two Bombardier J-5 tractors will be their mode of transportation.

Equipment will be carried in "Wanigans"—huts of plywood-foam-sandwich construction on sleds.

With collapsible canvas shelters for sleeping, kerosene stoves for cooking and heating, the expedition expects to be fairly comfortable in the 40 to 50-degree below zero temperature they will encounter.

The main operation will be to drill holes in the ice, lower hydrophones for listening, and record the background noises on magnetic tape. Four hydrophones, worth $2,500 each, will be used.

To make sure the holes do not seal up with ice, Mr. Milne and two of his associates have devised a long sausage of rubberized fabric which can be inflated. This is kept in place by clamps.

Specifically Designed

Most of the electronic equipment has been constructed at PNL and is specifically designed for this expedition.

Where possible the equipment is transistorized to cut down on weight and power requirements and also to cut down on the noise.

Special clothing, designed by Mr. Milne, will be worn by members of the party. Items consist of parkas, wind pants and mukluks insulated with a knitted nylon pile.

Navigation will be by moon and star shots and radio beacons at Resolute Bay, Isaachsen and Mould Bay. Where possible the headlands can be used for pinpointing.

The experiment will be conducted over the deepest water in the Prince Gustaf Adolph Sea. Ice temperatures will be compared with depth and measurements of local weather conditions will be made. But the principal occupation will be listening.

"It's noises they're after," said Dr. F. H. Sanders, PNL superintendent.

Servants Seeking Bargaining Study

The Canadian Federation of Government Employees organizations is seeking a little "Royal Commision" to study negotiating rights of provincial employees across Canada.

The request, placed before the provincial premiers' conference in Victoria in August, will be a major topic at the annual meeting of the federation here Sept. 22-23.

The organization is asking that a commission of representatives of government, civil service commissions and government employee organizations be set up to study the federation's request that employees be given the right to direct negotiations with government on pay and working conditions.

They also seek the right to arbitration on matters not settled by direct negotiations.

The federation covers provincial employees of all the provinces except Newfoundland and Quebec.

British Railwaymen Call Protest Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's National Union of Railwaymen has called for a countrywide one-day strike of its 370,000 members for Oct. 3, it was announced here Thursday.

The strike was called in protest against the government's current policy of curtailing the services on the nationalized British Railways in order to make them pay.

The strike will hit all the country's train services and the London subway system.

Czech Dilemma

Shaky Economy May Oust Boss

No one would comment on Western speculation these difficulties may have put President Antonin Novotny on the skids.

The state planning commission has received something of a shakeup and now has a new chairman. There are also rumors that Dr. Jaromir Dolansky, one of the founders of the country's Communist party, may also go.

PLANNING CHIEF

He formerly was the government's planning chief and now is a deputy prime minister and member of the Politburo.

Political currents in a country where the party presents virtually an impenetrable wall are almost impossible to define. There does seem to be some popular disenchantment with the present leadership.

During a two-week tour of Czechoslovakia, I was told the Barak affair shocked not only public opinion but many party cadres as well.

Rudolf Barak, one of the party's most able leaders, last year was dismissed from his post as minister of the interior. Earlier this year he was convicted of misappropriating state funds and sentenced to 15 years.

Is political life outside the active part of the party at a standstill as much as it appears to be? Has a crippling apathy overcome the people? Are they weary of ideology?

There are no precise answers. Youths carrying guitars sing American cowboy songs. The young seem more interested in the Twist, motor scooters, love and coffee bars, and they yawn wearily when activists try to kindle Marxist fervor.

Yet there appears to be nothing like a movement among them. The regime has brought higher living standards to a great mass of people.

But people I met purely by chance appeared to want greater freedom of information and public discussion.

And they spoke of a desire to travel beyond the confines of the Soviet bloc. They wanted to visit places like Vienna, Rome, Paris, London, Canada and the United States.

PREPARE WAY

This appears to be the scene as the first general party congress in four years nears. To prepare the way, the party's central committee has circulated a number of documents for discussion by party, trade union and other public organizations before the December meeting.

It will likely be at these sessions that the formal step to scrap the current five-year plan will be taken. In its place will be substituted a plan for 1963, while a new comprehensive plan is being worked out for 1964-70.

PROBABLE RESULTS

These also seem probable outcomes of the December congress:

Farm and factory management will be checked and controlled more closely.

Far greater emphasis will be given to raising agricultural production.

Party rules will be revamped, partly to cut out some of the deadwood and partly to encourage more active participation.

Tomorrow: Agricultural crisis is big worry for government.

Driller Sets Off Charge

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — Four men were injured at the nearby Peace River hydro project Thursday when a driller drilled into an unexploded charge in one of the three diversion tunnels being excavated.

Three of the four men were flown here for treatment.

One Strike Aimed At Second

OTTAWA (CP)—A Marine engineers' strike against Black Ball Ferries on the west coast in 1958 was designed to break another strike there, the federal shipping inquiry was told Thursday.

President Richard Greaves of the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC) said the Black Ball strike was called to force government action in a long walkout on Canadian Pacific Railway ferries.

PATCHWORK

The strike terminated when Premier Bennett invoked action under the Civil Defence Act.

Mr. Greaves, heading a small union whose recent history is a patchwork of legal action and break-away disruption, said that N.A.M.E. personnel and other skilled crew wanted to settle the 10-week strike against the CPR but that the controversial Seafarers' International Union of Canada wanted to keep it going.

APPARENT AIM

Most SIU members had jobs on other ships by that time and the apparent SIU design was to break the N.A.M.E., Mr. Greaves told the inquiry presided over by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of British Columbia.

Basement Damaged By Flames

A fire, believed to have been accidentally started by a child, worked its way through the basement of a home at 665 Burnside last night causing about $500 damage.

A fire department official said the blaze started in a pile of papers.

Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Calgaro, owners of the house, were out when the fire started.

Firemen believe one of the Calgaro children was playing in the basement and touched off the blaze.

Early Diagnosis Necessary To Remedy Intestinal Bleeding

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Doctor: You have written that a very dark or black stool might indicate blood high up in the intestine, but did not explain what such blood would indicate or what examination might or should be made.—R.L.D.

It's a tarry black stool we're talking about, and it is something that ought to disturb a sufferer of it.

Rectal bleeding (such as from piles or other causes) is red, of course. But bleeding farther up in the intestinal system permits chemical action to change the red blood to this black color.

The bleeding may be from any of a number of places: stomach, duodenum, colon. At least, the cause should be ascertained and corrected. At worst, it can be a sign of something highly dangerous—cancer, for example.

Other causes include polyps, and ulcers of stomach or duodenum.

It is true other things can cause a very dark stool—spinach and beet greens are the commonest. In addition, medicines containing iron or bismuth may do so.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend recently told me I shouldn't drink water soon after meals as this would dilute the digestive juices and slow down digestion. Is this true?—M.V.T.

A glass of water after meals isn't going to interfere with digestion. Many foods we eat are 80 or 90 per cent water anyway.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am almost blinded occasionally by lines that look like zigzag neon lights. This has lasted for as long as 15 minutes. Afterward I felt light-headed. Is there anything wrong that needs medical attention?—MRS. R.L.

This certainly sounds as though something is wrong. One possibility is deficient circulation; another is some local eye disease, glaucoma being an example.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 14 and very worried about cancer. There are lumps in both my breasts. Sometimes they get very sore.—P.C.

It is quite unlikely it's cancer, because cancer is extremely rare at your age. Small cysts which can become sore and even enlarge periodically are far more common.

Dyna-Soar Weird Monster

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The weirdest-looking space plane this side of science fiction has been unveiled here by the U.S. air force.

It's the X-20 Dynasoar, scheduled to be blasted into 100-mile-high orbit around the earth by a Titan III booster sometime in 1965.

A model of the triangular shaped black space-glider, 39 feet long and 25 feet across, was shown publicly for the first time at the annual convention of the Air Force Association.

Technical men familiar with sketches and photographs of the X-20 were startled by the vicious ugliness of the full-scale mockup with its upturned wingtips and long snout.

The air force also announced the first six men to fly the X-20. The pilots, all from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., are Maj. Henry C. Gordon, 37; Maj. James W. Wood, 38; Maj. Russell L. Rodgers, 34; Capt. Albert H. Crews, Jr., 33; and Capt. William J. Knight, 33, all of the air force, and Milton O. Thompson, 36, NASA test pilot.

Sometime next year one of these men will be at the controls when the X-20 makes its first test flight at Edwards AFB, home of the X-15 rocket plane.

For these flights, the X-20 like the X-15 will be carried aloft by a B-52 bomber.

Outside Berlin

U.S. Troops Move Freely

BERLIN (UPI)—The U.S. army rolled four troop convoys in 107 vehicles over the superhighway through East Germany yesterday in a pointed new demonstration of Allied rights of access to isolated Berlin. The Russians made no move to stop them.

A total of 286 soldiers moved to or from West Berlin in the latest phase of an operation switching two 1,500-man U.S. battle groups. A new convoy is scheduled for today.

Unlike Wednesday, when the Russians held up one convoy for more than three hours, yesterday's groups were passed through checkpoints on the highway without any abnormal delay, a U.S. army spokesman said.

Other Berlin developments:

● Russian jets again broke through the sound barrier over Berlin, sending sonic booms echoing through the city. This has been a favorite pastime of Russian airmen since the Berlin wall went up. It was believed aimed at frightening the population of West Berlin.

● East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht said in a speech on his return from Romania that the conclusion of a German peace treaty and "eradication of the NATO base in West Berlin" are urgently necessary.

● A Bonn announcement said West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt will meet with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer at the latter's vacation villa in Northern Italy to discuss the latest Soviet moves in Berlin.

Students from U.S. 'Ribald in Russia'

OTTAWA (CP) — A tale of American students in Russia staging nude performances, drunken orgies and ribald singsongs in public was published Tuesday in the Soviet News Bulletin, issued by the Soviet Embassy here.

It carries the report as a reprint from the Sept. 9 Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Communist youth newspaper, which entitled its article Wild Men in the Express Train.

SOME BEHAVED

"Of course, among the 44 American university students there were some well-bred young men and women who behaved quite correctly," the reprint says "But there were also quite enough of hooligans."

Three of the students are identified as Rex Ross, George Discant and Salim Magdi.

LUNATICS?

Ross and Discant, named as California University students, were said to have crouched nude beside the windows of their train compartment banging on the windows to attract attention.

Farmers along the way who saw them "were all quite sure that it was a couple of lunatics being transported to the madhouse."

Among the other incidents it describes:

RIBALD DITTIES

U.S. students turning up at a Moscow railway station "roaring ribald ditties and holding fast to each other like sailors in heavy seas."

"As soon as the train pulled out the wild men tore off their clothes and chased girls."

U.S. Troops Move Freely

BERLIN (UPI)—The U.S. army rolled four troop convoys in 107 vehicles over the superhighway through East Germany yesterday in a pointed new demonstration of Allied rights of access to isolated Berlin. The Russians made no move to stop them.

A total of 388 soldiers moved to or from West Berlin in the latest phase of an operation switching two 1,500-man U.S. battle groups. A new convoy is scheduled for today.

Unlike Wednesday, when the Russians held up one convoy for more than three hours, yesterday's groups were passed through checkpoints on the highway without any abnormal delay, a U.S. army spokesman said.

Other Berlin developments:

● Russian jets again broke through the sound barrier over Berlin, sending sonic booms echoing through the city. This has been a favorite pastime of Russian airmen since the Berlin wall went up. It was believed aimed at frightening the population of West Berlin.

● East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht said in a speech on his return from Romania that the conclusion of a German peace treaty and "eradication of the NATO base in West Berlin" are urgently necessary.

● A Bonn announcement said West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt will meet with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer at the latter's vacation villa in Northern Italy to discuss the latest Soviet moves in Berlin.

Duel Orphans Six

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters)—Six children were orphaned when their parents—married 20 years—killed each other in a gun duel over another woman.

Pants Slow Shirts

WAKEFIELD, England (AP)—Barbara Smith in her skin-tight ski pants almost halted operations at a shirt factory.

The shapely 23-year-old wore them because the wind was cold.

Maintenance mechanics stopped work and complained that her curves distracted them.

Barbara refused to change into a shirt, so the maintenance men were put to work in another part of the factory.

Students from U.S. 'Ribald in Russia'

OTTAWA (CP) — A tale of American students in Russia staging nude performances, drunken orgies and ribald singsongs in public was published Tuesday in the Soviet News Bulletin, issued by the Soviet Embassy here.

It carries the report as a reprint from the Sept. 9 Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Communist youth newspaper, which entitled its article Wild Men in the Express Train.

SOME BEHAVED

"Of course, among the 44 American university students there were some well-bred young men and women who behaved quite correctly," the reprint says "But there were also quite enough of hooligans."

Three of the students are identified as Rex Ross, George Discant and Salim Magdi.

LUNATICS?

Ross and Discant, named as California University students, were said to have crouched nude beside the windows of their train compartment hanging on the windows to attract attention.

Farmers along the way who saw them "were all quite sure that it was a couple of lunatics being transported to the madhouse."

Among the other incidents it describes:

RIBALD DITTIES

U.S. students turning up at a Moscow railway station "roaring ribald ditties and holding fast to each other like sailors in heavy seas."

"As soon as the train pulled out the wild men tore off their clothes and chased girls."

The student Magdi turning up "swinishly drunk" on a train where he "accosted Galya M., a girl conductress."

"The girl sent him about his business with the result that the hooligan spat in her face.

UGLY DYNA-SOAR VEHICLE MOCKUP TOPS GIANT SATURN III.

Dyna-Soar Weird Monster

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The weirdest-looking space plane this side of science fiction has been unveiled here by the U.S. air force.

It's the X-20 Dynasoar, scheduled to be blasted into 100-mile-high orbit around the earth by a Titan III booster sometime in 1965.

A model of the triangular shaped black space-glider, 39 feet long and 20 feet across, was shown publicly for the first time at the annual convention of the Air Force Association.

Technical men familiar with sketches and photographs of the X-20 were startled by the vicious ugliness of the full-scale mockup with its upturned wingtips and long snout.

The air force also announced the first six men to fly the X-20. The pilots, all from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., are Maj. Henry C. Gordon, 37; Maj. James W. Wood, 38; Maj. Russell L. Rodgers, 34; Capt. Albert H. Crews, Jr., 33; and Capt. William J. Knight, 33, all of the air force, and Milton O. Thompson, 36, NASA test pilot.

Sometime next year one of these men will be at the controls when the X-20 makes its first test flight at Edwards AFB, home of the X-15 rocket plane.

For these flights, the X-20 like the X-15 will be carried aloft by a B-52 bomber.

Wrong Again

CANADIAN Chamber of Commerce general manager D. L. Morrell brought some good news to the country in his annual report this year. Canada, he said, has now moved out of the "mild recession" of 1960-61 and is "well along in the subsequent period of recovery."

However, along with his heartening statement, he strongly advised his Chamber members—and presumably every other responsible Canadian—to guard against undermining confidence in Canada during her march back to economic solidity.

His point is well made and it is only to be hoped it will be equally well taken by all Canadians whose interest in their own welfare and the stability of their own country should be paramount, particularly that vociferous segment of the Canadian community led by the country's most petulant and perennially disappointed politician, Mr. Lester Pearson.

There is little doubt that Mr. Pearson will be upset by Mr. Morrell's findings that the Conservative government's forecast of an increase in the country's gross national product of five to six per cent for the year, compared to 1961, will be realized or even exceeded—for the Liberal leader had predicted the reverse.

He will likely be further disappointed in Mr. Morrell's comment that an even better guide to Canada's recovery was contained "in the 8.6 per cent increase in . . . the first quarter of 1962 over a year earlier," because this period covered the very time Mr. Pearson was personally working all-out on his platform of gloom and doom in dispersing prophecies of Canada's imminent economic collapse.

Judging by his latest activities Mr. Pearson has, in fact, finally come to the realization that now all his dire predictions of poverty and hardship for Canadians have proved false he must take a different tack in his anti-government politicking.

His latest efforts therefore have been in the form of making direct and personal attacks upon the prime minister—obviously calculated to embarrass Mr. Diefenbaker during the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

Earlier this week Mr. Pearson accused Mr. Diefenbaker of making a "deplorable display of diplomatic and political gaucherie" at the Commonwealth meeting. He described the prime minister's stand on Britain's entry into the ECM as "carping," "negative," and "sterile".

In attempting to persuade those who listen to him that Canada's prime minister behaved in a tactless and ill-mannered way in London, Mr. Pearson has proved himself to be more than a little ill-informed. The fact is that Mr. Diefenbaker conducted himself in a most proper manner and through his sincerity and desire to avoid a break-up of the Commonwealth, gained the support and admiration of the majority of conference delegates.

One of Britain's most influential Sunday newspapers, The Observer, which editorially is a great champion of Britain's entry into the ECM, had this to say: "If Macmillan's speech had met with applause, the reception accorded 'Dief' was an ovation."

Surely Mr. Diefenbaker would not have received such an ovation from the Commonwealth partners if his behavior had been all that Mr. Pearson has implied.

It seems that the Liberal leader is as inept in this new style of attack as he was in the old.

One Man's Family

SOMETHING new is being added to the American scene with the rising eminence of the Kennedy clan, a royal political dynasty as it were. Nothing like it has happened before.

One Kennedy is at the White House, another is at the helm of jurisprudence as attorney-general, and a third has come into the limelight as a Democratic senatorial candidate in the November elections.

No single family has ever dominated U.S. politics in such emphatic fashion, and it is a measure of the youth, dynamism and appeal of the Kennedys that three members might hold high office at one and the same time.

The youngest of the three, Edward M., is not yet a senator but his chances of election no doubt are considerable. He is reputed to be the ablest speaker of them all and he has apparently imbibed the drive and insight which is a characteristic of the Kennedys in all their political forays.

This is noticeably also an instance of the sons of a rich man, himself a former ambassador, taking up public life as a career, after the fashion of ancient British families which devote themselves to national political service.

Some U.S. observers fear lest a dynasty of this nature might put too much power into the keeping of a single family, but the answer to that rests in the hands of the voters. It seems obvious that the Kennedy clan has captured the imagination of Americans, perhaps because of their youth, their looks, their ability and the glamor they bring to the political scene.

Joseph F. Kennedy certainly has bred some sparkling sons.

A Source of Pride

ACROSS CANADA, Jaycee Week is currently being observed. In Victoria, it seems scarcely necessary. This city's Junior Chamber of Commerce is so active, so constantly and beneficially a vital force in the community, that the young businessmen who are its members and officers leave their imprint on public consciousness every week.

This is an occasion, however, on which they may opportunely be complimented again on their many activities, which have been such as to win them this year the title of the most outstanding Junior Chamber in Canada, as well as first place in several contributing categories of national competition.

In the 35 years of its existence—it was established only three years after the first Canadian unit was formed in Winnipeg in 1924—the Victoria group has contributed much of value to the community, and fulfilled with great and obvious success its main purpose of training its "young men of action" as community leaders. To this laudable history it continues to add fresh laurels and new examples of service to the people of this area, its present tourist survey being but one instance, which Victoria can only regard with pride and gratitude.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax . . ."

By TOM TAYLOR

"TAKE a jet," says the ad, "and wing your way abroad on cushioned speed." Actually on beds of downy clouds, I suppose.

That is how it appears, anyway, high up beyond the inclemency of down below.

For the faster planes go the higher they go, and the result, except for the clouds, is that one might as well shut one's eyes and go to sleep. Travel is simply a means of getting there, not seeing anything en route.

The formation of those white bundles of cotton-wool which comprise the sole scenery, looking downwards and there's only a blank looking upwards, are intriguing. Castles come into focus and dissolve before your eyes. Curious shapes spice the interest.

But only briefly. They pall after a little while, and it pays then to be a good reader or a good sleeper.

* * *

This is because travel has undergone a change of meaning. Once it connoted the conveyance itself, an enjoyment of the process of getting from one place to another. All that was altered when speed was invented.

Thereafter and more than ever today, travel is merely the act of transference from one spot to another.

Even at ground level, as you know, the traveller in a car, if he is the driver, sees little more than a passenger 15,000 feet up in a plane. His vision is tied tightly to a white line, although what a blessing this little device is. For him a scenic highway has small scenic value, even when it is a scenic highway and not simply, as it frequently is, a speedway.

Paradoxically, though, this new aspect of travel, the getting there, has its own special virtue. It is speed that enables the present generation to spread its wings, on the clouds aforementioned, and see places otherwise denied to it.

* * *

There would be none of the crowded ocean aerial traffic, for instance, had not high-speed planes brought Europe and Asia and other centres to Victoria. When one can leave here today and be in Europe or Honolulu tomorrow the stimulus to travel is enormous.

Nothing perhaps has been more advantageous to many people than the facility with which one may nowadays reach an overseas country.

Travel by aircraft is therefore a significant factor of the modern social scene, and if the fares come down substantially they will need traffic policemen in the sky, an idea presaged facetiously in a movie long ago but now with more truth than comedy in it.

If the fares came down enough to make it worthwhile undoubtedly hosts of people would take their annual vacations in far-away and hitherto legendary places. It is the time element that keeps them at home.

This is not a circumstance that appeals to the home tourist industry, naturally, and there is merit in seeing one's own country as well as foreign areas. But distant pastures always seem much greener than familiar fields.

* * *

Some day the holiday exodus may really be stupendous, compensated for only by the two-way exchange that brings people to Canada to fill temporarily the vacancy left by those winging on cushioned speed to foreign lands. There is talk—for example—of supersonic passenger planes that will whisk passengers onwards at around 2,000 miles per hour. At that speed one could reach London from here in just over three hours, so you see that the "travel" aspect, as formerly fashioned, would almost disappear.

One wouldn't have time to enjoy a good snooze, or finish an exciting who-dun-it, at such a pace; which I suppose really wouldn't matter. We are all geared to getting to other places as fast as ever can be, notwithstanding what may be missed en route.

This is the hallmark of the speedy aerial days now in vogue.

"Guess Who"

The Moon Can Wait

A Poor Return to the Scientists

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE

WHEN a distinguished man of science protests against the use to which the achievements of science are being put, the rest of us ought to take his words to heart.

The presidential address at the annual meeting of the British Association gives a spokesman for science his opportunity of speaking to the public about aspects of the scientists' work that are of general human concern. This opportunity was well taken this year by Sir John Cockcroft. But his message was a melancholy one: "World priorities have gone badly wrong."

At the present time the scientists find themselves in an ironical position. Since the first meeting of the British Association, now nearly a century and a quarter ago, science has been winning its triumphs in ever more rapid succession. These are the most amazing achievement of man so far. There seems to be no limit to the scientific mind's ability to wrest Nature's secrets from her; and knowledge is power.

In so far as human beings discover how Nature works, they can put her to work for their own purpose. But for what purposes? That is the question.

* * *

In the contest between Man and Nature, the human power to which Nature is progressively yielding lies exclusively in the scientists' hands. If the scientists were to strike work and to tell the politicians and their constituents to get on with it, these laymen would be about as powerless, face to face with Nature, as our Palaeolithic ancestors were. The scientists are all-powerful and exclusively powerful till they have done their marvellous job of harnessing Nature for Man's use. But, as soon as the harvest is ready to be garnered, the barbarian hordes descend and snatch the sheaves out of the hands of the husbandmen.

The question how the fruits of science are to be used transports the scientists' work into the field of politics, and, in politics, numbers count. The laymen are legion, the scientists are few. The non-scientific majority of the human race are still allowing their political leaders to misuse the fruits of science in traditional ways.

There would have been no fruits to misuse if the scientists had not done their work. In running away with the scientists' achievements, the rest of us are reaping where we have not sown and gathering where we have not strawed; and the tiny scientific minority is powerless to do anything about this politically.

* * *

The most that they can do is what Sir John Cockcroft did the other day. They can seize some occasion on which the public may perhaps pay momentary attention, and they can point out to us how grievously we are misusing grand achievements that we could never have performed for ourselves. The scientists can do no more than cast their bread on the waters. The lay majority alone has the power to see to it that the bread returns, albeit after many days.

It does lie within the power of the politicians' constituents to call the governments to heel. We can, if we will, compel our governments to use the fruits of science in ways worthy of man's scientific genius. Governments always must, sooner or later, do what their constituents want. So long as the peoples of the world go on wanting the gifts of science to be put to uses that are frivolous or pernicious, our governments will continue to behave as they are behaving now.

In his presidential address, Sir John Cockcroft pointed out that the sum that is now being spent annually by the United States government alone for eventually hoisting a man on to the moon would raise the indigent majority of mankind's income per head by 25 per cent if it were directed to this use over a period of 10 years. Presumably the Soviet government is spending about the same amount as the United States government in competing with it in this frivolous moon-race.

Yet what use of the gifts of science could be more perverse? The barren moon can wait, but starving mouths cannot. This use of the power that is snatched so greedily out of the scientists' hands is irrational and inhumane.

* * *

This makes one wonder what use we are going to make of science's latest achievement, Telstar. Communications are of crucial importance in an age of atomic weapons. In this age the human race has the choice between growing together into a single family and committing mass-suicide.

The marvellous new means of communication with which science has endowed us in the nick of time are the very thing needed for enabling all our various tribes to get to know each other; and better acquaintance is the necessary first step towards making friends.

But are we going to use our new scientific means of communication for the purpose that is obviously the first priority on any rational reckoning? Our present use of television and broadcasting is not encouraging—at least in so far as we are handing them over for commercial exploitation. To judge by our record up to date, we seem likely to drift into the jaws of death with our eyes glued to comic strips.

Unfortunately for our prospects, this perversity is not something new in human history. Mankind has been misusing its surpluses ever since it first had surpluses to dispose of; and it is a sad sight to see the two greatest powers in the present-day world running in the same old ruts, with the small fry tagging along behind them. Both the Russians and the Americans ought to know better if there is any substance in the identical claims that they make for their own way of life.

* * *

Communist Russia and pioneer America each claim to have taken a new departure in human history. They claim to have jumped clear of mankind's traditional crimes and follies, and to have dedicated themselves to the creation of an earthly paradise. Unhappily, these proud claims are being given the lie by positive acts. Both powers—and the rest of us too, in so far as we have the resources for imitating them—are using their surpluses in the two traditional ways.

In the past, the world's rulers, with their subjects' acquiescence, have spent most of the surplus at their command on armaments, and the rest of it on frivolities. The oldest and biggest of these frivolities are the Pyramids. There is a story that, when Bernard Shaw set eyes on them, he remarked that he would like to pull them down and break up the stones for building decent houses for the Egyptian peasantry, who have been housed in mud-brick hovels from the pyramid-builders' day to our own. And the Pyramids are only the first in a series of similar royal follies at the common people's expense, down to Louis XIV's pile at Versailles and the imperial palace at Peking. Can the present-day Russians and Americans maintain that they are really behaving any differently from their predecessors?

But isn't there a big enough surplus today to provide for frivolities and for necessities, too? Thanks to science, production is now soaring to unprecedented levels. Cannot we forge weapons capable of wiping out the human race and apparatus for hoisting a man on to the moon, and still have enough left over for feeding the hungry and clothing the naked?

It might be fun if we really do all these things at once, but there is a limit to the amount of the riches that even science can shower on us. The new-fangled armaments and frivolities that we have managed to think up are costly enough to eat up the whole of science's immense additions to our surplus. So we are squandering the surplus in the old perverse way, with no more than a pittance left over for uses worthy of Man's dignity and genius. This is a shameful performance.

The new start that America and Russia have so far failed to make is long overdue. It is in humanity's power to make it. If we fail, we shall have given a poor return to the scientists for the great things that their disinterested work had done for us.

Ice-Box War

Chilling Challenge

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP

FRENCH refrigerator manufacturers are being frozen out of their own home market by Italian competition.

One French firm, which employed 900 workers has already gone under and closed its factory. The French subsidiary of General Motors has decided to lay off nearly 700 employees.

French manufacturers are urging the government to invoke one of the Common Market escape clauses which allows member countries to increase tariffs and introduce quota restrictions to protect particular industries suffering acutely from competition within the Market. But the French government, which regards the honoring of Common Market obligations and the abolition of most quota restrictions as proof of France's economic recovery, is anxious to avoid asking for special treatment. Instead it has asked the Common Market commission in Brussels to investigate the "mystery" of the low price Italian ice-box onslaught.

The investigators must decide whether the Italians are using fair means in producing refrigerators 30 per cent cheaper than their French competitors. French prices have come down appreciably since the Italian invasion began last year, but the Italian machines are still beating the home-produced article for price.

The Italian exporters have clearly used this advantage to gain a strong foothold by offering French distributors unusually attractive commissions.

French manufacturers deny there is any miracle about the Italian success. They mutter darkly about poorly-paid child labor imported into the industrial north from Sicily. They also maintain that the Italians use cheaper materials.

The French, however, cannot escape the fact that, while there are only four refrigerator manufacturers in Italy, France has 85 different makes. The biggest French firms do not produce more than 150,000 units a year. The Italian firms are operating at the optimum production level of 250,000 to 400,000 a year.

Whatever the findings of the Common Market investigators, small firms in France are in for a very cold time indeed.

Closing the Gap

By BOB MANSFIELD

ONE of the most stimulating experiences in Africa today is a visit to one of the universities. Here, one almost gets the physical feel of a vibrant enthusiasm and hope affecting students and staff alike. And yet, in its way, the commonplace sight of some ambitious man or woman, sitting on the step of a hut, earnestly studying a reading primer, is equally stirring.

But how to close the gap between the two? That is the great problem of Africa. For it has been estimated that, in that continent of something like 230 million people, only one in six is getting any education. The great hope is that, by local energy and self-sacrifice, and with substantial outside help, every child in Africa will be getting some sort of education 20 years from now.

* * *

Last month in London, I saw an inspiring Commonwealth effort to help to achieve that target. On the eve of their departure for Nigeria, 70 teachers from all over Britain were being addressed by Sir Andrew Cohen, former governor of Uganda and now director-general of Britain's Department of Technical Co-operation.

The teachers were going to spend their vacation conducting refresher courses for about 1,000 Nigerian teachers.

This Nigerian operation is the second of its kind. Last year 55 British teachers went to Nigeria. Britain paid for their outfitting and return fares, and Nigeria paid for their living and travelling expenses. Nigeria benefited from the contribution of the teachers, and the teachers were enriched by their experiences. It was a mutually beneficial piece of team-work.

Education has always been a fruitful field for Commonwealth co-operation, and this has been particularly true during the past three years. In July, 1959, the first Commonwealth Education Conference was held in Oxford. From that conference sprang the Commonwealth Education Liaison Committee, which acts as a forum at top level for the various schemes of educational assistance. Along with the committee, an Education Liaison Unit was set up "to supplement the normal bilateral contacts between the national agencies in Commonwealth countries and to facilitate the matching of needs with resources."

* * *

The first director of the unit is Dr. V. S. Jha, formerly vice-chancellor of the Banaras Hindu University in India. This energetic leader has contributed much to the common cause, and one of the first tasks he undertook was an eight-month tour of Commonwealth countries to assess needs.

The Oxford conference was followed by another in New Delhi, earlier this year, and as a result the whole impetus of Commonwealth educational co-operation has been quickened.

Of course, there was a wide range of co-operation throughout the Comonwealth before the Oxford conference, and one can do little more in a single article than touch on the various aspects. The help given to the developing countries in the field of education, under the schemes deriving from the Oxford conferences, represent only a small part of Britain's total technical co-operation effort. Under the various regional programs of technical assistance, such as the Colombo Plan and the Special Commonwealth African Assistance Plan, Britain, under bilateral technical assistance arrangements provides at its own expense the services of British experts and advisers and provides training in Britain in a variety of subjects and types of skill for employees of the governments and statutory authorities of the developing countries.

The details of the schemes for educating students would fill a volume. Suffice it to say that there were some 36,000 Commonwealth students in Britain alone last year, and that most other member countries have schemes, particularly Canada, Australia, New Zealand and India.

One can do no more than mention the capital assistance given by Britain and other advanced countries to the developing countries, and to their efforts in providing higher and technical education and library supplies. In such operations private enterprise has played an important part.

* * *

It is my aim to underline the human and vital aspects of teacher supply and teacher training.

Something like 2,500 teachers go out from Britain every year to Commonwealth countries and the National Council for the Supply of Teachers Overseas has been established for the express purpose of devising means to encourage British teachers to serve overseas, and to encourage their British employers to release them for such service on favorable terms.

On the teaching-training side of the account Britain has had for some years more than 700 students from Commonwealth countries in teacher-training establishments, and after the Oxford conference Britain set up a teacher-training scheme providing an average of 400 bursaries a year to cover the cost of teacher-training students.

But great as is the effort to help, it still falls far short of the need. That is why voluntary schemes such as the teachers for Nigeria are so important.

"You wouldn't hurry. It's not the President. A lady lost her bikini."

The Packsack

Hazy Notions

By GREGORY CLARK

AT OUR lunch table, we were talking about our holidays the past summer, and one of us told of his disappointment on returning to a resort hotel he had visited for several years, until four years ago.

"It had gone down terribly," he said. "The same people were operating it. But it was shabby; sort of worn out."

We others recollected similar experiences. A bank manager in our party then related that a few years back he had managed a bank in a small town in the resort country.

"I had numerous dealings with the people who run summer hotels and camps," he said. "Hardly any of them were business people. They had only the haziest notion of business. They invested all their capital, and maybe all their relatives' and friends' capital, in a most attractive lodge. Anybody of imagination can dream up a beautiful lodge. But they then proceeded to live on the income, putting nothing or next to nothing back into the capital investment in the way of maintenance, upkeep, repairs. In the course of a few years, the place was so run down that the income dwindled to the point that it was longer sufficient for their needs, let alone undertaking any renovation. That is the story of too many summer hotels and camps. It takes a real business head to run a resort profitably."

Reds Tighten Grip on Brazilian Students

By LOUIS B. STEIN
From Rio de Janeiro

Communists are tightening control over Brazilian university students.

New student agitation throughout Brazil is predicted in the wake of the election of a Communist-leaning 21-year-old economics student to presidency of the National Students Union (UNE).

Students are expected to do everything in their power to push the government of President Joao Goulart further left.

Upon inauguration as student union president, Vinicius Caldeira Brant proclaimed a student strike to press congress to let one-third of the members of all university governing bodies be students.

* * *

Goulart's leftist cabinet endorsed student demands that they have a bigger vote in control of universities.

(Packing of university governing bodies with leftist students is one of the tactics Communists employ throughout Latin America to great advantage. It gives them influence out of proportion to their numbers, over both the student body and university professors.)

The student convention that elected Brant was held in the the resort city of Petropolis, on a lake in the mountains, a 90-minute drive from Rio.

* * *

The convention was mainly a Communist show. Hall of Quitandinha Hotel, where the convention was held, echoed with improvised samba lyrics hailing Fidel Castro and Nikita Khrushchev and deriding "Yanqui" imperialism.

Democratic students attempting to distribute anti-Communist literature were barred by force.

* * *

Several were beaten and seriously injured by UNE goon squads. Two were shot.

* * *

A manifesto to the nation issued by the Alianca Democratica Estudantil (Democratic Student Alliance) charged that the leftists "dare to use physical violence against their opponents because they know the president of the republic (Joao Goulart) protects and supports their cause."

It also said they know Education Minister Roberto Lira will continue allocating 400,000,000 cruzeiros (about $1,000,000) per year to the UNE "which is the only reason it continues to survive."

* * *

Lira was among national figures who addressed the Quitandinha convention. Others were Leonel Brizola, U.S.-hating governor of Rio Grande do Sul; Francisco Juliao, Fidelista leader of the Rural Leagues (Ligas Camponeses); and former foreign minister Francisco Santiago Dantas who renewed diplomatic relations with Russia.

Brant, a student at the University of Minas Gerais, is a member of the Juventude Universitaria Catolic (Catholic University Youth). But his expressed ideas reflect the Communist party line.

He said he would like a socialist government in Brazil modelled on the governments of Cuba and Yugoslavia. He branded the "Alliance for Progress" an "ill-disguised form of neo-colonialism."

BACKGROUND

Junk Dealers Sell Coins—By Pound!

By LOUIS B. STEIN
From Rio de Janeiro

Inflation has its oddities in Brazil.

The metal in Brazilian coins is worth more than the specie. Junk dealers collect coins and sell them by weight. Tailors use them as a base for cloth-covered buttons.

Vending machines have become obsolete. It is too expensive to constantly alter them to keep pace with rising prices.

* * *

Brazilian money is depreciating at a rate of 100 per cent a year. In September, 1961, the cruzeiro was quoted at 290 to the dollar. Last week it fell to 600 to the dollar on the free market.

Internal inflation is not as bad as external devaluation of the monetary unit but is increasing at a rate of about 60 pr cent per year.

Plans are being made to issue 10,000-cruzeiro notes. The largest note at present in circulation is 1,000 cruzeiros.

A few years ago large transfers between banks could be effected with suitcases. Today trucks do the job.

Money in circulation has risen from 15,000,000,000 cruzeiros in 1942 to 389,000,000,000 today.

It costs no more to print a 10,000-cruzeiro note than a 1,000-cruzeiro note. About two-thirds of the money now in circulation is in 1,000-cruzeiro notes.

But the real problem is not printing money, but stabilizing its value.

Japan Communists Going Underground

By EDWARD NEILAN
From Tokyo

The Japanese government says there is evidence that the Japan Communist party is "going underground."

A poor showing in the recent House of Councillors election in which the Communists managed to add only one seat, raising their total to four, was one of the factors cited.

The move to secrecy also was believed to foreshadow a tightening of discipline within the party and possibly a purge of scapegoats for the poor election showing.

* * *

A justice ministry report estimates Communist party strength in Japan at 90,000 or about double the 1959 figure.

According to the report, the Japan Communist party is pushing the organization of a "unified democratic peoples front" and trying to link the movement to its political struggle against "American imperialism" and "Japanese monopoly capitalism." This tactic worked to the Communists' immense satisfaction during the 1960 anti-Eisenhower demonstrations.

Japan Communist party activities among students continue with a unification of the liaison council of Students Autonomy Associations (Zenjiren) planned through a build-up of the Democratic Youth League (Minseido).

The report said Minseido has about 70,000 members of which 16,000 are Reds. All of its central executive committee members are members of the Communist party.

* * *

The report said 13.58 per cent of the Japan Communist party membership is comprised of factory workers, 12.75 per cent public workers and 10.51 per cent general laborers.

Of about 16,800 JCP members now employed in public offices, the report said, 39 per cent are working at such key enterprises as the Japan National Railways, Postal Services Ministry and Nippon Telephone and Telegraph Corp.; 32 per cent are school teachers; 19 per cent local officials; and 10 per cent are employed in courts or other government offices.

Latin America Survey

Reds Gaining Ground

A study of Communist propaganda activities in Latin America has been prepared by the U.S. Information Agency.

The facts and conclusions revealed in the report do not fully bear out the summation that "the success (of Communism) was minimal from the overall point of view.

"The Sino-Soviet bloc and local Communists were somewhat successful working with other leftist or liberal (though non-Communist) groups, and in working through 'front groups,'" the report states, adding:

"In countries where the Communist party was legal, the Communist press was sometimes able to put forth a direct, hard-hitting, sensational approach to the working people and lower classes," who form the majority of the population.

* * *

Current U.S. estimates are that there are now around 285,000 Communist party members in Latin America. Mexico, with an estimated total of 76,000, divided between the Communist party and the Socialist Popular party, has the largest group of Marxist-Leninists. Argentina, with an estimated 50,000, Brazil with 40,000, Venezuela with 30,000, and Cuba with over 27,000, follow in that order. Peru has between 5,000 and 7,000.

If correct, these figures indicate that Communist party strength increased slightly in the last year.

* * *

The report states that primary objectives of the Communist propaganda offensive in Latin America are "undermining of U.S. prestige" and "more favorable government attitudes toward relations with the bloc."

There was ample evidence, though, tending to show some Latin governments are becoming more receptive to Red overtures.

Brazil was the most important Latin nation to increase its ties with the Communist bloc, establishing diplomatic ties with Russia and four Red satellites in 1961. That raised the total of Sino-Soviet bloc diplomatic missions operating in Latin America to 34, in eight countries.

Brazil also signed commercial and technical agreements with Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland and Rumania. Argentina, too, signed trade agreements with those countries, and Czechoslovakia, besides.

* * *

The U.S. intelligence estimate took note of the fact that the Communists exploited "most fully" newspapers and magazines in their efforts to spread the Red line. Without including Cuba, where the Communist government dominates the press, locally-produced Communists and pro-Communists newspapers and magazines in Latin America numbered 350.

Communist short wave broadcasting from Russia, China, and Cuba and even East Germany to Latin America increased. Now some 336 hours of Red propaganda programs, many of them overlapping, are directed at Latin America each week.

Peking Requests Moscow To Close Its Consulates

BONN (Reuters) — Communist China has asked the Soviet Union to close down its consulates on Chinese territory, the West German News Agency said yesterday.

Quoting "reliable non-Soviet sources," its correspondent in Moscow said the Chinese request "signifies a new sharpening in the relations between Moscow and Peking in the view of Western observers."

Reciprocal Soviet action could be expected, he added.

He said the reason given for the request to close the consulates was that there were not enough Soviet citizens living in China to justify maintaining consulates.

Communist China has consulates in several Far Eastern cities of the Union.

Massive Deal In Royalite At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Weakness gripped the stock market as the industrial list took its most severe pounding in two months.

International Nickel dropped 2⅝ to 62, in a continuation of a decline that began when the company announced a reduction in its nickel output.

Gatineau slipped to 28⅝—lowest price of 1962—before rising to 28⅞, down 1⅛. Shawinigan fell ⅝ amid moderately active turnover.

Most active industrial issue was Royalite Oil, showing a whopping 68,000-share volume—much of this coming in a special transaction in which 64,580 shares changed hands at $15 net. The stock remained unchanged on the day, closing at 14⅝.

Among base metals, Steep Rock declined 20 cents to a 1962 low of $4.50. Falconbridge fell ⅛ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting and Denison ⅛ each.

In the speculative market, Newnorth Mines continued its recent decline, falling 19 cents to 40 cents. Other active issues included Nealon, Tormont and Bibis Yukon—all showing slight drops.

Western oils saw losses of ⅜ to Dome and Great Plains Development. Hudson's Bay fell ⅛, while Calgary and Edmonton and Pacific Petroleum rose ⅛ and ¼ respectively.

Nickel Plunges

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks fell sharply.

The Quebec power companies again dropped lower following Wednesday's announcement by Quebec Premier Lesage of a provincial election on the issue of expropriating the province's privately-owned power companies.

Shawinigan fell ⅛ to 24⅝ in heavy trading and Gatineau Power was off 1⅛ at 28⅝. Quebec Power fell ½ to 30.

International Nickel plunged 2⅝ to 62 among base metals. Aluminium was off ⅜ at 23. Trans-Canada Fund fell ½ to 8. CPR lost ⅜ to 21½ and Bell Telephone lost ⅜ to 48⅛.

Canadian Oil fell ⅜ to 41⅜ in unusually heavy trading after rising to 42⅝ Wednesday morning. Canadian Husky fell ⅛ to 6.

Papers were higher. Great Lakes rose a point to 17 and MacMillan added ¼ to 19. Among industrials, Hudson's Bay Company was unchanged.

In mines, Mount Pleasant fell 10 cents to $1.93. Interprovincial Dredging added three cents to 30 cents and Fab rose two cents to 14½ cents.

Fall on Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP)—A gust of late selling sent a moderately declining stock market to a sharp loss.

The news background was mixed. Although it included a gain in department store sales and a scheduled rise in auto output, it also showed downward fluctuation in new orders for durable goods and Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon's statement that the prospective U.S. budget deficit will not be inflationary.

Since fear of inflation has been one of the major forces behind the bull markets in recent years, this statement was no tonic for Wall Street.

IBM slipped 3⅛, Litton Industries ⅜, and Xerox 4⅛. Du Pont dropped 1⅛. Union Carbide 1⅜, American Smelting 1⅜, International Nickel 2⅝, and American Telephone ⅜.

Rally in MacMillan

VANCOUVER — MacMillan-Powell rallied to 19 and Canadian Collieries were stronger at 6⅛. Royalite was active at 14⅝.

Mines were dull with Western and Granduc slightly easier. Peso Silver was off 5 cents at 1.45. Kamloops was top trader closing at .09½.

Fargo at 2.75 rose among oils but Central Del Rio was off 20 cents at 6.45.

Taxes May Dry Up Capital for Canada

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

A valuable source of U.S. risk capital for Canadian industry is in danger of curtailment as a result of President Kennedy's tax bill now in the final phases of congressional consideration.

The U.S. bill aims to plug a tax loophole which now exists for foreign mutual funds — most of them Canadian — by increasing the tax liability on capital gains from the current 25 per cent to the normal income tax rate.

ORDINARY TAX

The mutual funds under fire do not normally distribute earnings, and no tax is payable on them unless the shareholder sells his shares, when he pays 25 per cent on capital gain.

The bill proposes that ordinary income tax would apply on the sale of shares unless the funds regularly distribute 90 per cent of their earnings to the shareholders.

LOSE APPEAL

In either case the foreign-owned U.S. mutual funds would lose much of their appeal to investors.

Ten of the 13 funds registered with SEC are Canadian, and between them they hold about $370,000,000 of Canadian shares.

The popularity of these funds in the U.S. has provided Canadian industry with much needed equity capital in recent years, and it has been doubly advantageous in that the mutual funds holding these shares have not normally interfered in the management of the Canadian companies whose shares they own.

HOME PRICES DROP

Home ownership in Vancouver does not appear to have been a profitable investment over the past few years.

The Canadian Realtor, official magazine of the real estate industry reports that the new house market in Vancouver is soft and that prices are down from recent years.

It quotes the case of a Richmond ranch bungalow with three bedrooms and a car port which sold for $13,995 in 1955 and re-sold in 1961 for $9,000.

Improved Outlook Pays Youths

Good behavior and a changed outlook have paid off for three Victoria youths convicted of a year-old breaking and entering charge.

Magistrate William Cutler suspended sentence and placed the youths on probation for one year under bonds of $500 each. He said deciding factors were favorable probation reports and recommendations from the employers of two of the youths.

Douglas Rowbottom, 219 Regina, and Brian Kochems, 3125 Earl Grey, both 19, were convicted of breaking and entering. Richard Clayton Gillies, 21, 2831 Murray, was found guilty of possession of stolen property.

'Lack of Able Men Caused U.K. Crisis'

CALGARY (CP) — Great Britain is in economic trouble today because of its education system and the perpetuance of social classes, the British trade commissioner to Alberta said Wednesday.

Ronald Latham said the country was not able to produce the dynamic economy it needed after the Second World War because its schools could not provide industry with men of imagination and drive.

Spend $145,000,000

Tourist Record

KELOWNA (CP) — Recreation Minister Westwood said Thursday tourist spending in British Columbia would likely be in the vicinity of $145,000,000 this year, topping last year's high of $115,000,000.

Mr. Westwood told the annual convention of the B.C. Tourist Association here mail inquiries from the government travel bureau in the first six months of the year showed a 38.5 per cent increase over last year.

BOOKINGS UP

The minister said in the Peace River district this year's traffic has increased 40 per cent and motel bookings are up 15 per cent.

The number of tourist cars going to Penticton, Kelowna and Vernon totalled 2,955,793 compared with 2,206,172 before the Rogers Pass route opened. The Kamloops area tourist boost was about 35 per cent.

Since the opening of the pass, 3,800 cars a day have been travelling the route, amounting to a 25 per cent increase in provincial tourist traffic.

ABOUT DOUBLE

Mr. Westwood said the combination of the Rogers Pass and the Seattle world's fair may result in 3,000,000 tourists passing through the province by the end of the year.

"This is about double the population of B.C. . . . "

"None of us can sit back with the thought someone else is going to do the work," said Mr. Westwood. "This would be both shortsighted and dangerous. British Columbians aren't the only ones who like to see tourists."

PHILIPS

This new 1963 Philips TV will still be going steady by the time she is

(Monitron Control is the reason why)

How long will it be before the pigtails disappear? Quite a while. And chances are your Philips MONITRON Control TV set will still be giving you dependable performance. How do we know? Because of a new TV discovery!

Philips electronic experts decided to do something about a common household fault that often results in premature failure of the picture tube and other expensive TV parts. This common fault is power surge. To licit this problem, our experts developed the MONITRON, a small but incredibly sensitive electronic device which prevents these power surges reaching and damaging the expensive parts of your Philips set. Because of this added protection Philips has increased its picture tube warranty to 2 full years.

MONITRON control and the 2 year picture tube guarantee are Philips exclusives. Yet there's more to Philips MONITRON Control TV than dependability. There's beauty. The beauty of fine-furniture styling with a rich, custom-crafted look that deserves an honoured place in your home.

Your nearby Philips dealer will be glad to show you Philips MONITRON Control TV . . . and you'll be glad to meet him. We picked him for his courtesy, his integrity, his ability, and his willingness to provide responsible "Follow-Through" service. Quality, Service, Guarantee . . . put them all together and you have a new concept in television—a set that gives better performance, longer. We call it QSG. You'll call it wonderful. Police Upholding Law When Sons Halted

Police action to halt 700 Doukhobors marching on Aggasiz was taken to prevent an expected breach of the law, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday.

He was replying to criticism that authorities had interfered with people's rights to freedom of movement.

Police action was taken, he said, "to prevent a reasonably anticipated breach of public order."

The Doukhobors were halted by police near Princeton earlier this week but have since been told by their lawyer they should resume their march.

Mr. Bonner said the anticipation of lawlessness was based on the marchers' stated intention to join relatives and friends in the Aggasiz federal Doukhobor prison.

The marchers had no permission to visit the penitentiary and to trespass there would be an offence, he added.

He said it was also feared that the presence of so many persons in a small community could interfere with the enjoyment of property and thus constitute a criminal offence.

If the march continues he said, individuals will be held responsible for their actions.

A fishing derby for the blind will be sponsored by the Capital City Yacht Club Saturday at Sidney.

About 40 blind people in 17 boats will leave Clark's Boat House at 10 a.m. and fish until 3:30 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded for the biggest and smallest fish of the day and afternoon tea will be served in the clubhouse.

Victoria Press Gives $2,500 To United Appeal Drive

Victoria Press has boosted by 14 per cent its corporate donation to this year's United Appeal drive.

At a brief ceremony yesterday, company vice-president and campaign deputy chairman J. Stuart Keate presented campaign chairman Justin Harbord with a cheque for $2,500.

Mr. Keate urged employees to give the campaign full support. He said sudden change of status of B.C. Electric to a Crown company means the appeal will lose an annual corporation gift of $7,500, the power company's usual donation.

This, he said, increased the responsibility of United Appeal supporters to make sure the campaign achieved its objective of $360,000 to provide operating capital for 23 health, welfare and family service agencies in Greater Victoria.

Mr. Harbord said both company and employee donations from Victoria Press in the past have been held up as examples of the type of support appeal campaigners hope to receive from other companies and employee groups.

City Carriers Fined $25 In Saanich

Two Victoria firms were fined $25 each and ordered to pay a $10 licence fee for delivering goods in Saanich without a licence, in Saanich police court yesterday.

Both Heaney Cartage and Storage, and Island Freight Services Ltd., pleaded guilty to the charge.

Humber Bros. Furniture Ltd. also pleaded not guilty and were remanded until Sept. 27.

Farm School Alumnae Hold Reunion

About 80 former students of Prince of Wales Fairbridge Farm School near Duncan will hold their first reunion in West Vancouver next Wednesday.

Another 60 will gather at Holyrood House, Victoria, Sept. 29. The Fairbridge Society in England opened the school in 1935 to help young British emigrants to Canada receive a good education here.

The school closed in 1950 and its property is now used for farming and forestry.

'Razor Blade' Remanded For Week

OTTAWA (UPI) — Maj.-Gen. Arturo (The Razor Blade) Espaillat, former chief of security in the Dominican Republic, was remanded one week without plea Thursday when he appeared in court on a charge of possessing an unregistered firearm.

Espaillat, who charged Wednesday the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency helped assassinate his former boss, dictator Rafael Trujillo, will appear in magistrate's court next Thursday.

If convicted, the maximum penalty will be a fine.

Meanwhile, the state department denied the U.S. was involved in Trujillo's assassination in May of last year.

IWA Chief Unopposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Moore, 37, western regional president of the International Woodworkers of America was unopposed when nominations closed Thursday.

Local balloting over the next six days could technically upset his nomination because of the system of write-in votes, but is thought unlikely. Terms are for two years.

Crash Kills One

EDMONTON (CP) — One man was killed and another person suffered minor injuries Wednesday when an oil tank truck collided with a car and burst into flames on Highway 16 about 12 miles east of here.

The dead man, believed to be the driver of the truck, was not immediately identified.

Imlach Threatens Punitive Action As Leafs Rebel Over Western Trip

PETERBOROUGH—On the eve of their departure for a Western Canada tour, Toronto Maple Leafs are facing a a possible player insurrection. Giving official recognizance to reports that all was not well in the camp of the Stanley Cup champions, general-manager Punch Imlach warned yesterday that any rebellion by his players would be met by tough action.

Imlach said he would throw the book at any player who refuses to make the trip.

"If they have any ethics, they will go West," he told Canadian Press. "If they don't, I'll throw everything at them from suspension to a $500 fine. Only three guys have walked out of training camp since I've been with the Leafs. That's not going to happen again."

Although all the regulars in camp took part in last night's exhibition game against Hull-Ottawa of the Eastern Professional League, there still was no assurance at last reports that the Leafs would agree to go West.

UNDECIDED

"I'll decide that when I get home," high-scoring Frank Mahovlich said last night.

Mahovlich walked out of the camp a few days back. He returned but he says he hasn't spoken to Imlach since.

Many other Leafs are also disgruntled about starting the tour without having signed their contracts. Almost all are asking for more money, perhaps encouraged by the lush contract given veteran Doug Harvey by New York Rangers, but Imlach so far hasn't given an inch.

Hockey Roundup

Olmstead Goes Home

Bert Olmstead, 36-year-old leftwinger drafted from the Toronto Maple Leafs, has refused to play for the New York Rangers and probably has ended a National Hockey League career which began in 1950.

Olmstead's refusal to play with the Rangers doesn't stem from any financial disagreement with his new owners.

"I can still play in spots for a contending team." Olmstead said in a frank appraisal of his abilities, "but I can't carry a poor club any more. The Rangers want me to fire them up and if I was capable of doing it I would but I can't."

Olmstead flew into Vancouver yesterday to give his decision to manager-coach Muzz Patrick in person, was scheduled to fly back to his home in Sceptre, Sask., yesterday. It was reported that the Rangers had offered him as much as $21,000 for the season.

Defensive problems for Portland Buckaroos were all but ended yesterday by the acquisition of two new defencemen, both young and both capable.

Best news for the Buckaroos came when Boston Bruins announced they were sending Dallas Smith to the Portland club.

Smith, who'll be 21 in October, played the full 1960-61 season with the Bruins and spent most of last season with Pittsburgh in the American Hockey League.

Also due to join the Buckaroos is Martin Howe, who played the last half of last season with the San Francisco Seals on option from Toronto Maple Leafs.

* * *

Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League yesterday listed 17 players who will be with the club for an exhibition tour of Western Canada.

Making the trip are goalkeepers Gilles Boisvert and rookie Harrison Gray, defencemen Gordon Strate, Wayne Muloin, Keith Walsh, Lou Marcon and Jack Turner, and forwards Warren Hynes, Chuck Holmes, Don Chiz, Dennis Kassian, Forbes Kennedy, Bob Dillabough, Dennis Rathwell, Larry Lunde, Lyle Porter and Tom Burgess.

* * *

Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League have suspended defenceman Fred Hucul for not reporting to training camp by yesterday's 3 p.m. deadline. Hucul demanded a three-year contract and said that he and the Stampeders are "miles apart."

Meanwhile, the Stampeders did succeed in signing defenceman George McAvoy and forward Bert Fizzell.

* * *

Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, 8-1, last night. Regulars Eddie Litzenberger, Ron Stewart, Red Kelly, Dick Duff and George Armstrong each scored once while Frank Mahovlich had three assists and Dave Keon and Al Stanley had two.

* * *

Boston Bruins cut their squad to playing size yesterday with the announcement that four players were being sent to other clubs.

Going to Kingston of the EPHL are goalkeeper Bruce Gamble and defenceman Ed Westfall. Defenceman Dallas Smith was sent to Portland and forward Terry Gray will go to a club as yet unnamed.

Portland Firepower Could Test Rangers

Hal Laycoe's Portland Buckaroos are reputed to have one of the greatest collection of goal-scorers in the history of the Western Hockey League. Monday night at Memorial Arena, Laycoe gets a chance to test his tigers against big leaguers.

Competition will come from New York Rangers, who are training in Vancouver and wheting their appetites for the National Hockey League with exhibitions against WHL teams. Tonight they play their farm club, Vancouver Canucks, in Nanaimo.

THE HEADLINERS

Talk of the Rangers and you immediately think of two men—goalie Gump Worsley and right winger Andy Bathgate. They've both been making headlines in the NHL for years, and they'll both see action Monday.

Worsley, the rubber man, often took the brunt of the blame when things weren't going right for the Rangers. But he always came back to play goal, and he was there last year as the club made the playoffs.

Bathgate was trigger man on what critics claim was the best line Rangers had last season—Bathgate, Earl Ingarfield and Dean Prentice. This year Rangers have grabbed centre Bronco Horvath from Chicago and are hoping for even better things than last season.

INCLUDES ANDY

Their lineup of the moment looks like this:

Laycoe, with Don Head back in the nets, will probably team Mike Donaldson and Bill Davidson, Al Merlo and rookie Martin Howe on defence.

STRENGTH IS HERE

At the moment he's got enough forwards for four lines. Art Jones, Gordie Fashoway and Arnie Schmautz form one. Ken Lauffman, Bill Saunders and Tom McVie another, Doug Anderson, Tom McCarthy and Orv Tessier a third. George Knipelberg, Ed Dudych and Arlo Goodwin form No. 4.

Game time is 8:30.

If there were still pennant hopes in Minnesota and San Francisco, they must have died last night.

Neither New York Yankees nor Los Angeles Dodgers were scheduled yesterday, but both clubs gained ground in their drive toward a world series date as their only competition took a beating.

San Francisco Giants blew a ninth-inning lead and lost, 5-4, to St. Louis Cardinals. They now trail the Dodgers in the National League by four games, with nine left for each team. Minnesota Twins lost, 5-1, to Detroit Tigers, now trail the Yanks by 4½ games with seven left to play compared to eight for New York.

THEY BLEW IT

In both cases, they had the game and couldn't hold it.

A balk by pitcher Dick LeMay brought home the tying run for the Cards, and after Don Larsen walked Bill White intentionally, Ken Moyer lined a game-winning single to break an eight-game Cardinal losing streak.

Twins let in three unearned runs in the first inning after an error by first-baseman Vic Power. From there Phil Regan and Terry Fox held off the Twins and Al Kaline ruined them with three hits, including a two-run homer off loser Jim Kaat in the fifth.

While the mighty struggled in vain at the top of the leagues, New York Mets moved two steps closer to a record nobody wants.

Mets lost a doubleheader, 7-2 and 5-4 in 12 innings, to Houston Colts. In the process they tied the 1935 Boston Braves as the losingest team in modern National League history with 115 defeats.

Hal Smith's 12th-inning single gave the Colts the second game. The first one they got courtesy of the Mets, who committed five errors for six unearned runs.

In other National League action, Pittsburgh Pirates stopped Cincinnati, 4-3, spoiling Bob Purkey's bid for a 23rd victory, and Philadelphia split with Chicago, winning 3-1 and losing 4-1.

Sgt. Zwolak Wins Service Aggregate

Sgt. Ed Zwolak of PPCLI won the service match aggregate at Heal's Range yesterday as 90 top marksmen competed in the opening round of 14th annual Pacific Command Rifle Association meet.

Zwolak and Pte. Dave Moffat of PPCLI both finished the six service matches with an aggregate score of 257x300, but there is no shoot-off for aggregate honors, and Zwolak won on a countback.

The service match aggregate, together with the service conditions aggregate and the all-comers aggregate, combine to form the top competition of the meet, the service rifle championship.

Service conditions aggregate will be decided today from the results of the Queen's medal matches. Also scheduled are shoots with the light machine gun, the nine-millimetre Sten gun, the services six team match and the four-man fire and movement match.

There is a little hope for Sooke to Sidney waterfront fishermen this weekend.

Salmon net fishing at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait was only allowed for three days this week and will be for only three days next week, instead of the five full days of the past two weeks.

All net fishing stopped at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The fence of nets across the entrance to the Strait was lifted and the schooling coho started to seep through. It takes about two days for them to reach the Sooke waters, which should place some coho at Sooke about Friday night and see them moving along the Victoria waterfront for the weekend.

Sports fishermen will get their crack at the coho for the weekend, but they won't be easy to catch. The schools get broken up by the nets and two days doesn't allow much time for re-schooling. They will likely be scattered and temperamental and with an abundance of feed available, may be reticent to take artificial lures.

Jacksprings have been fairly plentiful at Oak Bay, Pedder and Becher Bay.

Commercial fishermen have found only fair fishing at the Strait entrance. In one day this week 250 gillnetters landed 14,000 cohos, which isn't a big-money catch . . . But it is more than twice the number of coho sport fishermen took all last year from Victoria, Sooke to Sidney and Saanich Inlet waters.

It is nearly one-quarter the 52,325 fish of all salmon species sports fishermen took in that area in all of last year, including some 28,450 grilse . . . and there is some thought, worth investigating, that grilse fishing by sportsmen should be banned altogether, or severely curtailed.

* * *

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association holds its Centennial Derby, for members only, on Sunday . . . and it looks like the coho have arrived in time. Limit catches of big coho were reported Wednesday in Willis Point to McKenzie Bay waters, with the silvers rising to green and white bucktails in early mroning and to Strip-Teasers, trolled deep later in the day.

Coho are showing off Deep Cove and one of the biggest, a 14-pounder, was caught on flasher and bucktail fly.

Cowichan Bay is still a good bet for springs, although they are darkening up. Mooching has fallen off, but an Alaskan plug is working well.

Cowichan Bay coho fishing is picking up with a few fish scattered all over the bay from Cherry Point to the log booms. Some are being taken on bucktails and fluorescent Flatfish is proving a good coho lure.

Qualicum is still good for coho and the odd spring. Home Oil Co. officials from all over the continent converged on Qualicum last week and landed 150 salmon, three of them cohos weighing more than 15 pounds. It is mostly morning fishing.

* * *

There is some good coho fishing in the Comox to Campbell River waters and off Shelter Point they are getting nine, 10 and 11-pounders on green and white bucktail and spinner and bucktail and flasher. At Campbell River the coho are being taken off Quathiaski Cove and the river mouth and are reaching up to 16 pounds.

Alberni Inlet tyee fishing is still good, although a number of boats are getting skunked. Nahmint, China Creek, Franklin River, Cous Creek and off Port Alberni are all producing with China Creek the hot spot.

There are plenty of fish showing at Port Renfrew, but not many being caught.

Fresh water fishing in the lakes and at the river mouths is picking up and well worth trying. Hunters should take along their fishing rods and take advantage of the access program to fish the out-of-the-way lakes and streams. Rivers are still low.

Jack Hodgins took a five-pound and a 3 1/2-pound trout from Glen Lake this week on dry fly.

* * *

B.C. Forest Products Vancouver Island logging manager Harry Hobson tells us that the road in front of the Nitinat bridge was bulldozed out because the bridge is unsafe for vehicles. Hunters filled in the road last weekend, but it will be bulldozed again. Hunters and fishermen may enter the area to Tuck Lake-Nadira Mines on foot, but if they insist upon moving the bridge obstruction, the bridge will be blown, making even foot travel to the area impossible.

League Meets

Annual fall meeting of the Little League will be held Monday at 7:30 at Jaycee Little League Park, Hillside and Cook.

Parents of boys who will be playing in the league next year are asked to attend.

Final Match Set Sunday

Five C's and Albion, who finished the season tied for first place in the Victoria and District Cricket Association, will play off for the championship Sunday at 1 p.m. at University School.

No PCL Games This Weekend

VANCOUVER—The Pacific Coast Soccer League cancelled all weekend games last night after failing to reach a decision on how to answer a suspension given the league by the B.C. Soccer Commission.

The PCL has appealed the suspension to the Canadian Soccer Football Association to overrule the suspension, handed down when the league failed to accept a BCSC order to accept Vancouver Firemen in to the league.

"Soccer is at the crossroads right now," league president Bill Findlay said. "Frankly, I don't know what we are going to do. We'll meet again early next week."

Speaking Briefly

It's Nicklaus Again

Jack Nicklaus, who won golf's first world series and came back the same week to win the Seattle Open, is going for his third straight victory in Portland, and from the way he opened yesterday don't bet too much against him getting it.

The powerful 22-year-old, hitting every green with deadly approaches, fired six consecutive birdies for an eight-under-par 64 in the first round of the $25,000 Portland Open for a one-stroke lead over Tony Lema, the man he beat out in Seattle.

More than 80 players matched or bettered par 72, including three-time winner Billy Casper Jr., who tied Bob Rosburg for third with 66.

Nicklaus with rounds of 31 and 33, reached the greens in two strokes on all four par-five holes. On four of them, he two-putted for birdies.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver had a 68 and George Knudson of Winnipeg a 70.

LEHIGH HANOVER won the 17th annual $75,000 Little Brown Jug for three-year-old pacers yesterday in Delaware, picking up $27,000 . . . Billy Joe Patton, 40, won two more matches yesterday, and moved into the semi-finals of the U.S. Amateur golf championship against 20-year-old Labron Harris, Jr. . . . Smokey Burgess, hitting .328 with 60 RBIs for Pittsburgh Pirates, is through for the season with stomach trouble . . . catcher Jesse Gonder, one of six San Diego Padres to make the Pacific Coast Baseball League's all-star team, has been named the league's most valuable player . . . heavyweight Bob Cleroux knocked out unknown Jim Chevalier in the fourth round last night in Granby, Que.

* * *

TOM DUBLINSKI, who spent most of his career fighting off injuries, has informed Ottawa Rough Riders he is retiring from football. Riders also announced that end Bill Sowalski has come out of a 10-week retirement, and will probably play against Calgary Stampeders tonight in Ottawa . . . Lou Agase, recently fired as head coach of Toronto Argonauts, has been named assistant director of player personnel of Buffalo Bills of the American Football League . . . centre Don Barry has retired after 11 seasons with Edmonton Eskimos . . . Bob Aspromonte of Houston Colts has set a National League fielding record for third basemen, 57 consecutive errorless games. Old mark of 54 was set by Chicago Cubs' Stan Hack in 1942 . . . Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver clipped 2.3 seconds off the Canadian native record for the 200-metre medley swim Wednesday with a time of 2:15.9. Team members were Mary Stewart, Ann Harvey, Marg Wilmink and Bonnie Bergman.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

ELGIN, Ill.—After some of Floyd Patterson's public workouts here, he asked for quiet and made a little speech. He has thanked spectators for coming, though the heavyweight champion is a solitary young man who would prefer to work in private.

"If Liston should be fortunate to win the title," he has said, "I hope you will accept him the way you've accepted me. You know, there's a little good in everybody."

Even before he consented to fight Liston, Patterson was talking in this vein. While the Holy Joes questioned the challenger's moral fitness to hold the championship, Floyd was saying, in effect, "There, but for the grace of God," etc.

He argued that Liston must have some good qualities and expressed a belief that the responsibilities of the championship would bring these qualities to the fore.

The sentiments are wholly admirable, but they don't go deep enough to encourage bundling in the Comiskey Park ring next Tuesday night. Once the bell rings, Patterson will punch Liston's scowling face as hard and often as he is able. It may be stretching the fact to say that Floyd hates Sonny's guts, but his carefully chosen words do not conceal the real animosity he feels for the fellow who called him a coward.

Two Angry Men

Over in the rundown racing plant for jugheads where Liston conducts his exercises, no breath is wasted on the brotherhood of man. When the question is asked, the challenger denies that he ever said he dislikes Patterson, but the denial is followed by a tirade that is downright bitter.

Liston holds Patterson directly responsible for the harsh terms he had to accept to get this chance. When, after articles for the fight were signed, he thanked Floyd for giving him the opportunity, that discharged any debt owed. It did not soften his resentment at being forced to settle for 12½ per cent of the loot while Patterson gets 55 per cent.

In his campaign for a shot at the championship, Liston repeatedly accused Patterson of ducking him, implying that the champion was afraid. He kept saying that he would fight Floyd for nothing, which is a stock offer among challengers, who would be mortally offended if it were accepted.

The charge of cowardice rankled Patterson deeply. There is reason to believe he dictated the terms out of pique. Certainly he never spoke out publicly in favor of a fairer division, which he could have done, for he is now his own boss. Liston is not too stupid to realize this.

Svengali Unfrocked

In his early days Patterson was brainwashed by Cus D'Amato. Today D'Amato is manager in only one sense: he still gets a cut of the purse. He is seldom in Patterson's company. When he offers advice, Patterson accepts or rejects it as he sees fit. Until Cus's application for a second's licence was submitted to the boxing commission and approved Monday, there was no certainty that he would be working in the corner.

The mere fact that there is going to be a fight shows how D'Amato has lost rank, for Cus wanted no part of Liston. No matter what may be said about D'Amato's technical knowledge of boxing or talents as a teacher, about his memory for facts, his weird circumlocutions, and his cloak-and-dagger way of doing business, there is one point where he cannot be faulted. He always has done what he sincerely believed was best for his fighter.

If this is what a manager is for—and if it isn't, the state should put a bounty on the breed—then Cus may have been the greatest manager known to mankind. No other fighter ever made so much money at so little risk as Floyd has done against the victims D'Amato picked for him.

After five years, the thought of the heavyweight champion of the world charging a quarter of a million dollars to give an amateur named Pete Rademacher his first professional lesson still leaves a guy shaken. That set a pattern which Cus followed faithfully, with Roy Harris, Brian London, Tom McNeeley.

On the basis of Ingemar Johansson's second and third performances with Patterson, Cus may have been correct in regarding the Swede as eligible to join this illustrious company. However, he under-estimated Ingo's punch, a mistake that set up two re-matches worth $1,800,000 on Floyd's end.

Decisions, Decisions

If Cus is a competent judge of ability, then his reluctance to send Patterson in against Liston could be significant. The lofty principles which Cus so frequently attributes to himself would not have deterred him from taking a possible $4,000,000 match if he considered it a soft touch. At those prices, he would have heard a divine call to punish Liston for his sins.

For a while there was gossip that Julius November was crowding D'Amato out of the throne room, but the attorney has not succeeded Cus as manager. Patterson listens to his lawyer and sometimes to Cus, then does as he pleases.

It was Floyd alone who insisted on the Liston match. If it costs him his championship, it will be his own doing. If, as he firmly believe he will, he gives Liston a whipping, then he alone will be entitled to all the credit.

District League Sets Soccer Doubleheader

Victoria and District Football League will offer fans a doubleheader Sunday at Heywood Park.

Canadian Scottish plays Kickers at 1 p.m., and Gorge Hotel meets Vic West at 2:30.

In other games, Esquimalt plays Brodie's at Central Park and Heaneys take on Evcoes at Topaz Park. Both start at 2 p.m.

Gorge, going for a second straight league championship, posted a 3-2 victory over Canadian Scottish last week in the league opening day. Wests will be playing their first league game, but lost an exhibition match, 4-2, to Brodie's.

Kickers beat Heaneys, 2-1, in their first start, and in the other opener, Esquimalt beat Evcoes, 2-0.

League has been cut to eight teams with withdrawal of Saanich Thistles, but officials say this will not be much of a blow since it will leave time on the schedule for cup matches.

For drivers who CARE about cars

Make it a habit to add a shot or two of Rislone to prevent or cure engine trouble

A car gets in the blood of some drivers. You'll see them in neighborhood after neighborhood, checking under the hood to learn the wonders of an automobile engine first hand.

These folks have formed a good habit early in life. A car is something to care for. And Rislone is one product that helps them keep their automobiles operating at peak power. Rislone is not a cure-all. Used regularly however, it can help prevent or even cure many engine troubles encountered by drivers. Rislone dissolves engine gum and sludge deposits, frees sticky valves, restores lost compression. So join the drivers who have the Rislone habit to prevent or cure engine trouble. Margin a Mile as Gamble Loses

Gretel Badly Beaten in Light Winds

BUS MOSBACHER . . . got right conditions

By WILL GRIMSBY

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—The United States defender Weatherly ghosted through a gently rolling sea like a blue steel rapier Thursday to beat Australia's Gretel and take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven battle for the America's Cup, the world series of yachting.

The canny American skipper, Emil Mosbacher, took command in the first five minutes, then gave the white-hulled challenger from Australia a thorough s h e l l a cking. Weatherly crossed the finish line about a mile ahead of Gretel as the race ended with seas almost flat and winds of six miles an hour.

Weatherly outfooted Gretel going into the wind and walked away from her downwind, finishing the 24-mile course in 4 hours, 21 minutes, 16 seconds—a whopping margin of eight minutes, 40 seconds. Gretel's time was 4:29.56.

ASK DAY OFF

The Australians immediately exercised their perrogative and raised the flag asking for a lay day — the third day off in as many races. This postpones until Saturday the fourth race between these two sleek racing toys of millionaires.

The brash challengers from Australia may have outsmarted themselves in their insistence on these delaying tactics. The rules permit either boat to ask for off day after each race.

Most observers felt the Aussie should have raced Wednesday while still riding the impetus of Tuesday's dramatic triumph and while winds on the Atlantic were w h i p p i n g up white-caps with gusts up to 22 miles an hour.

But the visitors chose to gamble even rougher conditions — originally predicted for Thursday — and lost.

The third race started on calm waters with winds of no more than eight knots and turned into a dull drifting match on the spinnaker runs as the winds dropped to a ghostly whisper.

The race, like the first also won by Weatherly, was windward - leeward — six miles into the wind and six miles with the wind and twice around. The even races—the next is No. 4—are over a 24-mile triangular track with an eight mile windward leg and two reaches of eight miles each.

Again the start was fascinating, w i t h Weatherly's Mosbacher and Gretel's 46-year-old veteran skipper Jock Sturrock stalking each other at the imaginary line like two jungle beasts.

Seconds before the final cannon Gretel broke out a jib and headed up the line toward the committee boat.

Weatherly, caught temporarily off guard, shot leeward toward the cup buoy side.

Gretel crossed the line some 40 seconds ahead of the U.S. boat.

She lost ground on two takes and in five minutes Weatherly was in front in a safe leeward position, footing toward the mark.

Sturrock, caught in Weatherly's wind cone, was forced to start a quick-tacking duel. There were 22 tacks in 45 minutes and, unlike Tuesday's race when Australian muscle proved enough to gain valuable yards in heavier seas, the Australian sloop failed to gain an inch.

Gretel went down fighting. Catching a new wind system, she cut approximately six minutes off Weatherly's lead on the third leg—a six-mile beat in the wind — and she got a better wind on the final run.

Racing d o w n the home stretch under a white spinnaker—her fourth of the day—she caught a breeze some five miles an hour stronger than that propelling Weatherly. It cut the margin drastically, but not enough.

'Cup Hangover' Hits Australia

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Almost overnight, it seems, Australia's 10,500,000 people have become yachting bugs.

After Australian challenger Gretel defeated U.S. defender Weatherly in Tuesday's second heat of the America's Cup races off Newport, R.I., some newspapers ran headlines two inches high.

At her home in the seaside suburb of Elwood, Mrs. Van Sturrock—wife of Gretel's skipper, Jock Sturrock — got so many congratulatory telephone calls she was forced to go out for the afternoon to give her ears a rest.

Hundreds of "well done, chaps" cables were sent to Sturrock and his crew, including one from Australia's cabinet and Melbourne's L o r d Mayor Maurice Nathan.

Schoolboys who once thought "jib" was short for Gibraltar now are talking learnedly about racing tactics, and housewives to whom a "tack" was something to nail down a carpet have found in Gretel a new subject for back-fence gossip.

There's even a new term for that sleepy, red-eyed look office workers and factory employees are wearing these days.

It's called "cup hangover" and it comes from lying awake all night listening to static-marred radio commentaries of the races.

The races begin about 2:10 a.m., Melbourne time, and end around dawn.

The interest in the America's Cup series is equalling that of any previous sporting event in the country's history.

This includes the biennial battle for cricket supremacy between Australia and Great Britain and the annual Melbourne Cup horse race—events which wipe all other news off the front page, much as baseball's World Series does in North America.

Hatpin Suggested For Today's Card

A worrier's delight is perhaps the best way to describe today's seven-race program at Sandown Park. Fields are full in every race except the feature and every race has the kind of contention which makes it difficult to come out of form-poring with any kind of outstanding choice.

Today's feature is a six-furlong invitational handicap which will see Sandford Park, an impressive winner on Monday in the good time of 1:13 1/5 try for a repeat against tougher opposition.

It includes UR Mia, Kilocycles, Pacific Queen, Little Shay and Mandy's Pet. And Sandford Park will have to hustle to get to the top from the No. 4 post.

Another good field will try the sprint distance in the fifth with Bella Mac, winner of two in a row including a six-furlong trip through the mud last Saturday, hooking a bit tougher opposition. It includes Ande Cara, who has been running with the best this year and managed to win three times; Little Selfish, winner of five this year, and Abcan, first four times and in the money nine times in 14 starts.

In the fourth, Rondocol and Ever Do will try to make it two straight at Sandown and will have to stay close to some great early speed with Saadi Rani and Federal Lady sure to try to get the rail in the run from the gate to the clubhouse turn.

First post time is 2:15.

Could Pass Bing, Too

Arnie May Rival U.S. Steel

By JACK MURPHY

SAN DIEGO (CNS)—Arnold Palmer must have a lot of friends. Before going on camera in the television show "Challenge Golf," Palmer left uncomplicated instructions for the marshals.

"Anybody who comes along and says he's a friend of mine—let him in," advised the reigning Masters and British Open champion.

"Arnie's Army" of friends obtains recruits from throughout the nation and a thousand or so were grouped about the first tee when Palmer and Gary Player teed off in a best ball match against Sam Snead and Doug Sanders on a chill, grey morning at La Jolla's Torrey Pines course overlooking the Pacific.

LIVENED PROCEEDINGS

The gloomy surroundings seemed to have a bracing effect on Sanders, easily the most high-spirited member of the foursome.

Sanders began ribbing Palmer and Player at the first tee and his light-hearted banter provided comic relief for a crowd that gradually swelled to 5,000 by mid-afternoon. Just about everybody considered Sanders amusing, it seemed, except his partner — Mr. Samuel Jackson Snead.

When Palmer and Player won two of the first three holes, Sanders sought advice from Snead.

"I'm getting tired of hitting last, Sam," said Sanders, "you got any suggestions?"

"Yeah," replied Snead, dryly, "get the ball into the hole."

BROAD HINT

Since the film of this match won't be shown until next winter (the series begins Jan. 12), I've been sworn to secrecy regarding the result. A secret shared by 5,000 people isn't exactly classified information, however, and I'll give a broad hint by repeating the comments of Palmer and Snead as the match ended.

"I want to thank you, Sam, for appearing on the show," said Palmer, who is not only co-star but co-producer of "Challenge Golf."

"Just give me the money," said Snead, grinning. "I didn't enjoy the golf but I did enjoy the money."

The format of the show gives the challengers an opportunity to earn as much as $25,000 apiece and as little as $1,000. The challengers must state on the first tee whether they intend to contest Palmer and Player in one, two, three or four matches.

CHANCE FOR PARLAY

One victory is worth $6,000 and the scale increases to $15,000, $25,000 and $50,000. But the challengers are eliminated by any defeat; they must win all four matches to hit the $50,000 jackpot. Consolation for defeat in the first match is $1,000 for each of the losers.

This is a legitimate competition in which Palmer and Player stand to make or lose a lot of money; yet the element of show business almost overshadows the golf. "Challenge Golf" is budgeted for $74,000 per show and when the company is on location the payroll numbers 39 people.

Director Frank Bauer's crew includes two assistants, 14 cameramen (for seven cameras), drivers, grips, electricians and, as union rules prescribe, a registered nurse. Even the caddies, who are wired for sound with throat mikes, receive $25 per day in addition to the bag-toting pay.

Palmer's earnings in tournament golf represent only a fraction of his income. He coined in the neighborhood of $500,000 last season, proving, apparently, that the rich get richer. Michaels predicts that "Challenge Golf" will furnish the major source of Palmer's income for the next few years.

It looks as though Palmer may become bigger than U.S. Steel, or Bing Crosby. He'll soon be producing his own line of golf clubs under a deal that reportedly guarantees him $1,250,000 over a 20-year period, plus a block of stock in one of the major club manufacturing companies.

Fight Broadcast

Next Tuesday's heavyweight championship fight between Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston will be broadcast over at least three radio stations: CBU, Vancouver (690); CJOR, Vancouver (600), and KOMO, Seattle (1000). A pre-fight show is set for 7:05 Victoria time with action due 15 minutes later.

Tourists Prefer Dull City To Island's Gay Splendor

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Island residents may find it difficult to believe thousands of American tourists come to B.C. each year to see the city of (ugh) Vancouver, but that seems to be the case.

Preliminary results of a major government survey of B.C. tourist habits, likes and dislikes show such natural splendors as snow-capped mountains, towering waterfalls and lush green forests take a back seat to steel-reinforced concrete, bright lights and False Creek at low tide.

SEE VANCOUVER

The survey shows tourists come to see the sights, all right, but not the ones so dear to the hearts of B.C. natives. They come, says the preliminary report on the survey, "to see Vancouver . . . or other cities."

"The natural splendors, though important, are not as influential as the cities."

NO RESULT YET

The preliminary report deals only with tourists interviewed at the Peace Portal border crossing from mid-August this year through the Labor Day weekend. No results are so far available from interviews held on ferries plying between the U.S. and Victoria, or for the month of September.

EARLY IN OCTOBER

Final results are expected early next month. The study is being conducted by a private research firm on behalf of the B.C. Government Travel Bureau.

It shows so far most visitors spent only one or two days in B.C.; a third of those entering or leaving B.C. on the mainland visited Victoria; and an average tourist party spent about $100 in the province.

OVER $7,500

Other observations drawn from the results so far were:

- Sixty per cent of the tourist sampling enjoy incomes over $7,500 a year and 19 per cent earn over $12,000;
- Half came from upper and upper-middle class households compared to about 15 per cent as a national U.S. average;
- Only five to 10 per cent spent more than a week in B.C.;
- About one third had been to B.C. before and 80 per cent said they would probably come back;
- Nearly 90 per cent visited Vancouver or said they were going to;
- From 10 to 20 per cent came for some such specific purpose as camping or fishing;
- One third liked B.C. better than they thought they would, and apparently none expressed disappointment. One in seven stayed longer than planned;
- Almost half were attracted to this area by the Seattle World's Fair;
- Some 93 per cent said the premium on the U.S. dollar was not a factor in prompting their visit;
- A few tourists were surprised at B.C.'s similarity to the U.S.

Forger Lost Out On Draw

Forged cheques—11 of them, totalling $1,470—were uttered by Neal Gordon Dalgety, 827 Princess, he admitted in city police court yesterday.

When he was out on bail for these offences, he passed two more worthless cheques amounting to about $40 at a local supermarket.

PROBATION REPORT

Magistrate William Cutler remanded him for probation report and sentencing Sept. 27.

The accused opened accounts with deposit of $2 at the main branch of the Bank of Montreal and the Royal Bank, Douglas and Pandora. He deposited the worthless cheques and then proceeded to draw money out of the banks.

PLAYED SAFE

He also opened an account at the Bank of Nova Scotia, Hillside and Douglas, with a $200 cheque but they would not allow withdrawals until the cheque had been cleared.

Most of the cheques had been drawn on the City Hall branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank at Sarnia, Ont.

UBC Paper Unearths Prejudice

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of B.C. newspaper, The Ubyssey, has charged many landlords in the university area are discriminating against Negro students.

A report in the publication says half of the 50 homes covered in a survey refused to accept Negro students as boarders.

The survey was conducted by a Negro student who was followed in each case by a white student who was able to rent a room at each home.

The report says Chinese and East Indian students are subject to similar discrimination—but to a lesser degree.

U.S. Shoots For Mars After 1970

VIENNA (AP)—Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, head of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, said today the United States plans to send a manned nuclear space ship to Mars in the 1970's.

Seaborg told a panel of scientists at the general conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency that the space ship will carry "a couple of men to land on Mars for a one-month exploration and return them to earth in a one-year trip."

He said the first test flight is planned for 1967.

City Youth Jailed For Theft

A Victoria youth was given a six-month jail term for theft in city police court yesterday.

George Liska, 19, of 1263 Walnut, pleaded guilty to stealing a bag of personal effects from an automobile Sept. 12.

Contents of the bag were a transistor radio, an electric shaver, clothing and two bus tickets to Barrie, Ont.

City Fireman Vice-President

A member of the Victoria local executive since 1948 has been elected regional vice-president of the International Association of Fire Fighters at a convention in San Antonio, Tex.

Eric Simmons heads a region comprising B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Folding Money Really Was

Ancient folding money that really had to be folded is being exhibited at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Government and Fort.

The vintage bills, whose size earned them the title of "blankets," were issued by the old Bank of British Columbia and are being shown to celebrate Victoria's centennial and the 100th anniversary of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Victoria. They measure about 5½ by 12 inches.

WORTH FAR MORE

Some of the bank notes date back to 1863.

They range in denomination from $1 to $100 and are worth many times their face value as collectors' items. Two $1 bills in the collection are worth $100 each according to collectors.

Also on display will be two historic parchments of the deeds of incorporation with which the Bank of British Columbia was founded.

FIRST BANK

The Bank of British Columbia was the first bank in the province and owed its start to gold discoveries on the Fraser River and an abundance of capital in London, England, that needed investment.

The first branch was opened in 1862 at Government and Bastion on a site that was leased to the bank by Thomas Harris, first Mayor of Victoria.

CITY OF VICTORIA 100

The Daily Colonist.

(ESTABLISHED 1858)

1862 1962 CENTENNIAL

SECOND NEWS SECTION — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1962 — PAGE SEVENTEEN

Pageant Debt $20,000?

By IAN STREET

When the Centennial Society closes its books in a few weeks the city's debt, if there is any, will likely be in the neighborhood of $20,000, Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night.

"This amount would be a small price to pay for a very successful year," the mayor said.

"Considering the extent of the program and the variety of centennial events which have proved popular with citizens and visitors alike, I feel that we have obtained excellent value."

NOT $100,000

Mayor Wilson said yesterday's headline in another newspaper referring to a $100,000 centennial debt is misleading and "not in keeping with the facts."

"A debt is something that is owed, whereas city council has already voted and paid to the Centennial Society sums amounting to $75,000," the mayor said.

IN 1961 BUDGET

He added $25,000 of this was included in the city's 1961 budget; the remaining $20,000 was in the 1962 budget.

Ald. Michael Griffin, a member of the centennial committee, took issue with published statements that Victoria's professionally-directed centennial celebrations will cost the ratepayers a total of $100,000, slightly more than one mill.

$75,000 INVESTED

He said: "The city invested —and I cannot stress enough that word invested—the sum of $75,000 to celebrate 100 years of civic administration in Victoria.

"No one on city council, at any time, suggested that we might get back in direct rebate any significant portion of this amount.

GREATEST YEAR

"What this money has done, however, is to permit staging of what has proven to be the greatest year in our history."

He said the program provided a continuous round of events enjoyed by visitors and Greater Victoria residents alike.

TRULY MARVELLOUS

"Never in recent history have we seen so many people pass through the gates of Royal Athletic Park to witness some truly marvellous entertainment," Ald. Griffin said.

"This sense of celebrating, with all hands joining in, has been repeated all over Greater Victoria."

FIRMLY CONVINCED

Ald. Griffin said he is "still firmly convinced" that without the professional help of the John B. Rogers company on the production end "it would have been completely and hopelessly impossible to stage these celebrations."

He added: "I hope that city council will enthusiastically support a suggestion to bring them back annually to stage a two-month-long celebration."

Pageant director Dudley Remus said it is "utter folly" to say Victoria is $100,000 in debt from its centennial celebrations. He added that 80 per cent of all centennial funds were spent locally.

"Victoria could not have purchased the wonderful things that have happened here in the last few months if she paid $1,000,000. The future of the city is assured, with thousands of proud Victorians pulling together," said Mr. Remus.

CLEAR PICTURE

Earl Ward, chairman of the centennial ticket committee, said it will be possible to obtain a clear financial picture only when final returns of centennial events are tallied in the next week or so.

But there are other ways of measuring returns for the city's investment, he said.

BEST YEAR

"Question the merchants who have enjoyed the best tourist year in history, the 100,000 people who came to the centennial office to buy tickets, hats or ties or just to ask the way to one of the local stores. Ask the staff about the 150,000 phone calls they handled," he said.

Familiar beaming smile of Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was even broader than usual when he landed a 15-pound steelhead in famed Kispiox River during his recent tour of Cariboo area. Vice-regal catch was left behind for local residents to eat.—(Gar Dixon)

* * *

Pearkes Visits Cariboo Sect

In a 14-day tour of the Cariboo district, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes fished three world famous waters, visited an operating HBC trading post and stayed one night at the headquarters of a minor religious sect.

Mr. Pearkes landed a 15-pound steelhead after a 20-minute battle in the Kispiox River and posed happily with his trophy for official photographs.

At Pendleton Bay he caught a fine rainbow trout but failed to land anything at the Babine River although it was full of salmon.

SAW HOUSING

Near Burns Lake he saw Moccasin Square Garden, a housing development for B.C. Indians.

He spent the last night of his tour at the township of 100 Mile House, headquarters of The Emissaries of Divine Light, south of Williams Lake.

SECT MINISTER

One of the leading citizens of the community who welcomed Mr. Pearkes—board of trade president David Oshanek — is a minister in the sect.

The vice-regal party had afternoon tea and dinner at the sect's main building, 100-Mile Lodge.

The two-week tour took Mr. Pearkes on a jam-packed trip through the historic Cariboo. Highlights of the trip included:

VISIT TO CAIRN

A visit to the Mile 0 cairn at Lillooet, marking the start of the Cariboo Highway; inspection of a closed-down mercury mine at Pinchi Lake; a display of hurling, an Irish game similar to grass hockey, played by Indian boys at Lejac Indian School near Vanderhoof; Burns Lake Elementary School, where the children stood in rain to greet Mr. Pearkes, and a visit to Hidden Paradise, a hideaway holiday ranch near Vanderhoof.

Children, Parents 'Lost'

Straying Family Finally United

Police were faced with a double-barrelled problem last night when they set out to find two lost children in the James Bay area.

Soon after the search was started someone phoned the station to say the young boy and girl had been located.

A prowl car picked up the youngsters and took them home, only to find the parents were out looking for their offspring.

So the police searched for the parents and the parents searched for the children, and eventually their paths crossed and all were happily reunited.

Tot Hit By Car

A three-year-old boy who was bumped by a car as he ran across North Park Street, suffered a minor cut to his head and was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital last night.

Richard Cline, 1007 North Park, was released from hospital after treatment. Driver was identified as Richard Watt, 669 Grenville.

Eased for Hardest-Hit?

Douglas Parking Ban Will Stay Says CIDC

Victoria and Saanich representatives made little progress yesterday in their attempt to obtain relaxation of a Capital Improvement District Commission-inspired parking ban on Douglas Street north of the Roundabout.

City spokesman Ald. Michael Griffin said following a meeting in the office of CIDC chairman J. Everett Brown only one option appeared to be open to the municipalities—short of refunding $130,000 grants for the beautification project.

MIGHT CONSIDER

"We gathered that the CIDC might—I want to underline that word, might — consider easing the situation temporarily in cases where obvious hardship could be proven (by merchants)," he said.

TEMPORARY NATURE

Ald. Griffin stressed the temporary nature of any relaxation of the parking ban that may be granted and added this was likely to be considered only where merchants could prove they "didn't realize that parking was going to be cut off."

'MOST SYMPATHETIC'

Mr. Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, was "most sympathetic" to the problems faced by both Victoria and Saanich in application of the parking restrictions, said Ald. Griffin.

UNDER AGREEMENT

But under the agreement signed by the CIDC and both municipalities, said Ald. Griffin, any move on the part of Victoria or Saanich to remove the parking ban would mean abandonment of all plans for beautifying the Douglas Street entrance to the city.

$80,000 REFUND

This would involve refund of $80,000 paid by CIDC to the city for beautification work completed to date; and in the case of Saanich a similar repayment of approximately $70,000.

Ald. Griffin continued: "Mr. Brown quite rightly pointed out that both the city and Saanich must determine in their own minds just how they want to develop the main entrance to the city.

'OUR DECISION'

"This decision, in the final analysis, must be our own, not that of the CIDC. It is a major decision and one that must be made as soon as possible."

The city spokesman added the intended ban on parking on both sides of north Douglas was publicized several months ago.

FORCED TO MOVE

It appears some of the merchants affected, said Ald. Griffin, either did not appreciate the significance of the ban or were unable to provide any form of off-street parking to meet the situation when it developed.

Some merchants were forced to move, others have suffered heavy loss of business.

Prepare for Election In Winter—Chatterton

Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton told Progressive Conservative constituency association members last night to prepare for a winter election.

Speaking at the association's annual meeting, Mr. Chatterton said he was certain Prime Minister Diefenbaker would propose a vigorous program of legislation which, in turn, would bring on an early election.

He said he doubted the prime minister would adopt a non-contentious program.

Elected president of the association was Hugh Henderson.

A man who helped PC Kenneth More defeat NDP leader Tommy Douglas in his home riding of Regina was elected first vice-president, Col. H. W. Marsh travelled to Regina to assist More's campaign as one of his leading campaign advisers.

Third vice-president is David Smeaton.

Guardhouse Set At Checkpoint Of Tweed Curtain

Visitors attempting to penetrate the Tweed Curtain today are advised to stop at Checkpoint Cholmondeley (Chumley) to get their border-crossing permits.

They may face a barrage of crumpets if they don't.

BLOCKADE ON

Oak Bay Board of Trade officials said last night the blockade is definitely on — a guardhouse erected on Oak Bay Avenue is the official line of demarcation between the eastern and western zones of Greater Victoria as part of the municipality's two-day salute to Victoria.

The two-day program will start at 2 p.m. at the municipal hall where Reeve George Murdoch will be host.

Then at 3 p.m. at an official tea at the rear of the hall, guests will include Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, Mayor R. B. Wilson and representatives of the armed services, other municipalities and the provincial government.

Here is the program of events for the two-day salute:

FRIDAY

2 p.m. Public tea party, front lawn of the municipal hall.

3 p.m. Official tea and presentation to Victoria's Mayor R. B. Wilson.

5 p.m. Open air action on Shop-Easy parking lot.

5-8 p.m. Bingo, Club Tango.

9 p.m. Come-as-you-are dance, Club Tango.

SATURDAY

6 a.m. to 1 p.m. Salmon derby.

9 a.m. Horseshoe pitching championships.

10 a.m. Kiddies' rides open, Oak Bay Village.

1 to 5 p.m. Free water taxi rides from Oak Bay Marina.

2 p.m. Open Air Auction, Shop-Easy parking lot, Chinese Lions Drill Team march from Village to Marina; predicted log race for outboards at the Marina.

2:15 p.m. Special children's matinee performance of "Nikl, Dog of the North" at Oak Bay Theatre.

2:30 p.m. Quarter-mile swim from Oak Bay Beach to Jimmy Chicken Island.

2:30 to 5:30 p.m. Kiddies' hoss fishing derby off Marina floats.

4 p.m. Victoria Outboard Club boat drill team.

7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Sunset retreat ceremonies, Canadian Scottish at Willows Park.

9 p.m. Grand Centennial Ball at Club Tango.

His Information Needed

Passing Pedestrian Key Crash Witness

A man who was seen walking with a child near the scene of last Saturday's fatal head-on crash on Esquimalt Road may have important information for Esquimalt police—if he can be located.

Mrs. Doris Bendall, 512 Fraser, a mother of five died in the crash near Macaulay Street.

Her husband, Kenneth Bendall, Elizabeth Harrison, 4, Admirals Road and an occupant of the other car, RCMP Const. M. J. LeFrenier, were taken to hospital.

Police said the testimony of the man who was walking near the accident could be invaluable in their investigation.

United Appeal Goal in City Modest

* * *

This year's United Appeal target of $360,000 works out to a per-capita donation of $2.40 a head among Greater Victoria's citizens, deputy campaign chairman Stuart Keate told a joint service club luncheon yesterday.

At the Rotary-sponsored luncheon which saw Mayor R. B. Wilson pledge a month's pay of $500 to the drive, Mr. Keate said the appeal, observing its 25th anniversary this year, was out for an objective far below that set by comparable communities.

"Saskatoon this year has a target of $330,000, serving 32 agencies. Yet its population is 95,000, or about one third less than ours.

"Regina, with a population of 105,000, has set a goal of $425,000. St. Catherines, with a population of 84,000, is after $320,000 — the same amount we sought last year.

MORE THAN DOUBLE

"... London, Ontario, with just 10,000 more people than Greater Victoria, is asking its citizens for $750,000, or more than double our amount . . . Vancouver, with four times our population, is out after $5,000,000, or eight times our objective.

He said by comparison, Victoria's requests seem modest.

"This is partially explained by the fact that we are largely a non-industrial centre . . . It is also partially explained by the fact that we have a tough budget committee . . . which screens applications with great care, so that your dollars are prudently expended."

FORWARD STEP

He said a forward step in Greater Victoria's United Appeal organization was the adoption of a "definite line of succession, ensuring an up leadership for the next three or four years.

". . . Our appeal has to a large extent been carried, over the past three years, on the broad shoulders of chairman Justin Harbord."

ROTARY MOTTO

He urged businessmen at the meeting to accept 'their share of the responsibility of raising at least 12 per cent more for this "anniversary drive."

Mr. Keate said the meaning and purpose of the drive was "crystallized" in the motto of the Rotary Club — "Service Above Self."

Teachers' Pay Topic for Talks

QUALICUM (CP)—The opening round of the annual negotiations over teachers' salaries opens next week when formal discussions begin on remuneration of Vancouver Island teachers.

Five teachers with an advisor from the B.C. Teachers Association will review present schedules and open proposals for changes with five trustees and an adviser from the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

$2,500 Bail Set for Man

Bail of $2,500 was set for John Caird, no fixed address, charged in Saanich police court yesterday with being in possession of an opium poppy.

The case was remanded to Sept. 25 after a plea of not guilty.

WALTZING MATILDA: Duncan man Klaus Meunier has the painful distinction of having been bitten on the beak by a turtle. Klaus keeps the turtle, Matilda, for a pet and got a little too close the other night when he was inspecting her. He danced a little jig of pain until Matilda let go. Matilda is an eastern painted turtle, about eight inches long, with strong jaws.

TENT TOWN: Local Kinsmen Club official Stan Mossop is hosting the Kinsmen's fair in Esquimalt next week will feature one of the biggest displays of canvas ever used at a fair in Western Canada—11 tents covering a total of 24,000 square feet. They range from four small ones measuring 20 feet by 30 to a whopper measuring 60 by 90.

SUCCESSFUL: Junior chamber's aim to provide leadership training for members seems to work. At the annual luncheon in the Dominion Hotel today for Jaycee senators and past presidents will be B.C. ferry manager Monty Aldous, a past national president; Memorial Arena manager Jack Morgan, past president of a mainland unit; Public Utilities director former mayor Percy George; Bill Mearns, vice-president of B.C. Hydro, and W. T. Straith, QC, a former president of Victoria Jaycees and one-time provincial minister of education.

SUCCESSFUL BUMS: New light on social outcasts comes from Dr. Boris Levinson, a New York psychologist, who claims it takes almost as long to learn how to be a successful bum as it takes to become a doctor. He makes the further point that bums are generally in better health than business executives.

POSTWAR COFFEE: Victoria people paying 15 cents for a cup of coffee don't know how lucky they are—one of the Seattle hotels has the following sign in its elevators:

Room service rates for coffee—

1 cup	25 cents
2 cups	50 cents
3 cups	75 cents
4 cups	$1.25

(room service charge extra).

ANGUISHED: Executive director of the Community Welfare Council, Jack Anguish is a little unhappy about a postcard from a friend at Miracle Beach. Seems the card was printed in the United States, and the view is identified as "In the B.C. State Park." It might surprise the printer to learn B.C. is not the 51st state, and Miracle Beach is in one of 186 provincial parks in B.C.

MOUTHS OF BABES DEPT.: Friend's four-year-old daughter deserted her father's mismatched socks as "one's the same and the other one's different."

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Elliott, Glasgow Avenue, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Pamela June, to Edward Charles Beecroft, RCN, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Beecroft, Battleford Avenue. The wedding will take place Oct. 6, at 8 p.m., in First United Church.—(Meyers Studio.)

Beier-Stewardson

Drum Corps Forms Guard

Thunderbird All Girls' Drum Corps formed an honor guard as L.Cpl. and Mrs. George Donald Beier left Metropolitan United Church following their recent marriage. The bride is the former, Joy Ann Stewardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stewardson, Dieppe Road and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Beier, Beaverlodge, Alta. Rev. E. Laura Butler officiated at the evening ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father wearing a white floor-length gown of net over taffeta fashioned on princess lines with petal pointed drop waistline. The rounded neckline of the lace bodice was enhanced with pearls. She carried a bouquet of deep red roses and white heather.

Mrs. T. A. Gallupe was matron of honor in a pink nylon short length dress with lace jacket. Her flowers were pink and white carnations.

L.Cpl. Robert Prouse was best man and also proposed the toast at the reception which followed the ceremony at 4148 Tuxedo Drive. The three-tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. E. A. Chappelle of Victoria.

The new Mrs. Beier donned a charcoal grey Italian knit suit and white accessories for a honeymoon to Dawson Creek and northern Alberta. Her corsage was red roses. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. Beier and Shirley and Paul of Beaverlodge, Alta.

Couple Go East

Large bouquets of white flowers flanked the altar of St. John's Anglican Church for the wedding of Mary Harreitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bendall and Mr. Allan Ross Murdoch, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Murdoch, of Victoria. Rev Canon G. Biddle officiated at the ceremony.

The bride chose a floor-length gown of white brocaded taffeta and lace fashioned with a sweetheart neckline. Her shoulder length veil was held by a crown of lily-of-the-valley and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and white heather.

Attendants Doris Waters, Frances Walker and Judy Murdoch were gowned in yellow and blue organza. Their bouquets were yellow gladiolus.

Mr. Terence Murdoch, the groom's brother was best man and David Walker and Richard Zala ushered guests.

After the reception at Holyrood House the bride changed into a two-piece navy blue knit suit with pink rose corsage for a motoring trip to the East via Banff, Calgary and Regina. The young couple will make their home in Peterborough, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Wallace, 1733 Denman Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janice Karen, to Ronald James Griffis, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Griffis of 437 Stannard Avenue. The wedding will take place Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Grace Lutheran Church.—(Gibson's photo.)

Fellowship Winner Will Speak

Mrs. A. D. Beirnes, West Vancouver, 1962 winner of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs' United Nations Fellowship, will be the guest speaker at the dinner meeting of the Victoria Club on Monday, September 24.

Mrs. Beirnes attended the Status of Women Commission in New York. She will speak on the work being done by the commission in promoting the status of women.

Mrs. Beirnes is associate editor of "The Business and Professional Woman"—the official publication of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me how old women must be before they stop referring to themselves as "girls"?

My wife belongs to a card club which meets every other week. All these biddies are about the same age as my wife. Five of them went to school together in fact. My wife is 59. We have eight grandchildren. Every woman in the club is a grandmother except one, and she never married.

You know very well that these old dames are not kids. Yet they refer to themselves as "girls." This sounds so peculiar to me I wish you'd straighten them out. Thank you.—DOC.

Dear Doc: A female is a girl as long as she lives, and she has a right to call herself one.

This train runs both ways. Have you seen some of those bald-headed paunchy coots who want a night out "with the boys?" Well—same thing, Bub.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Am I making a mountain out of an anthill? I am married (for the second time) to a man I love very much. Leo has legally adopted my two boys by a previous marriage. He insists the boys call him by his first name. They are terribly fond of him and have asked if they can call him Daddy, instead of Leo. He has told them "No."

Now we are expecting our first baby. I'm fearful that Leo will want his natural child to call him Daddy. The other two youngsters will then feel left out.

The boys see their real father once or twice a year. They never mention him between visits. My new in-laws adore the children and have asked to be called Grandma and Grandpa. How can I make my husband see that he should allow his step-sons to call him Daddy?—EDNA.

Dear Edna: It sounds as if your husband has made up his mind. Don't put any more pressure on him. He will only become irritated—or worse.

The point here is this: All the children should address him in the same manner (even if it's Leo). And "all" includes your expected addition to the family.

Confidential to IN DRERD MINE GELT: Learn from it, then forget it. The worst of these deals is you usually wind up losing the friendship as well.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lawton, 1579 Monterey Avenue, Oak Bay, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter Elaine, to Mr. Gary Charles Parker, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Parker, 593 Baker Avenue. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Oct 6, at 2 p.m., in St. John's Anglican Church with Canon George Biddle officiating.—(Meyers Studio, Victoria.)

Mrs. Morris Elected

Mrs. G. L. Morris was elected president of the Welcome Room at the annual meeting.

Vice-president is Mrs. I. Bannerman and secretary is Mrs. R. Girard.

Others named to office are Mrs. H. S. Langford, Mrs. G. Mudge, Mrs. C. H. Willis, Mrs. B. G. Ryan, Mrs. C. C. Simpson and Mrs. Stewart Smith.

Scottish Reform

Miss Yvonne Stevenson, great-great-granddaughter of James Armour, father-in-law of Robert Burns, was present at the first meeting of the season of the Burns Club of Victoria. She gave the club a reprint published by the British Museum, of research done and material supplied by her on the historical Burns Punch Bowl, carved by James Armour and presented to Burns as a wedding present.

Major Murray, club librarian was thanked for his work in restoring order to the club library. A portrait of Burns was given to the club by Mrs. Gordon Petticrew.

"Scottish Reform" was the subject chosen by the evening's guest speaker, Mr. Charles Ellington of Victoria.

Past president, Rev. T. H. McAllister, was presented with a black, initialled leather portfolio. Selections were played by club piper, P/M Peter George. Rev. McAllister delivered an amusing Burns poem and several selections were sung by Mr. Wm. Mackechnie.

Refreshments were served following the meeting. Mrs. Angus MacKay was in charge.

MISS MARILYN SOMMERS

Director Engaged

Of great interest is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sommers, 2620 Cedar Hill Cross Road, of the engagement of their daughter, Marilyn Louise to Mr. John Dudley Remus, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Remus of Delray Beach, Florida. Mr. Remus was producer of the Victoria Centennial Pageant this year and Miss Sommers, a teacher at the Victoria School of Theatrical Arts, met her fiance when asked to choreograph dances for the pageant. The marriage will take place on Nov. 24 in St. George the Martyr Church, the Rev. William Hills officiating. Miss Sommers has chosen Miss Jane Bowering, runner-up in the Miss Centennial Contest, as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Sharon Dorman and Miss Pamela Mezger.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Battle, Mrs. W. J. Moore and Mrs. Irene Butler have just returned from Vancouver where they attended the 100th birthday of their aunt, Mrs. Martha Poole. Mrs. Poole came from Ontario but has lived in Vancouver for about 50 years. She received many messages of congratulation, including telegrams from Queen Elizabeth and the Prime Minister.

Psoriasis New "Break Through"

A new lotion, now appearing in Canadian drug stores shows great promise as a palliative for the skin condition known as psoriasis. The ingredients, among which is 5-Glyoxyldiureid and a Picis Carbonis solution usually employed separately by skin specialists, combined, these chemicals have been brought together in a stainless, pleasant to use, economical lotion. It will be sold without prescription and marketed under the trade name of Psoramyl. Literature to physicians on request.

Youthful suit in black and white hound-stooth check is ideal for the college girl. Both skirt and jacket can be worn separately, and since they are in 55 per cent "Terylene" 45 per cent wool they will remain trim and wrinkle free.

200 Wigs Weekly

By PATRICIA BUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — Remember when women wore wigs only if they didn't have hair of their own?

Today, the more hair you have, the better you can be fitted with a wig, says Louis Collins Cohen, president of Wig Creations of Canada. And fashion wigs are more comfortable when a woman has lots of her own hair to act as a cushion.

Mr. Cohen says fashion-conscious women are reviving the custom of wearing wigs which dates back to the early Egyptian era.

More than 200 fashion wigs are sold in Canada every week, and he predicts that in a few years women will change their hair as casually as they change their hats.

Wigs range in price from $100 to $500 each, depending on the quality and length of hair used, and the way they are constructed.

Most expensive wigs are made with fine, lustrous and wavy human hair bought from peasant women and nuns in Ireland, France, Germany, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, most of whom have never seen the inside of a beauty parlor.

SOME MACHINE-MADE

Machine-made wigs, which cost about $100, use far Eastern or Indian hair. Hair from India is fine but tends to lack vitality, while hair from Oriental countries is course and has little tendency to curl.

"A fashion wig, made of good quality thick hair, and which will hold any type of modern style, can be bought for about $250," says Mr. Cohen.

Wigs cover the hairline completely and so can be any color, but Mr. Cohen suggests the first wig a woman buys should be nearly the shade of her own hair so she won't feel self-conscious and will get used to wearing it quicker.

Busiest Summer

The members of the board of directors of the VON assembled for the first meeting since the summer recess when Miss Elizabeth Riddell, district director, gave a comprehensive report on the activities of the Victoria branch for June, July and August.

The summer had been an exceptionally busy one—4,095 visits were made to medical and surgical cases. In addition to Parentcraft classes, 2,058 had received health instruction.

Through the "Housekeeping" fund, three new mothers were assisted in their first weeks at home.

The Stubborn Onion

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES

One of the problems we have in growing onions, particularly in a cool, dampish season, is to persuade the stupid things to stop growing and ripen off. You can't just yank them out of the ground by the scruff of the neck while their leaves are still green and sappy, for if you pull up an onion while it is in active growth, it won't keep in storage.

Normally, after a full season of growth, the foliage will start to show a little yellow at the tip and will sometimes fall down of its own accord. Only too often, though, they just stay green and upright, and have to be given a strong hint that the honeymoon is over.

* * *

The traditional way of jolting an onion out of its youthful growing habit is to bend down the foliage, which cuts off the supply of sap to the leaves. Bend the leaves toward the north so they won't shade the bulbs, for the onions need all the sun they can get to ripen properly. At the same time, take out any weeds which might cast shade, and scrape away any soil which may have become mounded up so the bulb is sitting right up on the surface, fully exposed to the sun and air and with only its roots buried.

This top-bending stunt works pretty well when the leaves are a little on the limp side. When they are brittle and turgid with sap, however, they may crack when bent over, and this isn't good. When the tops are found to be in this brittle, sappy condition, it is better to switch to a different technique, cutting or breaking some of the deeper roots.

One good way is to go down the row with a digging fork, inserting the tines on the slant under the bulbs. Pry up gently, just enough until you feel the roots break in the ground, but without heaving the onions out of the ground. The tops should go limp soon after this operation, permitting their bending over to the north.

* * *

It is safe to take up the onions when the leaves are more yellow than green, although not completely ripened. Handle the bulbs as carefully as you would eggs, for any bruising at this stage would ruin their storage qualities.

Once lifted, the onions should have a further period of ripening, and for this, they need a good baking in the driest, sunniest spot you can find. A greenhouse, coldframe or sunporch would be ideal, but if no glass is available, spread them out on a hard, dry path in full sun, turning occasionally so all parts of the bulb are exposed to sunlight. Keep a sheet of plastic handy to cover them when rain threatens and at night to keep the dew off.

* * *

I remember one occasion when a lady really went to extremes to ripen her onions properly—she had hung them out to dry on her clothesline, each onion neatly pinned with a clothes peg!

The ripening process is completed when the roots and tops crumble when rubbed with the hands, and at this stage the onions can be cleaned up and stored. The proper onion sacks, made of netting, are ideal, as onions need plenty of air, or you can rope and hang them in the Italian style. Ideal temperature for good storage is a little below 50 degrees, and if in the basement, they should be up off the damp floor. Any specimens with abnormally thick necks should be set aside for immediate use, as they are not likely to keep well.

Bluenose Replica to Be Built

'Dime' Ship to Sail Again

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP) — The blueprints have been unrolled from a dusty drawer, the carpenters in the old seafaring town of Lunenburg, N.S., are ready to work, and Capt. Angus Walters is about to see a dream come true.

A second Bluenose is to be built this winter.

A Halifax brewery plans to finance construction of a replica of the racing-fishing schooner Bluenose which sailed to four North Atlantic fishermen's championships in the 1920s.

* * *

Launched from Smith and Rhuland's Lunenburg shipyard in March, 1921, the 142 - foot Bluenose was commanded by Capt. Walters until she was sold to the West Indies Trading Company in 1942. Her topmasts were taken down and an engine installed. She carried cargo around the Caribbean until she struck a coral reef off Haiti one dark night in 1946 and went to the bottom.

Capt. Walters, now 81, has carried on a relentless campaign either to have the old Bluenose salvaged or another built from the same plans.

Since 1960 he has been head of a committee dedicated to building Bluenose II.

* * *

It wasn't the technicalities of building or rigging that blocked plans for a new Bluenose, however. It was lack of money.

Then a few weeks ago the brewing firm of Oland and Son solved this by offering to foot the bill, with the provision that it would be used to promote the company's products.

President Victor Oland said the new Bluenose will not be raced but will be exhibited throughout the Maritimes to promote the area's seafaring heritage.

* * *

Her keel will be laid this fall and she is expected to be ready for launching next spring. Smith and Rhuland will build her and the man who designed the first Bluenose will supply the original plans.

W. J. Roue, 83, of neighboring Dartmouth, a naval architect who taught himself the exacting craft of ship designing, is still actively engaged in the business. He estimates the new Bluenose could be built for as little as $80,000 but will probably cost a lot more.

* * *

If the shipwrights follow his plans exactly, he says, they can reproduce the Bluenose down to the last detail.

Mr. Roue told how the original 154-ton Bluenose came to be built. The schooners out of Lunenburg and Gloucester, Mass., held races every year after the summer fishing season on the Grand Banks. Every year the Americans won.

A group of Lunenburg men, including Capt. Walters, decided to build a vessel that would beat the Americans. They asked Mr. Roue to draw the plans.

Mr. Roue worked by the primary theory in ship designing that if the bow is perfectly formed the displaced water coming from underneath will push the ship ahead endlessly.

* * *

Although he admits the impossibility of building a ship powered by her underwater shape alone, this theory is responsible for whether a ship sails well.

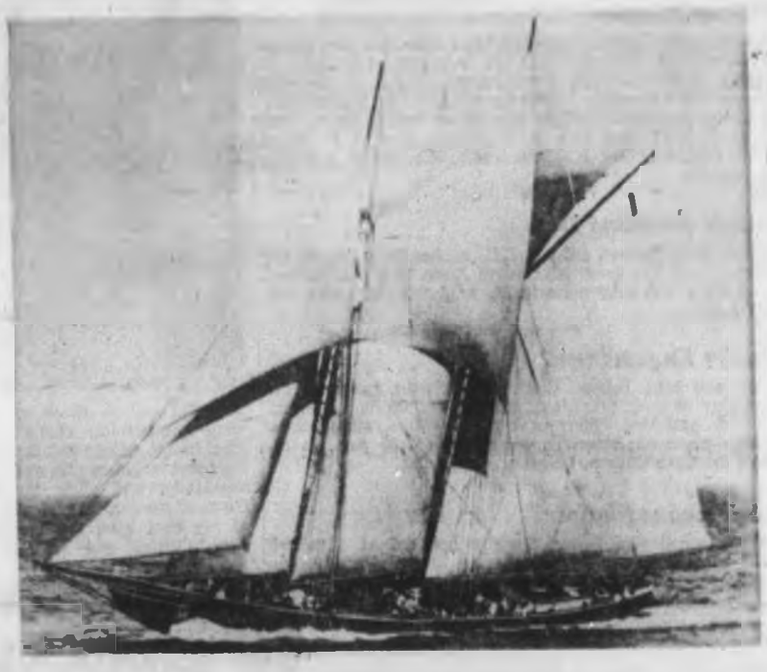

When the Bluenose was ready for launching the general feeling around Lunenburg was that she wouldn't be particularly fast. Grand Banks skippers said she didn't have the right shape.

Bluenose proved them wrong. She was beaten in only two races, one because of a technicality.

* * *

The Bluenose, commemorated on the back of the Canadian dime, carried eight sails with an area of about 9,900 square feet when fully rigged. The greatest pulling power was in the mainsail and foresail. Rigged to her two topmasts were the fore and main gaff topsails and the main topmast staysail. She carried three headsails, the fore-staysail, or jumbo, jib and flying jib.

African Thieves Slash and Fish for Loot

Robbed While They Wait

By ANDREW WILSON

NAIROBI (OFNS) — Crime has many faces in Africa, and often curious methods.

In Kenya, Nairobi's tough River Road area is given to outbreaks of watch thefts from the owners' wrists. The thief waits for a traffic jam. Then he dashes out from the sidewalk crowds, and with a razor-sharp knife, cuts the watch from the motorist as he rests his arm on an open car window.

It is done with skill as well as speed. There are few cases of injury.

* * *

Different virtuosity is practiced in housebreaking where windows are protected with elaborate iron grilles. The favorite method is to remove one pane of glass and put in a child who can wriggle through an opening 10 inches square.

Another is to use a fishing rod through an opening to hook objects out of reach. Some of the fishing rod thieves weave into their lines fragments of razor blade to deter disturbed householders from grabbing them.

The loot is often of dubious value—an odd shoe, a single cuff link, a European dinner jacket. In Leopoldville a thief got the British Consul's bowler hat.

Sometimes African thieves pay a terrible penalty among their own folk. In Kabete, near Nairobi, last month, an African found stealing maize from another's plot was slashed to death with panga knives. Another, merely suspected of stealing a bicycle, was killed by a crowd of 300.

* * *

Nairobi police recently exhibited forged cheques, passed by a gang which bribed office boys to steal cheque forms from their employers. Signatures were copied from torn-up letters in waste paper baskets; and by sending another "office boy" with a forged request for a bank statement the gang made sure the victim's account had sufficient credit.

* * *

This forging operation is the first on such a scale in East Africa, but it has precedents on Africa's West Coast, where skills are more advanced.

A bank manager in Leopoldville recalls that when he worked in Nigeria and Ghana he experienced 200 attempts a year to obtain money by false pretenses. The Congo he described as a "backward" country because he had known only three attempts in a year.

Taylor, Burton Planning To Steal Show from Cleo

Hollywood Today — By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, closer than ever, have decided they will not come to the U.S. until the premiere of Cleopatra, destined for Easter showing in New York. They will be the whole show—and how.

* * *

Note to producers offering roles to Liz: Don't bother, unless there is something in the same movie for Richard. Miss Taylor would rather rust on he riches than risk being in a film that would take her from Burton's side . . . I can't help but wonder how long-suffering Mrs. Sybil Burton can be.

Greta Garbo may be interested in producer Henry Weinstein's hope of buying the script of The Visit. "How would you like to see Garbo in the role played by Lynn Fontanne on the stage?" I would like that very much. Ingrid Bergman and Tony Quinn were set for the movie before it was abandoned.

* * *

Jayne Mansfield's new agent also handles Audrey Hepburn and E. Taylor. He is now talking a deal with Warners for Jayne to star in the screen version of Alexander King's best seller, May This House be Safe from Tigers.

* * *

Tony Randall would rather be the lover himself, he told me recently. All the lovers want him for their best friend in the film. Now there is talk that he will join Rock Hudson in There were two Irishmen. As Rock's best friend. Of course.

* * *

We are having a circus cycle. There's Jumbo, and the forthcoming John Wayne circus picture. Now George Pal is sending The Circus of Dr. Lao to Laurence Harvey in Dublin, where Larry is starring in The Running Man.

Wife of Victim Planned Divorce

EDMONTON (CP) — A Crown witness testified Thursday at the Frank Willey murder trial that Willey's wife intended to divorce her husband and marry Raymond Workman.

Workman, with William Huculak, is charged with capital murder in Willey's disappearance April 19.

Alfred Willey, Frank Willey's brother, said in Alberta Supreme Court that in July, 1961, he met Frank Willey's wife, Paris, and Workman at the races in Vancouver. "She said she intended to divorce Frank and marry Workman," Mr. Willey testified. "She wondered if Frank would beat her up. She was hanging on to Workman and gave him a couple of kisses."

Frank Willey, a city golf professional, disappeared April 19 when he left home by car to deliver a set of golf clubs ordered by telephone. His body has not been found despite massive and continuing searches.

The trial was in its fourth day Thursday before Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain and a six-man jury.

Willey's sister, Mrs. Rose Hall, said she and her mother arrived in Edmonton from Vancouver April 18 and went to the Willey home. She said that before Willey left the night of April 19 to deliver the golf clubs, Mrs. Willey asked during lunch for her husband's diamond ring.

"She wanted it so that he wouldn't lose it," Mrs. Hall testified.

Mrs. Hall said that two days after Willey disappeared, Paris Willey telephoned Workman, who went to the Willey residence. Mrs. Hall said the following day Workman used Willey's car to drive Mrs. Hall and her mother to Lacombe, 100 miles south of Edmonton, to visit friends.

HELPED WITH CAR

Wilbur Crosswhite, who lives in an area 20 miles southeast of Edmonton, testified that about 12:30 a.m. April 20 he was awakened by a man who wanted help in freeing a car that was stuck.

Mr. Croswhite said that the tail-light of the car was broken during efforts to free the vehicle.

A city police detective previously testified that he found a piece of chrome in a field southeast of Edmonton and later matched it with the broken tail-light of a car that had been rented by Workman April 14-24.

HE WAS SCARED

Paul Osborne, also known as Paul Hadley, testified Thursday morning that Workman asked him to help kill a man but he refused because he was scared.

Osborne said Workman telephoned him the night of April 19 and said he had gone through with the killing. Osborne's common-law wife told the court Workman was not at the Hadley residence the night of April 19.

Osborne, in answer to a question from Frank Dunne, counsel for Huculak, told the court that no name was mentioned in his talks with Workman about a killing.

Oil Drillers Lack Work

CALGARY (CP)—The oil and gas well drilling industry is in "dire straits," the Canadian Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors was told at its quarterly meeting here Thursday.

W. P. Clements jr., of Dallas, Texas, said of the 3,000 rigs available for work in the U.S. only 1,000 were in operation.

Russian Religion At Bay

MOSCOW (AP) — An intensified drive against religion has been launched in the Soviet Union. One newspaper reported a collective farm took over an orthodox convent—nuns, sheep, oxen and wine barrels.

Wednesday an order by the All-Russian Council of Trade Unions demanded members organize meetings, TV programs and theatrical pieces, and, where necessary, go into people's homes to drive out belief in God.

Sooke Area

Search Intensified

Search for a 69-year-old Victoria man, missing in the Sooke area since Sunday, has been extended following reports of his being seen at Whiffin Spit and on the West Coast Road.

The missing man, John Holland of 2838 Scott, was visiting his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Roberts of Grant Road, Sooke, Sunday.

He went for a walk and failed to return.

A tracking dog, two members of the RCMP and a search party of 30 loggers mounted a full-scale search Monday.

Mr. Holland's daughter told the Colonist later he might have been given a lift to Nanaimo Lakes, the country where he was born and raised.

Police said there had been several reports of his being seen in the Sooke area and each was being investigated.

Lumber Quota Dead Issue

PORTLAND (CP)—A leading U.S. lumber industry official says he sees little hope of the industry getting an import quota against Canadian lumber or a suggested 10 per cent surtax on Canadian softwoods.

G. Cleveland Edgett, executive vice-president of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, was speaking at a meeting of lumber producers Wednesday night.

St. Luke's Players

Melodrama Wins Opening Audience

By MYRA HALL

The St. Luke's Players staged an excellent performance of 'Lily, the Felon's Daughter', a gay 90s melodrama, in St. Luke's Parish Hall last night.

Harry Lukey and Dorothy Stanner set the mood for the evening by leading the audience of 200 in song, with such old-time favorites as Clementine, Silver Threads Among the Gold, and Bicycle Built for Two.

As a salute to the city's centenary, the setting was the parlor of a Victoria home. Lily, played by Margery Bridgeman, held the sympathy of the capacity audience as they hissed the two villians, played by Don Martin and Noel Ethell. Love's Old Sweet Song by Evanne Murray and Dennis Kershaw was a lot of fun.

Good portrayals were given by Roy Blevins, Lynn Kershaw, Betty Jeanpierre, Charles Gibson, May Mack and Blossom Johnston.

Education Conference

English Speaking Rules Should Be Flexible

EDMONTON (CP) — Teachers waste time teaching a grammar developed by scholars and based upon an old language structure. Dr. R. H. Chapman of Fredericton told the Canadian Education Association Thursday.

Dr. Chapman, director of teacher training and chief county superintendent for New Brunswick, said:

"We need rules, but the number should be limited. When youth is compelled to use such expressions as hip and dig it's a sign that they are attempting to compensate and rebel against what is being taught. It's impossible to teach English based on Latin rules."

Charles Rittenhouse of Montreal, co-ordinator of English for the greater Montreal Protestant School Board, said educationists can't be too intolerant of the use of common expressions, which may not be correct grammar.

Environment plays a major role in the way a person speaks and it is important a person be natural when speaking. Often those who use correct and precise language when speaking sound harsh and phoney to the ear.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING OPPORTUNITY
BRITISH COLUMBIA VOCATIONAL SCHOOL VICTORIA
(Sponsored jointly by the Federal-Provincial Governments)

I. VOCATIONAL PREPARATORY PROGRAM
This program is designed for unemployed persons who are having difficulty in finding employment because of a low academic standing.
Depending upon the applicants accepted for training, the program will consist of two courses:
1. To upgrade individuals of less than Grade X standing to a Grade X equivalency standing (general program).
2. To upgrade individuals of less than Grade XII standing to a Grade XII equivalency standing (general program).
The successful completion of either of these two courses may lead the person into direct employment or qualify him for entry into specific vocational training.
The courses of six months' duration will commence on October 15, 1962, and will be in operation [illegible] a.m. to [illegible] p.m. daily Monday through Friday.
Prospective applicants must be 18 years of age, have been out of school for at least one year and must be registered as being unemployed. Application for training must be made through the local National Employment Services Office.
II. COMMERCIAL "BRUSH-UP"
A course designed to provide training in typing and shorthand to bring suitable applicants up to acceptable commercial standards.
Applicants must be registered with the National Employment Service as being unemployed and must have previous experience in typing and shorthand.
Commencement date for the training of those approved will depend upon vacancies occurring in the class presently in operation.

CEDAR
SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available — a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

With its "grow-in" workability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction.

It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior.

DURABILITY

Western Red Cedar is one of the most durable species known. It's heartwood is highly resistant to decay and can be counted on for long and worthy service when conditions favoring decay prevail.

FROM!

"FOREST"
CEDAR

FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1⅛" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths, "FOREST" siding is a new type of siding obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

APPEARANCE?

For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines. Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 2-inch in 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of this grade.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES

"FOREST" siding, with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume, adds to the structural STRENGTH and solidity of the building. The design of "FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

SPY'S EYE review of the first episode of the 90-minute Virginians western: "As a half-hour western, it would have been mediocre. As a 90-minute western, it was rotten." . . . Carol Burnett is set for three TV specials this season, one a repeat of her show with Julie Andrews, one (in February) including material from her road show, and the third a new musical version of Calamity Jane. . . . NBC is still planning a series for George C. Scott, the man who turned down an Oscar nomination for his performance in The Hustler. . . . Same network has a series set for Dana Andrews in which he plays a marriage counselor. . . . NBC has signed Sir Michael Redgrave and Sir Ralph Richardson for an hour-long special about William Shakespeare Nov. 30. . . . Mr. Ed is really a smart horse. With his show now seen in foreign countries, he speaks in at least 10 languages. . . . Mary Martin's Peter Pan spectacular will be repeated Feb. 9 on NBC.

"And you crab about re runs! These speeches are the same as last election!"

Winning Contract

Holding a sound opening bid across from a partner who has opened the bidding, North decided not to settle for less than game. With his five-card trump support, he was not worried that South's opening bid might have been on a short club suit.

Vul: N-S

NORTH
♠ 6 4 3
♥ A Q 4
♦ 8 2
♣ A K 9 8 3

WEST

SOUTH (D)
♠ A K Q 8
♥ K J
♦ 10 5
♣ J 10 7 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	3 ♦	5 ♣	All pass

Opening lead: ♦ A

In deciding what his opening lead should be, West reasoned that if North had the diamond king, he might have tried three no trump, so West decided on the diamond ace. It proved to be a good choice.

East now had to guess what his partner held for his preemptive jump-overcall. It was most likely that his values were concentrated in the diamond suit, so on the opening lead, East dropped the diamond king. He tought that the most likely place to look for the setting trick was by promoting his trump queen.

West cashed the diamond queen and continued with the jack. Declarer now faced a Hobson's choice: he could discard from dummy while East ruffed with the club queen, or he could ruff with dummy's king and try to drop the queen of trumps. The club king was played and followed by the club ace, but to no avail. The defence had found the only way to beat the contract by upping the position of East club queen.

Scientist or Actor Boy Seeks Fame

By BRUCE McLEAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unlike many boy actors, Michael Boncoeur has provided for both success and failure in his plans for the future.

"If I can become a competent actor, then science will be my hobby," said the 13-year-old Vancouver youngster.

"If I can't, then I'll be a scientist with acting as a hobby."

GOOD BET

Michael's current prospects make it a good bet that science will be his hobby.

He topped 10 other young performers in casting for the role of Ptolemy in the Vancouver International Festival production of George Bernard Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra.

"Michael shows a great deal of promise," said Dr. Donald Soule, production manager of the play.

MILD YOUNG MAN

Michael, already a seasoned television performer, is a mild, serious young man offstage, with hazel eyes and light brown hair.

He is thrilled by his first professional stage role (his pay will be $300) but not overawed by it.

WATCHED, LISTENED

During rehearsals for Caesar and Cleopatra, Michael took a workmanlike attitude, seldom missing a cue and sitting alone in a corner of the theatre when not actually taking part.

He watched every move and listened to every word from Toronto actor Mavor Moore portraying Caesar and Tobi Weinberg in the part of Cleopatra.

"I learn just as much sitting here as I do on stage," he said. "It's wonderful to watch people like Mr. Moore and Miss Weinberg working."

Michael's mother, Mrs. Jean Boncoeur, says he is precocious.

LEARNS FENCING

"He plays the clarinet well, shows promise as a painter, gets first-class marks at school and was president of his class last term," she said of her only child.

"And his surname suits him. The French 'Boncoeur' means good heart. He's very good-natured."

When the festival play run ends, Michael plans to start studying piano, ballet and fencing.

"Shakespeare is what I want to do most of all. My long-range goal is to get a part in the Shakespearean festival at Stratford."

Traffic Fines

Victor R. Forsen, 4062 Grange, careless driving, $40.

Gerhard G. Duerichen, 311 Vancouver, passing stopped vehicle, $15.

Pierre G. P. Morey, 130 Moss, key in ignition, $10.

Gordon T. Perkins, 2730 Queenswood, failing to heed a sign road, $10.

Kenneth E. Southey, 2124 Quimper, no chauffeur's licence, $15.

SAANICH

Gordon Patersen, 6332 Central Saanich, speeding, $25 and license suspension.

George Nestor, 3231 Maple, no driver's licence $10.

James Fawcett, 57 Wellington, turning from the wrong lane, $15.

Arthur Harrison, 50 South Turner, driving without due care and attention, $40 and licence suspension.

Janice Andrew, 1275 Garkil, driving without due care and attention, $35.

ROMANIAN SCHOOLS

Almost 80,000 pupils—about twice as many as in 1956—entered vocational and technical schools in Romania in 1962.

Central Office For Tourism?

KELOWNA (CP)—The B.C. Tourist Association decided Thursday to investigate the possibility of setting up a central tourist administrative office for the province.

The proposal, advanced by W. E. Hawkins of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, got some opposition from Vancouver delegates. But the association convention decided to have its new executive—to be elected Friday—investigate and report back.

Mr. Hawkins said such an office would be a clearing house for all provincial tourist information and would liaison with government and tourist regions to eliminate duplication of effort and money.

Ian Ross of Victoria said the idea generally was good but possibly the money could be better spent on regional advertising and promotion.

It was suggested the office be set up at a cost not exceeding $20,000.

Silver Threads

Conversion Plan Rejected

Centennial Square

Civic plans to convert an existing building on Fisgard Street for use as a senior citizens recreation centre within the Centennial Square scheme have met with a rebuff from the Silver Threads Service.

Owen Karn, president of the Community Chest agency which looks after the needs of elderly people, said a properly planned new building capable of accommodating 1,500 people was "most imperative."

In a letter received at City Hall yesterday, Mr. Karn said the Silver Threads Service endorsed the general principle of locating a proposed recreation centre for elderly people within the proposed civic plaza.

He said the location in the vicinity of the present City Hall was "excellent."

"It is easily accessible to our elder citizens and would at the same time provide for increased use of restaurant and park facilities to be included in the square. Unlike other projects . . . it would not increase the parking problem in the area," said Mr. Karn.

"In considering available sites, however, and reviewing the type of building necessary for a varied recreation program involving an estimated 1,500 people a week, we are of the opinion no existing building in the area could be made suitable by renovation," the president said.

Mr. Karn added: "It is our view that a new building properly planned as a senior citizen recreation centre is most imperative."

BRIEF OFFERED

The letter went on to urge city council to give the objections raised by the Silver Threads Service "earnest consideration" in planning what it termed "a permanent feature of our community life.

Anticipating the need for the new downtown recreation centre, Silver Threads appointed a committee to draft requirements. Its findings were presented to the provincial government some time ago in the form of a brief which accompanied Mr. Karn's letter to City Hall.

The brief said the cost of a new centre with a total floor area of about 15,000 square feet would run in the neighborhood of $250,000 excluding furnishings and special hobby equipment.

Minimum site area for such a building, the brief said, would be about 120 feet by 150 feet.

Mr. Karn said in his letter the Chest agency was willing to "explore the possibilities of promoting a fund drive" to raise the amount remaining after government grants.

'62 May See Records Fall

VANCOUVER (CP)—A deputy minister said Thursday night B.C. might break all records in trade and commerce this year.

"The outlook, judging from our present standards, is a bright one indeed," said T. L. Sturgess of the B.C. trade and commerce department at a meeting of the North Vancouver Chamber of Commerce.

"I think this year will be a good one and may be the best we've ever had."

He said the usual indicators were up.

Oil production this year was 11 times greater than last, gas production has increased 21 per cent, the number of logs sawn and the amount of timber scaled by the forestry industry was higher, the expansion of the pulp and paper industry was amazing and for the first time B.C. manufacturers may produce $2,000,000,000 worth of goods.

However, the province still imported too many items from the United States that could be produced here.

TOO MANY GRAPES

A total of $1,500,000 worth of grapes were imported last year for four B.C. wineries.

"That's too much. We can grow grapes here and we should. We can go to more acreage and produce more here to cut down imports."

The same thing applied to strawberries.

He said the province's per capita income of $809 was second only to Ontario's $829 in Canada. The figure of five per cent of the labor force that was unemployed was comparable to the rest of the country.

Encephalitis Toll Now 20

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI)—Health officials yesterday reported the 20th death in Florida this summer from encephalitis, a sleeping sickness carried by migratory birds and transmitted to humans by mosquitoes.

Fourteen of the deaths have occurred in Pinellas (St. Petersburg) county, where the encephalitis outbreak has been centred. There are 183 suspected cases and 90 confirmed cases in the state.

Canoeist Reaches Tidewater

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Alex Laird, 23, Tustin, Calif., paddled into the Columbia River estuary Thursday to end a 1,288-mile canoe trip from the source of the river to its mouth.

It took Laird 78 days to paddle downstream from Canal Flats, B.C., to the coastal city of Astoria. He said he passed through lonely country and at times almost talked to himself.

"But it was fantastically beautiful country," he added.

Ben Bella Victory No Surprise

ALGIERS (UPI) — Early returns from independent Algeria's first elections indicated today an overwhelming—but unsurprising—victory for strongman Ahmed Ben Bella.

HAND-PICKED

The 196 "candidates" for the constituent assembly, hand-picked by Ben Bella's political bureau, were unopposed. Algerians could vote only "yes" or "no" for each member, and on a referendum outlining the first parliament's duties.

Scattered violence marred the voting yesterday. Five persons were reported kidnapped and news of clashes reached the capital from nearby towns.

Supersonic Travel Facing Tough Rules

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Civil Aviation Organization announced agreement Thursday on a set of tough rules for supersonic passenger aircraft.

The United Nations organization's member airlines have agreed that, when faster-than-sound passenger planes are introduced, they must be no noisier than ordinary jets. They must be able to use existing airports and get along without any special ground services or facilities.

Governments participating in the development of supersonic civil aircraft were "urged to make sure that these aircraft will be able to operate at a level of safety at least equal to that of commercial aircraft in service at the time the supersonics are introduced."

Tradesmen Unruffled By Overdraft Ban

Greater Victoria's small businessmen seemed unruffled by the recent decision of chartered banks to stop allowing overdrafts.

Following reports from Ontario that small businessmen there are in a ferment over the change in bank policy, the Colonist checked with business experts in this area.

But nobody seemed worried, excited or upset by the change.

INFORMAL LOAN

Under the overdraft system, if a businessman had insufficient funds in his account to meet a cheque presented at the bank, the bank would honor the cheque and—in effect—make an informal loan to the businessman.

Under the new system, a businessman must formally apply for a loan and when there is insufficient money in an account to meet a cheque, the bank honors the cheque up to the amount of the loan.

NOT AFFECTED

Perhaps the most numerous type of small business in this area is the neighborhood grocery store but Lawrence Westendale, president of the Independent Merchants' Co-operative Association of Victoria—which represents many of the small groceries—said they are not affected.

"Most of this business is in cash," he said. "The wholesale houses don't leave you much leeway now.

"It has been that way for about a year. Very few small city businesses are operating on overdrafts—we pay cash."

CASH-AND-CARRY

Mr. Westendale said both W. H. Malkin Ltd. and Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd.—two of the city's largest wholesale grocery supply firms—operate cash-and-carry departments which almost all small grocers use.

John Wallace, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber had not received any complaints from members.

"No doubt it will mean difficulties for the small businessman if he has been in the habit of operating on an overdraft.

"Since the banks gave notice of this I have heard a few personal complaints from a very few people.

"I was quite surprised at how easily this went through."

Asked if he thought the ban on overdrafts had hit the small businessman in Greater Victoria, chartered accountant G. Fitzpatrick Dunn said:

MORE AWARE

"I don't think so, no. I think . . . if a bank will grant an overdraft it will generally grant a loan.

"It will make small businessmen more conscious of their day-to-day accounts."

A-Research In Red China

TOKYO (UPI)—Chinese Communist foreign minister Chen Yi has disclosed that the Peiping regime is engaged in large-scale nuclear weapons research, Japanese press reports.

Japanese newsmen reported that Chen, who also is a vice-premier, made the disclosure in a Peiping news conference yesterday but declined to reveal how near China is to conducting its first nuclear bomb test.

Red Tidal Wave

HONG KONG (Reuters)—A tidal wave hit the Communist Chinese city of Shanghai early last month causing damage estimated at $15,000,000, the South China Morning Post reported Wednesday.

SIU Inquiry

Union Kept Clubs

OTTAWA (CP) — About 50 baseball bats and a number of pieces of two-by-four-inch lumber with handles were kept in the basement of the Seafarers International Union of Canada, a witness told the federal shipping inquiry Thursday.

"Was there any baseball played?" asked Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of British Columbia, conducting the inquiry into labor strife on the Great Lakes.

No, replied president Richard Greaves of the National Association of Marine Engineers, whose complaints of raiding by the SIU led to the 1960 expulsion of that union from the Canadian Labor Congress.

WERE CHUMS

Mr. Greaves was a day-long witness who described his observations during a period of chummyness with SIU president Hal Banks, extending from late 1956 to about June, 1958.

BANKS ANGERED

Mr. Banks became angered at an SIU official named Bill Baxter because his only excuse for certain court testimony was that he wouldn't tell a lie under oath.

DO NOT SHIP

In Mr. Greaves' presence, Br. Banks ordered a seaman out of his office for complaining about having to pay another $73 to rejoin the SIU and told the seaman he was on the "do-not-ship" list for 99 years.

Mr. Greaves shed some light on the tangled history of the Bitle N.A.M.E., now affiliated with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) and an arch opponent of the SIU.

A 10-week strike on Canadian Pacific Railway ferries on the West Coast was being continued by the SIU with the objective of breaking the N.A.M.E. So the N.A.M.E. struck on the Black Ball Ferry Line's vessels, bringing B.C. government intervention which ended the strike.

Senate Warns Kremlin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Thursday to serve clear notice on the Kremlin that the United States will fight to prevent Cuba from being turned into a military threat to any of its neighbors.

A resolution warning that any aggressive buildup "could have the gravest possible consequences" was adopted by a vote of 86 to 1 after a three-hour debate.

NOT FAR ENOUGH

The lone negative vote was cast by Senator Winston L. Prouty (Rep. Vt.), who said the resolution does not go far enough.

The House debated a companion resolution approved by its foreign affairs committee and planned to speed it to the White House for President Kennedy's Enforcement.

MORE ARMS

Punctuating the congressional action was a report indicating a substantial increase in Russian arms deliveries to Cuba in the last month. U.S. officials said that since late July the Soviets have delivered between 45 and 70 shiploads of military equipment and personnel to the Cubans.

The action came as the Havana radio broadcast a pledge by Communist China to support Cuba in its "fight against the aggression of North American imperialism."

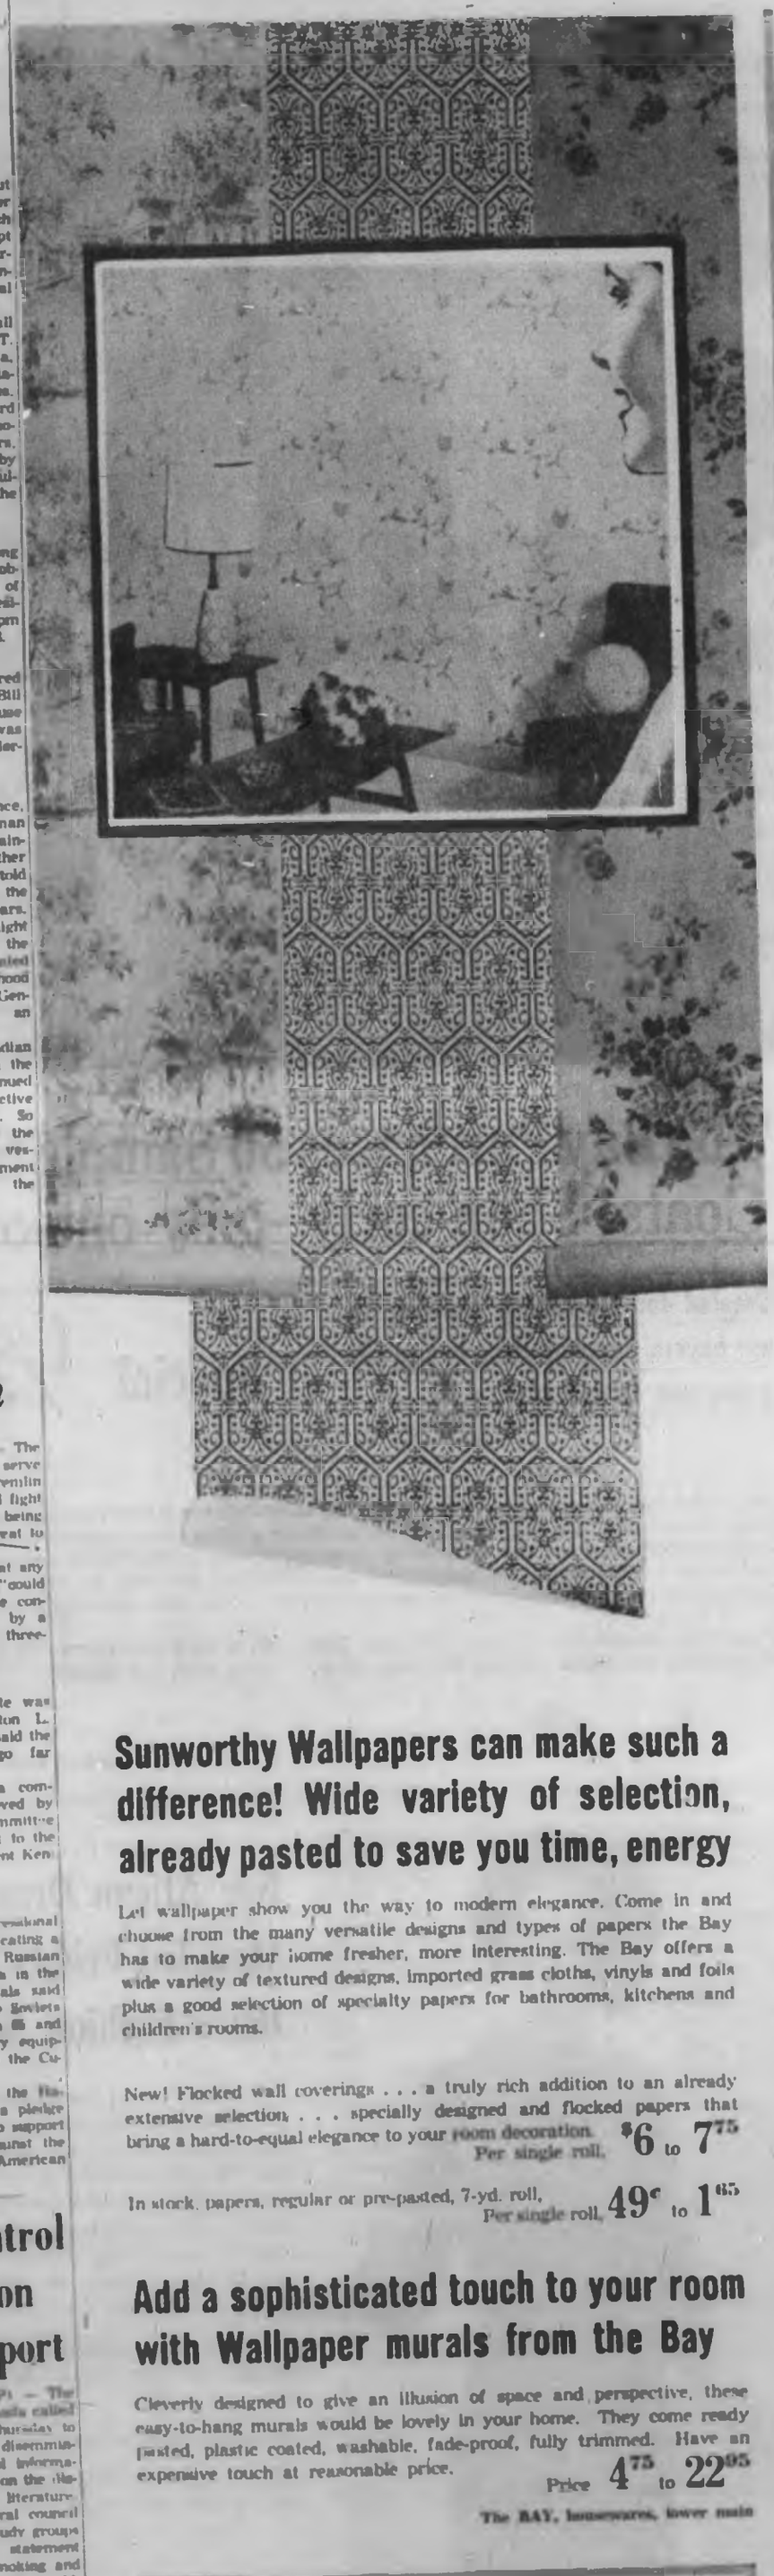

Birth Control Information Wins Support

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The United Church of Canada called on the government Thursday to legalize the careful dissemination of birth control information and crack down on the distribution of obscene literature.

The church's general council also commissioned study groups to draft an official statement on the dangers of smoking and ordered publication of a 12-point declaration on observance of the Sabbath.

The assembly cleared up resolutions in its revolutionary report on marriage and divorce presented first last Monday—and divided on whether married women should be full-time ministers—in one of the hottest debates of the nine-day meeting.

Shaky Economy

Czech Slump May Oust Boss

ANTONIN NOVOTNY
. . . on the skids?

By DAVID OANCIA
Second in a Series

PRAGUE (CP) — The Czechoslovak Communist party approaches the final stages of preparations for its 12th congress in December against a background of growing economic problems.

The magnitude of these—the planners call them disproportions—was emphasized in late August when the government announced in effect it would scrap the current five-year plan not due to end until 1965.

The decision could have repercussions that ultimately will be felt far beyond the economic front. There is even speculation it may result in further changes in the top echelon of present party leadership.

TARGET FAILURE

Abandonment results from failure to hit the plan's target in metallurgy, heavy engineering, capital construction and agriculture.

"Despite clear directives from the party and the government, shortcomings are not being removed with sufficient determination," said deputy Frantisek Kejda in the report of the planning and budget committee.

STEEL OUTPUT FALLS

"This unfavorable development at the beginning of 1962 is causing considerable difficulties in the second half of the year and is worsening the basis for the plan for 1963."

Part of the trouble is in heavy industry. Deficiencies of 1.8 per cent in steel production and 2.5 per cent in rolled stock have had a chain reaction effect on other sectors. The engineering industry, one of the world's most advanced, was strapped consequently by a lack of materials.

LOVE SAUERKRAUT

Agricultural production was roughly seven per cent below the planned level. This had an immediate impact on the hard-working Czechoslovaks who love their Pilsener beer, meat, noodles and sauerkraut.

They spend hours in lineups at stores selling meat, butter, eggs and other commodities. Often it's not the quality or the quantity they were after.

Trekkers Stay At Camp

PRINCETON (CP) — Freedomite Doukhobors threw out advice of their lawyer Thursday and decided to stay encamped here rather than continue a march to the West. (See Page 9.)

"We are not going to march into police clubs," said Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, spokesman for the 1,300 Freedomites. "We will stay."

The Freedomites were told Wednesday night by Vancouver lawyer, George Herbrik he felt they were within their rights to continue a trek from the Kootenays to the West.

Houses Shaken

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (UPI) — Officials last night were investigating an "explosion or earth tremor" that shook houses in a 20-mile radius. Damage was described as "very slight." No injuries were reported.

To End Congestion

Divert Trucks Onto Cook Says Edgelow

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow yesterday pledged his support for a new truck route around the congested downtown area following complaints from Government Street merchants.

He would like to see trucks diverted to Cook Street.

After an on-the-spot assessment of the situation, the city public works chairman said he favored banning of heavily-laden trucks from the main downtown arteries.

"When these trucks start up with their heavy loads the noise is so great that the merchants can't even talk to their customers," Ald. Edgelow said.

FUMES NUISANCE

Exhaust fumes add to the nuisance and the slow-moving trucks aggravate congestion already existing on the narrow street.

"I saw as many as five big trucks in the space of two blocks yesterday afternoon," Ald. Edgelow said.

NEW TRUCK ROUTE

"We've got to do something at once to create a new truck route. I will suggest to city council that we make the route by way of Bay Street to Cook, allowing trucks heading for Ogden Point and Outer Wharf to go any way they wish after they're past the downtown section."

CONGESTION HAZARD

Ald. Edgelow said that as chairman of public works he is opposed to creation of a truck route using Store, Johnson and Wharf Streets. This would only add to congestion at the ferry terminal where Mv. Coho docks and on the Causeway.

He said Government Street merchants also requested regulations covering deliveries to stores in the area before 9 a.m. each day to eliminate a major cause of traffic holdups.

NO LANE SERVICE

Many stores in the area are not served by a lane at the rear where normal daytime deliveries can be made, so that trucks must stop on Government to unload goods.

Ald. Edgelow said he didn't favor Quadra as a truck route, but Vancouver may serve almost as well as Cook Street.

The list of projects submitted by the city engineers' department for inclusion in the forthcoming winter works program included some money to be spent on a truck route following Store, Johnson and Wharf.

Student Blocked

'Nigger, Nigger, Nigger!'

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — James Meredith tried to enroll in the University of Mississippi Thursday but was turned away by Gov. Ross Barnett and left the campus with the students' chant of "Nigger, Nigger, Nigger" ringing in his ears.

Barnett, who only hours before had flown to the campus to take personal charge of the situation, was there to deal with the 29-year-old air force veteran after federal officers escorted him past the thousands of jeering students.

The governor's refusal to admit Meredith was in direct defiance of three federal court orders—including one from the U.S. Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. justice department announced last night three University of Mississippi officials had been ordered to show cause why they should not be cited for civil contempt for refusing to admit a Negro to the university.

UN Plane Crashes 10 Swedes Aboard

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—An unarmed United Nations plane on reconnaissance with 10 Swedish military men aboard crashed Thursday near a Congo-Katanga combat area, UN headquarters was told. A field report from the Congo said there was suspicion that the plane was shot down, but it gave no immediate details.

In Stockholm, a Swedish army staff spokesman said in a statement that there was good hope of finding survivors. He did not say on what the hope was based.

The Stockholm statement said 10 Swedes formed a reconnaissance unit led by Capt. Jan Toll. The spokesman declined to speculate on who might have shot the plane down.

The crash was described as just behind the lines of advanced troops of the central Congolese army in secessionist Katanga province.

Submarine Purchase Shelved

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's proposed submarine deal with Britain has been shelved, defence officials said Thursday.

No hope of reviving the scheme is foreseen during the government's austerity program.

Defence Minister Harkness announced April 11 that three submarines would be purchased from Britain.

U.S. House Votes to Chop Aid to Cuba's Traders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, in a surprise move, voted last night to cut off U.S. foreign aid to any country that trades with Cuba.

The amendment, by Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., was included as a specific provision in President Kennedy's foreign aid bill.

It was approved by voice vote despite warnings from a number of lawmakers that such a move could seriously endanger American relations with the NATO alliance and other countries.

The amendment was even opposed by Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., who is the chief congressional critic of the foreign aid program.

Passman, chairman of the house foreign aid appropriations subcommittee which recommended a $1,100,000,000 cut in the administration's aid bill warned the house that such amendments, without proper committee study and consideration, could do "great damage to the program."

City's Last Fan Was on the Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — Comedian Joe E. Brown says Victoria was a "Honky Tonk" town in 1906 when he played a long-forgotten night club.

"I was doing an acrobatic act there in the spring of 1906—I was just a boy—and we had half a house for our first performance."

The act came on for the second showing of the night and found only eight persons left in the audience.

"We did our first trick and seven more left," said Brown. "One man was sitting there."

Brown's fellow actor announced one trick was going to be cut from the act.

"Then," said Brown, "the man stood up and said: 'Fine, but hurry it up will you—I'm the janitor.'"

Mac on Market:

U.K. Must Join Or Become Weak Nation

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan told the nation last night Britain must join the Common Market or become a weak nation "in a world of giants."

He appeared on a nation-wide radio and television broadcast to give his views on Britain's proposed entry into the market and the just-ended Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

TRUE STRENGTH

"We shan't find the true strength that we have and ought to have," he declared. "We shan't be able to exercise it in a world of giants."

Commenting on the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, which ended Wednesday, Macmillan said:

EXPRESSED FEARS

"Some of the prime ministers expressed their fears and anxieties at our conference very frankly.

"Politically there was the fear that somehow or other if Britain were to join Europe the Commonwealth would never be quite the same thing again."

ALWAYS CHANGING

But the Commonwealth has never been the same—"it's always been changing, and it's still changing," he said.

Macmillan said he and his British colleagues "reject altogether the view that Britain is faced with the choice between the Commonwealth and Europe.

SIMPLE REASON

"That is not so—and for a very simple reason—the Commonwealth and European Common Market are quite different kinds of organizations.

"Both are developing in a very dramatic way, but both are quite different and the membership of one can help and not hinder the membership of the other."

John D Home, Silent

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker refused comment on his arrival here from the London conference yesterday. But he said a press conference would be held today. He arrived on the same plane with Pakistan's President Ayub Khan, here for a state visit.

Before leaving London, Mr. Diefenbaker termed the Commonwealth debate an "interim conference," and said negotiations have not been completed.

'Victory For Mac'

PARIS (UPI) — The closing communique of the Commonwealth conference appeared to mark a decisive success for Prime Minister Macmillan, French political sources said yesterday.

But they predicted serious difficulties when the Common Market negotiations will resume in October.

Truce Called In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Government artillery battled a rebel tank column 50 miles from Buenos Aires in the first fighting of Argentina's newest crisis. The rebels then agreed late Thursday night to a temporary truce and negotiations.

President Jose Maria Guido planned an early morning cabinet meeting and the rebel leader, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, was expected to attend.

Guido ordered the truce effective until 1:15 a.m., and the rebel radio told its soldiers to suspend action. The rebel communique said that if its troops got no new orders by the deadline they were to "continue previously planned movements." The deadline passed without immediate word of renewed fighting.

The clash was the first big outbreak of fighting in the three-day rebellion that claims to support a return to constitutional government in Argentina.

News dispatches from the battle area reported at least a half-dozen casualties on the rebel side.

Last to Vote First to Topple Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The crucial decision of voting precedence in the new Parliament has been tossed to the incoming Conservative Speaker, reliable informants said Thursday.

The matter is vital to the Social Credit and New Democratic parties in determining their position on votes of no confidence.

A solid alignment of the 100 Liberals, 30 Social Credit MPs and 19 New Democrats against the 116 Progressive Conservatives would defeat the government on a no-confidence motion and bring about a new election.

The Liberals, because they are the official opposition, will vote first on no-confidence motions.

The two smaller opposition groups have been jockeying for weeks for the right to vote immediately after the Liberals.

* * *

The party voting second could cast its votes in favor of a no-confidence motion, leaving the third opposition group with the difficult choice of toppling the government with its votes or voting with the Conservatives and keeping the government in office.

* * *

The Liberals have been pressing for a vote of no confidence but Social Credit and New Democrats have given indications they are not anxious for another election this year.

But neither of the smaller opposition groups particularly wants to be placed in the position of voting to keep the Conservatives in office and thus giving political opponents ammunition to use against them.

All three opposition groups severely criticized the Conservatives during the June 18 election campaign that returned a minority Conservative government.

* * *

The question of voting precedence came to a head when Commons officers drew up a tentative seating plan for the Commons chamber.

New Democrats raised a protest on the basis that this indicated that when the voting roll was called the Liberals would vote first, Social Credit second and New Democrats in the unpopular third spot.

New Democrats argued that in two previous Parliaments where there were three opposition parties the party leader with seniority of service in the House voted second even though his group was outnumbered by the third opposition group.

On the basis of these precedents, H. W. Herridge, House leader of the NDP and an MP since 1945, would vote before Social Credit leader Robert Thompson, who was first elected last June.

Imlach Threatens Punitive Action As Leafs Rebel Over Western Trip

PETERBOROUGH—On the eve of their departure for a Western Canada tour, Toronto Maple Leafs are facing a a possible player insurrection. Giving official recognizance to reports that all was not well in the camp of the Stanley Cup champions, general-manager Punch Imlach warned yesterday that any rebellion by his players would be met by tough action.

Imlach said he would throw the book at any player who refuses to make the trip.

"If they have any ethics, they will go West," he told Canadian Press. "If they don't, I'll throw everything at them from suspension to a $500 fine. Only three guys have walked out of training camp since I've been with the Leafs. That's not going to happen again."

Although all the regulars in camp took part in last night's exhibition game against Hull-Ottawa of the Eastern Professional League, there still was no assurance at last reports that the Leafs would agree to go West.

UNDECIDED

"I'll decide that when I get home," high-scoring Frank Mahovlich said last night.

Mahovlich walked out of the camp a few days back. He returned but he says he hasn't spoken to Imlach since.

Many other Leafs are also disgruntled about starting the tour without having signed their contracts. Almost all are asking for more money, perhaps encouraged by the lush contract given veteran Doug Harvey by New York Rangers, but Imlach so far hasn't given an inch.

Olmstead Goes Home

Bert Olmstead, 36-year-old leftwinger drafted from the Toronto Maple Leafs, has refused to play for the New York Rangers and probably has ended a National Hockey League career which began in 1950.

Olmstead's refusal to play with the Rangers doesn't stem from any financial disagreement with his new owners.

"I can still play in spots for a contending team," Olmstead said in a frank appraisal of his abilities, "but I can't carry a poor club any more. The Rangers want me to fire them up and if I was capable of doing it I would but I can't."

Olmstead flew into Vancouver yesterday to give his decision to manager-coach Muzz Patrick in person, was scheduled to fly back to his home in Sceptre, Sask., yesterday. It was reported that the Rangers had offered him as much as $21,000 for the season.

Defensive problems for Portland Buckaroos were all but ended yesterday by the acquisition of two new defencemen, both young and both capable.

Best news for the Buckaroos came when Boston Bruins announced they were sending Dallas Smith to the Portland club.

Smith, who'll be 21 in October, played the full 1960-61 season with the Bruins and spent most of last season with Pittsburgh in the American Hockey League.

Also due to join the Buckaroos is Martin Howe, who played the last half of last season with the San Francisco Seals on option from Toronto Maple Leafs.

Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League yesterday listed 17 players who will be with the club for an exhibition tour of Western Canada.

Making the trip are goalkeepers Gilles Boisvert and rookie Harrison Gray, defencemen Gordon Strate, Wayne Muloin, Keith Walsh, Lou Marcon and Jack Turner, and forwards Warren Hynes, Chuck Holmes, Don Chiz, Dennis Kassian, Forbes Kennedy, Bob Dillabough, Dennis Rathwell, Larry Lunde, Lyle Porter and Tom Burgess.

* * *

Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League have suspended defenceman Fred Hucul for not reporting to training camp by yesterday's 3 p.m. deadline. Hucul demanded a three-year contract and said that he and the Stampeders are "miles apart."

Meanwhile, the Stampeders did succeed in signing defenceman George McAvoy and forward Bert Fizzell.

Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, 8-1, last night. Regulars Eddie Litzenberger, Ron Stewart, Red Kelly, Dick Duff and George Armstrong each scored once while Frank Mahovlich had three assists and Dave Keon and Al Stanley had two.

* * *

Boston Bruins cut their squad to playing size yesterday with the announcement that four players were being sent to other clubs.

Going to Kingston of the EPHL are goalkeeper Bruce Gamble and defenceman Ed Westfall. Defenceman Dallas Smith was sent to Portland and forward Terry Gray will go to a club as yet unnamed.

If there were still pennant hopes in Minnesota and San Francisco, they must have died last night.

Neither New York Yankees nor Los Angeles Dodgers were scheduled yesterday, but both clubs gained ground in their drive toward a world series date as their only competition took a beating.

San Francisco Giants blew a ninth-inning lead and lost, 5-4, to St. Louis Cardinals. They now trail the Dodgers in the National League by four games, with nine left for each team. Minnesota Twins lost, 5-1, to Detroit Tigers, now trail the Yanks by 4½ games with seven left to play compared to eight for New York.

THEY BLEW IT

In both cases, they had the game and couldn't hold it.

A balk by pitcher Dick LeMay brought home the tying run for the Cards, and after Don Larsen walked Bill White intentionally, Ken Moyer lined a game-winning single to break an eight-game Cardinal losing streak.

Twins let in three unearned runs in the first inning after an error by first-baseman Vic Power. From there Phil Regan and Terry Fox held off the Twins and Al Kaline ruined them with three hits, including a two-run homer off loser Jim Kaat in the fifth.

While the mighty struggled in vain at the top of the leagues, New York Mets moved two steps closer to a record nobody wants.

Mets lost a doubleheader, 7-2 and 5-4 in 12 innings, to Houston Colts. In the process they tied the 1935 Boston Braves as the losingest team in modern National League history with 115 defeats.

Hal Smith's 12th-inning single gave the Colts the second game. The first one they got courtesy of the Mets, who committed five errors for six unearned runs.

In other National League action, Pittsburgh Pirates stopped Cincinnati, 4-3, spoiling Bob Purkey's bid for a 23rd victory, and Philadelphia split with Chicago, winning 3-1 and losing 4-1.

Sgt. Zwolak Wins Service Aggregate

Sgt. Ed Zwolak of PPCLI won the service match aggregate at Heal's Range yesterday as 90 top marksmen competed in the opening round of 14th annual Pacific Command Rifle Association meet.

Zwolak and Pte. Dave Moffat of PPCLI both finished the six service matches with an aggregate score of 257x300, but there is no shoot-off for aggregate honors, and Zwolak won on a countback.

The service match aggregate, together with the service conditions aggregate and the all-comers aggregate, combine to form the top competition of the meet, the service rifle championship.

Service conditions aggregate will be decided today from the results of the Queen's medal matches. Also scheduled are shoots with the light machine gun, the nine-millimetre Sten gun, the services six team match and the four-man fire and movement match.

There is a little hope for Sooke to Sidney waterfront fishermen this weekend.

Salmon net fishing at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait was only allowed for three days this week and will be for only three days next week, instead of the five full days of the past two weeks.

All net fishing stopped at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The fence of nets across the entrance to the Strait was lifted and the schooling coho started to seep through. It takes about two days for them to reach the Sooke waters, which should place some coho at Sooke about Friday night and see them moving along the Victoria waterfront for the weekend.

Sports fishermen will get their crack at the coho for the weekend, but they won't be easy to catch. The schools get broken up by the nets and two days doesn't allow much time for re-schooling. They will likely be scattered and temperamental and with an abundance of feed available, may be reticent to take artificial lures.

Jacksprings have been fairly plentiful at Oak Bay, Pedder and Becher Bay.

Commercial fishermen have found only fair fishing at the Strait entrance. In one day this week 250 gillnetters landed 14,000 cohos, which isn't a big-money catch . . . But it is more than twice the number of coho sport fishermen took all last year from Victoria, Sooke to Sidney and Saanich Inlet waters.

It is nearly one-quarter the 52,325 fish of all salmon species sports fishermen took in that area in all of last year, including some 28,450 grilse . . . and there is some thought worth investigating, that grilse fishing by sportsmen should be banned altogether, or severely curtailed.

* * *

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association holds its Centennial Derby, for members only, on Sunday . . . and it looks like the coho have arrived in time. Limit catches of big coho were reported Wednesday in Willis Point to McKenzie Bay waters, with the silvers rising to green and white bucktails in early mroning and to Strip-Teasers, trolled deep later in the day.

Coho are showing off Deep Cove and one of the biggest, a 14-pounder, was caught on flasher and bucktail fly.

Cowichan Bay is still a good bet for springs, although they are darkening up. Mooching has fallen off, but an Alaskan plug is working well.

Cowichan Bay coho fishing is picking up with a few fish scattered all over the bay from Cherry Point to the log booms. Some are being taken on bucktails and fluorescent Flatfish is proving a good coho lure.

Qualicum is still good for coho and the odd spring. Home Oil Co. officials from all over the continent converged on Qualicum last week and landed 150 salmon, three of them cohos weighing more than 15 pounds. It is mostly morning fishing.

* * *

There is some good coho fishing in the Comox to Campbell River waters and off Shelter Point they are getting nine, 10 and 11-pounders on green and white bucktail and spinner and bucktail and flasher. At Campbell River the coho are being taken off Quathiaski Cove and the river mouth and are reaching up to 16 pounds.

Alberni Inlet tyee fishing is still good, although a number of boats are getting skunked. Nahmint, China Creek, Franklin River, Cous Creek and off Port Alberni are all producing with China Creek the hot spot.

There are plenty of fish showing at Port Renfrew, but not many being caught.

Fresh water fishing in the lakes and at the river mouths is picking up and well worth trying. Hunters should take along their fishing rods and take advantage of the access program to fish the out-of-the-way lakes and streams. Rivers are still low.

Jack Hodgins took a five-pound and a 3:12-pound trout from Glen Lake this week on dry fly.

* * *

B.C. Forest Products Vancouver Island logging manager Harry Hobson tells us that the road in front of the Nitinat bridge was bulldozed out because the bridge is unsafe for vehicles. Hunters filled in the road last weekend, but it will be bulldozed again. Hunters and fishermen may enter the area to Tuck Lake-Nadira Mines on foot, but if they insist upon moving the bridge obstruction, the bridge will be blown, making even foot travel to the area impossible.

Portland Firepower Could Test Rangers

Hal Laycoe's Portland Buckaroos are reputed to have one of the greatest collection of goal-scorers in the history of the Western Hockey League. Monday night at Memorial Arena, Laycoe gets a chance to test his tigers against leaguers.

Competition will come from New York Rangers, who are training in Vancouver and wheting their appetites for the National Hockey League with exhibitions against WHL teams. Tonight they play their farm club, Vancouver Canucks, in Nanaimo.

THE HEADLINERS

Talk of the Rangers and you immediately think of two men—goalie Gump Worsley and right winger Andy Bathgate. They've both been making headlines in the NHL for years, and they'll both see action Monday.

Worsley, the rubber man, often took the brunt of the blame when things weren't going right for the Rangers. But he always came back to play goal, and he was there last year as the club made the playoffs.

Bathgate was trigger man on what critics claim was the best line Rangers had last season—Bathgate, Earl Ingarfield and Dean Prentice. This year Rangers have grabbed centre Bronco Horvath from Chicago and are hoping for even better things than last season.

INCLUDES ANDY

Their lineup of the moment looks like this:

Laycoe, with Don Head back in the nets, will probably team Mike Donaldson and Bill Davidson, Al Merlo and rookie Martin Howe on defence.

STRENGTH IS HERE

At the moment he's got enough forwards for four lines. Art Jones, Gordie Fashoway and Arnie Schmautz form one, Ken Lauffman, Bill Saunders and Tom McVie another, Doug Anderson, Tom McCarthy and Orv Tessier a third. George Knipelberg, Ed Dudych and Arlo Goodwin form No. 4.

Game time is 8:30.

Final Match Set Sunday

Five C's and Albion, who finished the season tied for first place in the Victoria and District Cricket Association, will play off for the championship Sunday at 1 p.m. at University School.

Winner meets Varsity of Vancouver for the B.C. title.

No PCL Games This Weekend

VANCOUVER—The Pacific Coast Soccer League cancelled all weekend games last night after failing to reach a decision on how to answer a suspension given the league by the B.C. Soccer Commission.

The PCL has appealed the suspension to the Canadian Soccer Football Association to overrule the suspension, handed down when the league failed to accept a BCSC order to accept Vancouver Firemen into the league.

"Soccer is at the crossroads right now," league president Bill Findlay said. "Frankly, I don't know what we are going to do. We'll meet again early next week."

Speaking Briefly

It's Nicklaus Again

Jack Nicklaus, who won golf's first world series and came back the same week to win the Seattle Open, is going for his third straight victory in Portland, and from the way he opened yesterday don't bet too much against him getting it.

The powerful 22-year-old, hitting every green with deadly approaches, fired six consecutive birdies for an eight-under-par 64 in the first round of the $25,000 Portland Open for a one-stroke lead over Tony Lema, the man he beat out in Seattle.

More than 80 players matched or bettered par 72, including three-time winner Billy Casper Jr., who tied Bob Rosburg for third with 66.

Nicklaus with rounds of 31 and 33, reached the greens in two strokes on all four par five holes. On four of them, he two-putted for birdies.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver had a 68 and George Knudson of Winnipeg a 70.

LEHIGH HANOVER won the 17th annual $75,000 Little Brown Jug for three-year-old pacers yesterday in Delaware, picking up $27,000 . . . Billy Joe Patton, 40, won two more matches yesterday and moved into the semi-finals of the U.S. Amateur golf championship against 20-year-old Labron Harris, Jr. . . . Smokey Burgess, hitting .328 with 60 RBIs for Pittsburgh Pirates, is through for the season with stomach trouble . . . catcher Jesse Gonder, one of six San Diego Padres to make the Pacific Coast Baseball League's all-star team, has been named the league's most valuable player . . . heavyweight Bob Cleroux knocked out unknown Jim Cherokee in the fourth round last night in Granby, Que.

Pageant Debt $20,000?

By IAN STREET

When the Centennial Society closes its books in a few weeks the city's debt, if there is any, will likely be in the neighborhood of $20,000, Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night.

"This amount would be a small price to pay for a very successful year," the mayor said.

"Considering the extent of the program and the variety of centennial events which have proved popular with citizens and visitors alike, I feel that we have obtained excellent value."

NOT $100,000

Mayor Wilson said yesterday's headline in another newspaper referring to a $100,000 centennial debt is misleading and "not in keeping with the facts."

"A debt is something that is owed, whereas city council has already voted and paid to the Centennial Society sums amounting to $75,000," the mayor said.

IN 1961 BUDGET

He added $25,000 of this was included in the city's 1961 budget; the remaining $50,000 was in the 1962 budget.

Ald. Michael Griffin, a member of the centennial committee, took issue with published statements that Victoria's professionally directed centennial celebrations will cost the ratepayers a total of $100,000, slightly more than one mill.

$75,000 INVESTED

He said: "The city invested — and I cannot stress enough that word invested — the sum of $75,000 to celebrate 100 years of civic administration in Victoria.

"No one on city council, at any time, suggested that we might get back in direct rebate any significant portion of this amount.

GREATEST YEAR

"What this money has done, however, is to permit staging of what has proven to be the greatest year in our history."

He said the program provided a continuous round of events enjoyed by visitors and Greater Victoria residents alike.

TRULY MARVELLOUS

"Never in recent history have we seen so many people pass through the gates of Royal Athletic Park to witness some truly marvellous entertainment," Ald. Griffin said.

"This sense of celebrating, with all hands joining in, has been repeated all over Greater Victoria."

FIRMLY CONVINCED

Ald. Griffin said he is "still firmly convinced" that without the professional help of the John B. Rogers company on the production end "it would have been completely and hopelessly impossible to stage these celebrations."

He added: "I hope that city council will enthusiastically support a suggestion to bring them back annually to stage a two-month long celebration."

Pageant director Dudley Remus said it is "utter folly" to say Victoria is $100,000 in debt from its centennial celebrations. He added that 80 per cent of all centennial funds were spent locally.

"Victoria could not have purchased the wonderful things that have happened here in the last few months if she paid $1,000,000. The future of the city is assured, with thousands of proud Victorians pulling together," said Mr. Remus.

CLEAR PICTURE

Earl Ward, chairman of the centennial ticket committee, said it will be possible to obtain a clear financial picture only when final returns of centennial events are tallied in the next week or so.

But there are other ways of measuring returns for the city's investment, he said.

BEST YEAR

"Question the merchants who have enjoyed the best tourist year in history, the 100,000 people who came to the centennial office to buy tickets, hats or ties or just to ask the way to one of the local stores. Ask the staff about the 150,000 phone calls they handled," he said.

Familiar beaming smile of Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was even broader than usual when he landed a 15-pound steelhead in famed Kispiox River during his recent tour of Cariboo area. Vice-regal catch was left behind for local residents to eat.—(Gar Dixon)

Pearkes Visits Cariboo Sect

In a 14-day tour of the Cariboo district, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes fished three world famous waters, visited an operating HBC trading post and stayed one night at the headquarters of a minor religious sect.

Mr. Pearkes landed a 15-pound steelhead after a 20-minute battle in the Kispiox River and posed happily with his trophy for official photographs.

At Pendleton Bay he caught a fine rainbow trout but failed to land anything at the Babine River although it was full of salmon.

In the Babine area, Mr. Pearkes visited Fort Babine, an HBC trading post and Indian settlement.

NAW HOUSING

Near Burns Lake he saw Mecrasin Square Garden, a housing development for B.C. Indians.

He spent the last night of his tour at the township of 100 Mile House, headquarters of The Emissaries of Divine Light, south of Williams Lake.

SECT MINISTER

One of the leading citizens of the community who welcomed Mr. Pearkes—board of trade president David Ostonek — is a minister in the sect.

The vice-regal party had afternoon tea and dinner at the sect's main building, 100-Mile Lodge.

The two-week tour took Mr. Pearkes on a jam-packed trip through the historic Cariboo. Highlights of the trip included:

VISIT TO CAIRN

A visit to the Mile 0 cairn at Lillooet, marking the start of the Cariboo Highway; inspection of a closed-down mercury mine at Pinchi Lake; a display of Hurley, an Irish game similar to grass hockey, played by Indian boys at Lejac Indian School near Vanderhoof; Burns Lake Elementary School, where the children stood to rain to greet Mr. Pearkes, and a visit to Hidden Paradise, a hideaway holiday ranch near Vanderhoof.

Death of Logger Ruled Accident

LADYSMITH — Death of 62 year-old Ladysmith logger John Solmie, killed by a rolling log Aug. 29 at Crown Zellerbach's logging operation 17 miles northwest of here, was ruled accidental by a coroner's jury last night.

No blame was attached to anyone.

Mr. Solmie was employed as a bucker. Witnesses said he had just completed a cut when a log above him was dislodged and struck him.

A company official told Coroner Russell Inkster of Nanaimo the dead man was considered an efficient woodsman. Attending physician, Dr. Bruce Gordon, said the death was caused by a broken spine, a ruptured lung and shock.

Lawyer Rules Nanaimo Court

NANAIMO — During the absence of Magistrate Lionel Beever-Potts who is leaving today for his annual holiday, Nanaimo lawyer Harold Hine will occupy the bench. Mr. Beever-Potts will return Oct. 8.

$2,500 Bail Set for Man

Bail of $2,500 was set for John Caird, no fixed address, charged in Saanich police court yesterday with being in possession of an opium poppy.

The case was remanded to Sept. 25 after a plea of not guilty.

Eased for Hardest-Hit?

Douglas Parking Ban Will Stay Says CIDC

Victoria and Saanich representatives made little progress yesterday in their attempt to obtain relaxation of a Capital Improvement District Commission-inspired parking ban on Douglas Street north of the Roundabout.

City spokesman Ald. Michael Griffin said following a meeting in the office of CIDC chairman J. Everett Brown only one option appeared to be open to the municipalities—short of refunding $150,000 grants for the beautification project.

MIGHT CONSIDER

"We gathered that the CIDC might—I want to underline that word, might — consider easing the situation temporarily in cases where obvious hardship could be proven (by merchants)," he said.

TEMPORARY NATURE

Ald. Griffin stressed the temporary nature of any relaxation of the parking ban that may be granted and added this was likely to be considered only where merchants could prove they "didn't realize that parking was going to be cut off."

'MOST SYMPATHETIC'

Mr. Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, was "most sympathetic" to the problems faced by both Victoria and Saanich in application of the parking restrictions, said Ald. Griffin.

UNDER AGREEMENT

But under the agreement signed by the CIDC and both municipalities, said Ald. Griffin, any move on the part of Victoria or Saanich to remove the parking ban would mean abandonment of all plans for beautifying the Douglas Street entrance to the city.

$80,000 REFUND

This would involve refund of $80,000 paid by CIDC to the city for beautification work completed to date; and in the case of Saanich a similar repayment of approximately $70,000.

Ald. Griffin continued: "Mr. Brown quite rightly pointed out that both the city and Saanich must determine in their own minds just how they want to develop the main entrance to the city.

'OUR DECISION'

"This decision, in the final analysis, must be our own, not that of the CIDC. It is a major decision and one that must be made as soon as possible."

The city spokesman added the intended ban on parking on both sides of north Douglas was publicized several months ago.

FORCED TO MOVE

It appears some of the merchants affected, said Ald. Griffin, either did not appreciate the significance of the ban or were unable to provide any form of off-street parking to meet the situation when it developed.

Some merchants were forced to move, others have suffered heavy loss of business.

Hospital Financing Causes No Alarm

COWICHAN—Secretaries in the Lake Cowichan and Koksilah Hospital Improvement Districts are not alarmed about financing their contributions to the $3,600,000 Cowichan Hospital after the provincial government announced unorganized areas must make their own arrangements.

Comments from secretaries followed Coun. Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn's statement to North Cowichan Council that these two districts are wondering how to fulfill their obligations.

The Lake Cowichan improvement district contribution with 6,500 people, is $527,960.

The Koksilah district share, with approximately the same population, amounts to $367,010.

The other shares are, provincial government $1,723,623; federal government $338,000; Duncan $186,331, and North Cowichan $312,659.

Larry Bailey, secretary of the Lake Cowichan district said, with the delay of final government approval for hospital construction "we are not worried at the present about financing but we probably will sell debentures to raise the money."

Spokesman for Koksilah area, Charles Meredith, reported his district is not alarmed but he declined to disclose how the financing would be achieved.

Prominent Cobble Hill resident George Bonner, originally responsible for forming the Koksilah Hospital Improvement District, said he'd rather see the money raised by private subscription and avoid taxpayers interest rates and enable them to deduct subscribed money from their income tax.

He said both hospital improvement districts should have their own cottage-type hospitals and be served by a mobile hospital unit which operates successfully in Ontario.

Mr. Bonner said, "I think Duncan should have its new hospital, of course. But I maintain the Lake Cowichan and Koksilah districts with their ever-growing population should be served by adequate facilities right in their areas."

Commenting on his mobile hospital suggestion he said this unit would relieve the present hospital of a number of patients who would rather stay home if they could receive proper medical care regularly. This unit, he added, would ultimately save the taxpayers a lot of money.

Mr. Bonner also advocated establishment of an ambulance in each district.

"The increasing traffic certainly warrants more emergency vehicles," he added. He feels in some cases the distances from Duncan are too great.

Mr. Bonner said the cottage-style hospitals and ambulances should be paid for by the districts affected.

Vote for School Not Necessary

NANAIMO—Harold Godfrey, chairman of the new building committee of the Nanaimo school board, announced Thursday night that, as it will not be necessary to undertake any new construction in the immediate future, the school board will not have to submit any referendum to the ratepayers this year.

The new Park Avenue three-room elementary school is now in use and has an enrolment of 91 students. Additional accommodation to be completed shortly is a new classroom at the Departure Bay School and an activity room at Dufferin Crescent.

Collision Car Owners Questioned

NANAIMO — Police have now located the owner of the badly damaged car found wrapped around a telephone pole on Chapel Street last weekend. She is a woman resident of the Chemainus Bay reserve. RCMP are questioning her.

Annual Conference

Albernis Hosts To Harbor Men

PORT ALBERNI — Ald. Les Hammer, acting mayor of Port Alberni, and Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni welcomed delegates to the fourth annual conference of Canadian Port and Harbor Boards at a dinner held Wednesday evening.

Jack Lockhurst of Port Alberni harbor commission presided.

Headed by president E. J. Allan business sessions got under way Thursday with a general discussion.

PUBLIC LIABILITY

A tour of the harbor here aboard the Mv Lady Rose followed the banquet.

Delegates discussed policing and watching service for harbors and responsibilities of harbor commissions in regards to public liability headed by Art Burns, Victoria lawyer.

Clifford Morgan of Hamilton, Ont., led discussion on industrial relations, labor agreements, working conditions, wages and job classifications when delegates dealt with policy of harbor boards as employers. J. Barriere of Ottawa was main speaker.

HARBOR HOSTS

On Wednesday Nanaimo Harbor Commission was host to harbor commissioners, who were welcomed by Mayor Pete Maffeo on behalf of the city, at a luncheon in the Tally Ho, at which George Muir, a member of the Nanaimo harbor commission presided.

United Appeal Goal in City Modest

* * *

This year's United Appeal target of $360,000 works out to a per-capita donation of $2.40 a head among Greater Victoria's citizens, deputy campaign chairman Stuart Keate told a joint service club luncheon yesterday.

At the Rotary sponsored luncheon which saw Mayor R. B. Wilson pledge a month's pay of $500 to the drive, Mr. Keate said the appeal, observing its 25th anniversary this year, was out for an objective far below that set by comparable communities.

"Saskatoon this year has a target of $700,000 serving 12 agencies. Yet its population is 95,000, or about one third less than ours.

"Regina, with a population of 100,000, has set a goal of $425,000. St. Catherines, with a population of 84,000, is after $230,000 the same amount we sought last year.

MORE THAN DOUBLE

"London, Ontario, with just 10,000 more people than Greater Victoria, is asking its citizens for $750,000, or more than double our amount. Vancouver, with four times our population is out after $3,000,000, or eight times our objective.

He said by comparison, Victoria's requests seem modest.

"This is partially explained by the fact that we are largely a non-industrial centre . . . it is also partially explained by the fact that we have a tough budget committee . . . which screens applications with great care, so that your dollars are prudently expended."

FORWARD STEP

He said a forward step in Greater Victoria's United Appeal organization was the adoption of a "definite" line of succession, assuring us top leadership for the next three or four years.

"Our appeal has to a large extent been carried, over the past three years, on the broad shoulders of, chairman Justin Hartwell."

ROTARY MOTTO

He urged businessmen at the meeting to accept their share of the responsibility of raising at least 12 per cent more for this anniversary drive."

Mr. Keate said the meaning and purpose of the drive was "crystallized" in the motto of the Rotary Club — "Service Above Self."

Teachers' Pay Topic for Talks

QUALICUM (CP)—The opening round of the annual negotiations over teachers' salaries opens next week when zonal discussions begin on remuneration of Vancouver Island teachers.

Five teachers with an adviser from the B.C. Teachers' Association will review present schedules and open proposals for changes with five trustees and an adviser from the B.C. School Trustees Association.

WALTZING MATILDA: Duncan man Klaus Meunter has the painful distinction of having been bitten on the beak by a turtle. Klaus keeps the turtle, Matilda, for a pet and got a little too close the other night when he was inspecting her. He danced a little jig of pain until Matilda let go. Matilda is an eastern painted turtle, about eight inches long, with strong jaws.

TENT TOWN: Local Kinsman Club official Stan Mossop is boasting the Kinsmen's fair in Esquimalt next week will feature one of the biggest displays of canvas ever used at a fair in Western Canada—11 tents covering a total of 24,000 square feet. They range from tiny small ones measuring 20 feet by 30 to a whopper measuring 60 by 90.

SUCCESSFUL: Junior chamber's aim to provide leadership training for members seems to work. At the annual luncheon in the Dominion Hotel today for Jaycee senators and past presidents will be B.C. ferry manager Monty Aldous, a past national president, Memorial Arena manager Jack Morgan, past president of a mainland unit; Public Utilities director former mayor Percy George; Bill Mearns, vice-president of B.C. Hydro, and W. T. Straith, QC, a former president of Victoria Jaycees and one-time provincial minister of education.

SUCCESSFUL BUMS: New light on social deviants comes from Dr. Boris Levinson, a New York psychologist, who claims it takes almost as long to learn how to be a successful bum as it takes to become a doctor. He makes the further point that bums are generally in better health than business executives.

Village May Control Park at Parksville

PARKSVILLE — Take-over of Parksville Community Park by the village will be subject of a discussion with a committee from Parksville Community Society and the municipal council at the end of this month.

Eric Winch is committee chairman and members are Gerry Mayfield, James Campbell and William Noden.

At a recent meeting of the Community Society Mr. Mayfield outlined a work project undertaken this past summer at the Community Park.

Through the co-operation of Dan Campbell, MLA and members of the staff of the Nanaimo Vocational School, a crew of trainees from the school worked with heavy machinery and reclaimed about 20 acres of waste land at a net cost to the Community Society of $931.

Parksville merchants and organizations assisted with donations and help in feeding and housing the trainees during the project. The result is a great improvement in the appearance of the park and the shoreline.

Alert Citizen Praised

NANAIMO — Wednesday the RCMP issued a public notice requesting assistance of citizens in locating all or any of four youths who had run away from the Brannan Lake school.

That evening at about 7:30 p.m. two of the escapees were spotted on a downtown Nanaimo street and detained by an alert citizen, who turned them over to the police.

★ ★ ★

Staff-Sgt. Earl Sarsiat, in charge of the RCMP here, said "This is the type of co-operation by citizens, which is appreciated by the police.

"It is every person's right and duty to assist the police whenever possible."

Name of the arresting citizen has not been made public.

Duncan Jaycees

Parade's Organizer Honored

DUNCAN — With a record attendance the local Junior Chamber of Commerce commemorated this year's Jaycee Week from Sept. 16 to 22 at a dinner meeting with Victoria Jaycee president Eric Charman and Dennis Oram of Duncan as guest speakers.

The annual affair is mainly designed to remind the communities of local Jaycee activities and to promote new membership, said Duncan president Gordon Doman.

He said besides 10 new members who joined in the past four weeks nine prospective Jaycees came to the meeting.

MEMBER HONORED

The local group has now 48 members and this season's target is set at 80. Guest speaker Mr. Charman emphasized the importance of the Jaycee movement on the local, provincial, national and international levels.

In appreciation of his outstanding efforts in organizing Duncan's recent mammoth parade Arie Van Donkelaar was presented with a plaque.

FIRST TO TRY

In presenting the token President Doman remarked Mr. Van Donkelaar was the first who had ever undertaken such a tremendous task. Mr. Doman also expressed his thanks to the hard-working committee who helped Mr. Van Donkelaar.

A group of 14 local Jaycees headed by Mr. Doman will attend the installation ceremony of the Victoria Jaycees at that city this Saturday.

U.S. Backs Russia In A-Power Plan

VIENNA (AP) — The United States indicated Thursday it is ready to accept a Soviet offer to step up East-West co-operation in the peaceful use of atomic energy through a sweeping assistance program for underdeveloped countries.

Glenn Seaborg, chief U.S. delegate to the general conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency, said the U.S. "welcomes the spirit" of a Russian proposal to share the costs for establishment of six health centres and six physical laboratories in developing countries.

The offer was submitted Wednesday by Rusia's chief delegate, Professor Vasily Emelaynov.

The Russians and other East bloc countries proposed to pay one-third of the costs.

Diphtheria in Skid Road

Carrier Hunted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health officials here are searching for a diptheria carrier believed to be in the city's skid road area.

"We are up against a blank wall," said Dr. George Mott, senior medical health officer for the city.

Dr. Mott told the metropolitan health committee Wednesday two diptheria cases, one fatal originated in skid road this summer. The fatality was the first recorded in more than 10 years.

The victim was a 50-year-old woman from the Interior. She lived in the skid road district for three weeks before reporting in hospital with a sore throat. She died shortly afterward.

Highway 19 Claims New Victim

NANAIMO — The stretch of Highway 19 in the area of the Lantzville cut-off again featured the motor vehicle accident records Wednesday night.

About 10 p.m. a car driven by James Bates of Oyster River left the highway and turned over in the ditch, causing injuries to Bates, sending him to Nanaimo General Hospital, and causing about $400 damage to his car.

Police state that no other cars were involved.

Bates' condition is now reported to be satisfactory.

Ban Aimed At Halting Terrorism

SALISBURY (CP) — Southern Rhodesia's Premier Sir Edgar Whitehead banned the Zimbawe African People's Union Thursday in an effort to stamp out a wave of terrorism.

He also warned party leader Joshua Nkomo hiding in Lusaka, Northern Rhodesia — that he would be served with a restriction order if he returned to Southern Rhodesia.

Nkomo, who talked to reporters before going into hiding, said the ban was "a good thing. This is the beginning of the end for Whitehead."

'BRITAIN MUST JOIN OR BECOME WEAK'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan told the nation last night Britain must join the Common Market or become a weak nation "in a world of giants."

He appeared on a nation-wide radio and television broadcast to give his views on Britain's proposed entry into the market and the just-ended Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

TRUE STRENGTH

"We shan't find the true strength that we have and ought to have," he declared. "We shan't be able to exercise it in a world of giants."

Commenting on the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, which ended Wednesday, Macmillan said:

EXPRESSED FEARS

"Some of the prime ministers expressed their fears and anxieties at our conference very frankly.

"Politically there was the fear that somehow or other if Britain were to join Europe the Commonwealth would never be quite the same thing again."

ALWAYS CHANGING

But the Commonwealth has never been the same—"it's always been changing, and it's still changing," he said.

Macmillan said he and his British colleagues "reject altogether the view that Britain is faced with the choice between the Commonwealth and Europe."

SIMPLE REASON

"That is not so—and for a very simple reason—the Commonwealth and European Common Market are quite different kinds of organizations.

"Both are developing in a very dramatic way, but both are quite different and the membership of one can help and not hinder the membership of the other."

Shaky Economy

Czech Slump May Oust Boss

ANTONIN NOVOTNY

By DAVID OANCIA
Second in a Series

PRAGUE (CP) — The Czechoslovak Communist party approaches the final stages of preparations for its 12th congress in December against a background of growing economic problems.

The magnitude of these—the planners call them disproportions—was emphasized in late August when the government announced in effect it would scrap the current five-year plan not due to end until 1965.

The decision could have repercussions that ultimately will be felt far beyond the economic front. There is even speculation it may result in further changes in the top echelon of present party leadership.

TARGET FAILURE

Abandonment results from failure to hit the plan's target in metallurgy, heavy engineering, capital construction and agriculture.

"Despite clear directives from the party and the government, shortcomings are not being removed with sufficient determination," said deputy Frantisek Kejda in the report of the planning and budget committee.

STEEL OUTPUT FALLS

"This unfavorable development at the beginning of 1962 is causing considerable difficulties in the second half of the year and is worsening the basis for the plan for 1963."

Part of the trouble is in heavy industry. Deficiencies of 1.8 per cent in steel production and 2.5 per cent in rolled stock have had a chain reaction effect on other sectors. The engineering industry, one of the world's most advanced, was stripped consequently by a lack of materials.

LOVE SAUERKRAUT

Agricultural production was roughly seven per cent below the planned level. This had an immediate impact on the hard-working Czechoslovaks who love their Pilsener beer, meat, noodles and sauerkraut.

They spend hours in lineups at stores selling meat, butter, eggs and other commodities. Often it's not the quality or the quantity they were after.

Student Blocked

'Nigger, Nigger, Nigger!'

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — James Meredith tried to enroll in the University of Mississippi Thursday but was turned away by Gov. Ross Barnett and left the campus with the students' chant of "Nigger, Nigger, Nigger" ringing in his ears.

Barnett, who only hours before had flown to the campus to take personal charge of the situation, was there to deal with the 29-year-old air force veteran after federal officers escorted him past the thousands of jeering students.

The governor's refusal to admit Meredith was in direct defiance of three federal court orders—including one from the U.S. Supreme Court.

'Divert Trucks To Cook'

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow yesterday pledged his support for a new truck route around the congested downtown area following complaints from Government Street merchants.

He would like to see trucks diverted to Cook Street.

After an on-the-spot assessment of the situation, the city public works chairman said he favored banning of heavily-laden trucks from the main downtown arteries.

"When these trucks start up with their heavy loads the noise is so great that the merchants can't even talk to their customers," Ald. Edgelow said.

FUMES NUISANCE

Exhaust fumes add to the nuisance and the slow-moving trucks aggravate congestion already existing on the narrow street.

"I saw as many as five big trucks in the space of two blocks yesterday afternoon," Ald. Edgelow said.

NEW TRUCK ROUTE

"We've got to do something at once to create a new truck route. I will suggest to city council that we make the route by way of Bay Street to Cook, allowing trucks heading for Ogden Point and Outer Wharf to go any way they wish after they're past the downtown section."

CONGESTION HAZARD

Ald. Edgelow said that as chairman of public works he is opposed to creation of a truck route using Store, Johnson and Wharf Streets. This would only add to congestion at the ferry terminal where Mv. Coho docks and on the Causeway.

He said Government Street merchants also requested regulations covering deliveries to stores in the area before 9 a.m. each day to eliminate a major cause of traffic holdups.

U.S. House Votes to Chop Aid to Cuba's Traders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, in a surprise move, voted last night to cut off U.S. foreign aid to any country that trades with Cuba.

The amendment, by Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., was included as a specific provision in President Kennedy's foreign aid bill.

It was approved by voice vote despite warnings from a number of lawmakers that such a move could seriously endanger American relations with the NATO alliance and other countries.

The amendment was even opposed by Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., who is the chief congressional critic of the foreign aid program.

Passman, chairman of the house foreign aid appropriations subcommittee which recommended a $1,100,000,000 cut in the administration's aid bill warned the house that such amendments, without proper committee study and consideration, could do "great damage to the program."

City's Last Fan Was on the Job

JOE E. BROWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Comedian Joe E. Brown says Victoria was a "Honky Tonk" town in 1906 when he played a long-forgotten night club.

"I was doing an acrobatic act there in the spring of 1906—I was just a boy—and we had half a house for our first performance."

The act came on for its second showing of the night and found only eight persons left in the audience.

"We did our first trick and seven more left," said Brown. "One man was sitting there."

Brown's fellow actor announced one trick was going to be cut from the act.

"Then," said Brown, "The man stood up and said: 'Fine, but hurry it up will you—I'm the janitor.'"

UN Plane Crashes 10 Swedes Aboard

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — An unarmed United Nations plane on reconnaissance with 10 Swedish military men aboard crashed Thursday near a Congo-Katanga combat area, UN headquarters was told. A field report from the Congo said there was suspicion that the plane was shot down, but it gave no immediate details.

In Stockholm, a Swedish army staff spokesman said in a statement that there was good hope of finding survivors. He did not say on what the hope was based.

The Stockholm statement said 10 Swedes formed a reconnaissance unit led by Capt. Jan Toll. The spokesman declined to speculate on who might have shot the plane down.

The crash was described as last behind the lines of advanced troops of the central Congolese army in secessionist Katanga province.

Cabinet Quits In Argentina

BULLETIN

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—President Jose Guido said early today the military crisis which erupted into battle yesterday has been settled with the resignation of his entire cabinet.

Loyal military leaders opposed by the army rebels had resigned or returned into retirement, making the settlement appear as a rebel victory.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Government artillery battled a rebel tank column 50 miles from Buenos Aires in the first fighting of Argentina's newest crisis. The rebels then agreed late Thursday night to a temporary truce and negotiations.

President Jose Maria Guido planned an early morning cabinet meeting and the rebel leader, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, was expected to attend.

Guido ordered the truce effective until 1:15 a.m., and the rebel radio told its soldiers to suspend action. The rebel communique said that if its troops got no new orders by the deadline they were to "continue previously planned movements." The deadline passed without immediate word of renewed fighting.

Trekkers Stay At Camp

PRINCETON (CP) — Freedomite Doukhobors threw out advice of their lawyer Thursday and decided to stay encamped here rather than continue a march to the West. (See Page 8.)

"We are not going to march into police state," said Mrs. Fanny Sturgulf, spokesman for the 1,200 Freedomites. "We will stay."

The Freedomites were told Wednesday night by Vancouver lawyer George Herbert he felt they were within their rights to continue a trek from the Kootenays to the West.

Houses Shaken

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — Officials last night were investigating an "explosion or earth tremor" that shook houses in a 20-mile radius. Damage was described as "very slight." No injuries were reported.

Last to Vote First to Topple Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The crucial decision of voting precedence in the new Parliament has been tossed to the incoming Commons Speaker, reliable informants said Thursday.

The matter is vital to the Social Credit and New Democratic parties in determining their position on votes of no confidence.

A solid alignment of the 100 Liberals, 30 Social Credit MPs and 18 New Democrats against the 116 Progressive Conservatives would defeat the government on a no-confidence motion and bring about a new election.

The Liberals, because they are the official opposition, will vote first on no-confidence motions.

The two smaller opposition groups have been jockeying for weeks for the right to vote immediately after the Liberals.

The party voting second could cast its votes in favor of a no-confidence motion, leaving the third opposition group with the difficult choice of toppling the government with its votes or voting with the Conservatives and keeping the government in office.

The Liberals have been pressing for a vote of no confidence but Social Credit and New Democrats have given indications they are not anxious for another election this year.

But neither of the smaller opposition groups particularly wants to be placed in the position of voting to keep the Conservatives in office and thus giving political opponents ammunition to use against them.

All three opposition groups severely criticized the Conservatives during the June 18 election campaign that returned a minority Conservative government.

The question of voting precedence came to a head when Commons officers drew up a tentative seating plan for the Commons chamber.

New Democrats raised a protest on the basis that this indicated that when the voting roll was called the Liberals would vote first, Social Credit second and New Democrats in the unpopular third spot.

New Democrats argued that in two previous Parliaments where there were three opposition parties the party leader with seniority of service in the House voted second even though his group was outnumbered by the third opposition group.

On the basis of these precedents H. W. Herridge, House leader of the NDP, and an MP since 1945, would vote before Social Credit leader Robert Thompson, who was first elected last June.
